DISTRICT NEWS

Mrs. Mary Carruthers, of Guelph, celebrated her 103rd birthday on Sept. 26th.

Rev. Arthur Harden comes to Cooksville United Church, while Rev. F. M. Bellsmith has been transferred from Cooksville to Maple Valley, Grey County.

Mr. and Mrs. A. McGibbon, Milton, celebrated their golden wedding on Sept. 24th.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bigger, of Dundas Street, Trafalgar, celebrated their golden wedding last week.

Mr. Carman Nixon and Miss Lu-lu Marguerite Davis, both of Chingacousy, were married last week. They will reside at Malton.

While working on the roof of the barn last week, Harry Butterfield, a hired man at W. J. Little's farm in Esqueping Township, fell to the ground, breaking his right leg and sustaining internal injuries.

Rev. Father Egan, of St. Mary's Church, Brampton, accompanied by his brother, the Parish Priest at Dixie, and Rev. Father Haydon, of Toronto, left for Rome to attend the Holy Year Celebration at the Vatican.

W. Lavine, of Trafalgar Township, met with a serious accident the other day when a cow which he was driving to the barn suddenly attacked him, knocking him down and injuring him so badly that he was taken to Hamilton Hospital.

Harold Mitchell, 8-year-old son of George Mitchell, of Trafalgar Township, slipped and fell under a truck on the Dundas Street Highway last week and had his left leg broken at the thigh, when the rear wheel passed over it.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence C. Bodley were at home to their friends Saturday, September 26th, afternoon and evening, being the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding, at their home, corner of Clarkson and Middle Roads, Clarkson, Ont.

Announcement has been made of the appointment of Rev. Andrew Lane, of the Drumbo and Princeton United Church, to the post of Superintendent of the new training farm for Armenian boys at Georgetown, the appointment to be effective at the end of this month.

The date has been set for the presentation of the King's colors to the Peel and Dufferin Regiment, on October 11, at 4 p.m. The entire regiment is expected to take part in the event, and the regimental band will be in attendance. The affair is being made interesting for children as well as adults as the occasion is considered an historic one.

Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways, awarded the contract for the supply of 1926 automobile markers to the Macdonald Manufacturing Company, the price being 8 1/2 cents per pair. The color of the markers for next year is to be pearl grey and black. Some 300,000 plates are being ordered, at a total cost of about $33,000.

It looks like Weston for the senior lacrosse championship again. On Saturday, on their own field, before a crowd of over 4,000 fans, they defeated Brampton 7-3, and thus have a substantial lead to take back to the Greenhouse Town for the return engagement. It was a bitterly fought, close-checking struggle, with both clubs handing out the wood and the body freely, though generally legitimately. Good and bad lacrosse markers for injuries and the many face-offs slowed matters up and the match took almost three hours to run off, but it was replete with thrills all the way, being a good game to watch, although the field, which was like a prairie, caused a lot of work on both sides and a tremendous number of scrambles.

OAKVILLE

J. G. Henderson, 704 Spadine Ave., Toronto, and George Smith, Osogood Hall, Toronto, both received minor injuries here last night when the motor car in which they were riding, driven by Henderson, collided with a wagon of sand. Henderson broke a bone in his hand, while Smith suffered several nasty cuts and bruises about the head and neck. After medical attention by Dr. J. H. Stead, the men were taken to their homes.

MARRIED

Ackroyd—Giffen

Rev. Dr. James Wilson, pastor-elect of Brampton Presbyterian Church, united two members of his future congregation in marriage on Saturday, when Miss Ethel Melissa Giffen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Giffen, Rosedale Avenue, Brampton, and Norman Matthew Ackroyd, also of Brampton, were joined in matrimony in Dovercourt Presbyterian Church, Toronto.

Souter—Chisholm

OAKVILLE, Sept. 28.—A pretty wedding took place in St. Jude's Church Saturday afternoon, when Dorothy Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Chisholm, became the bride of Walter Alexander Souter, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Souter, of Hamilton. The ceremony was performed by the rector, Rev. C. E. Riley.

Hammerton—Culham

The home of Mrs. G. Culham, Islington, was this week the scene of a pretty but quiet wedding when her eldest daughter, Mary Gertrude, was married to Mr. Roy Hammerton, of Malton, the Rev. W. G. Wells officiating. The bride wore a frock of blonde crepe and satin, trimmed with lace, a picture hat of black velvet and wore a corsage bouquet of Sweetheart roses. After the ceremony the happy couple left on a motor trip to Detroit, Cleveland, and other points, the bride travelling in a rosewood ensemble suit with hat to match, and a cinnamon fox fur, the gift of the groom.

Christ Church, Brampton, was the scene of a very pretty autumn wedding when Miss Kathleen Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Harrison, was married to Edward Frederick Furness, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Furness, the ceremony being performed by Rev. R. W. Allen.

Miss Olive Peer has returned home after spending her vacation at Niagara.

Mr. John Miller, Sr., is able to be out again after his recent illness.

Mr. Robinson, of Toronto, spent Sunday with Mr. Alex. Robinson.

The old barn on the corner of Ann and High Streets has been torn down. There are a number more old buildings in the village that would be better out of the way.

Mr. Haight is having a large garage built for the protection of his two new transportation buses.

Last Sunday was Rally Day, and a large crowd attended the morning service, which was held in the Clarke Memorial Hall. Teachers and scholars met in the basement, where they formed in line and marched up into the auditorium, where each child placed a bouquet of flowers on a large magnet. Flowers were also placed along the front of the platform.

Those taking part in the service were Mr. Budd, of Toronto, leader in song services; Rev. Mr. Dudgeon, prayer; primary class, song; Mr. Budd, solo; Rev. Mr. McQuarrie gave a talk, illustrated by the great magnet, selection by the Orchestra. At the close of the service the flowers were taken to the aged, sick, and Christie Street Hospital.

Rev. Samuel Lundie, B.A., formerly of Grand Valley, was inducted to the pastorate of St. Andrew's Continuing Presbyterian Church of Port Credit. The induction ceremony was performed by Rev. D. T. L. McKerron, moderator of Toronto Presbytery. The sermon was preached by Rev. Walter Patterson, of Norval, and the charge to the pastor and people was delivered by Rev. Mr. McLean, of Georgetown. A reception was held afterwards in the church parlours to Rev. and Mrs. Lundie, short addresses being given by Rev. J. W. Thos. Dodds, of Dixie.

The Port Credit Lawn Bowling Club wound up its season with a treble tournament between the St. Alban's Club, Toronto, and the Port Credit bowlers, eighteen rinks competing. The greens were in excellent condition, and fine weather greeted the bowlers.

Port Credit rinks won the first three prizes, the fourth going to St. Alban's Club. H. Forster, C. Urquhart and W. E. Miller composed the first prize winners. H. Munro and E. S. Munro won the second prize with three wins and 41. The third prize went to W. Paston, T. N. Dexter and 35. The St. Alban's winners of the fourth prize, were E. M. Rose, G. R. Merton and J. D. Fettle, with one win and 33.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lord, Toronto, announce the engagement of their daughter, Marguerite Alfreda, to John Gordon Kennedy, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kennedy, of Georgetown; marriage to take place quietly in October.

Dr. J. A. Mitchell, Drumbo, Ont., announces the engagement of his daughter, Jessie Anderson, to Rev. Andrew Lane, B.A., of Georgetown, Ont., the marriage to take place in October.

Mrs. L. M. Billings, London, Ont., announces the engagement of her daughter, Helen E. Clubb, to Mr. Lawrence J. Hooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hooper, Port Credit; marriage to take place in October.

DIXIE

After having had but two hours and twenty minutes of married life, Mrs. Lily Smalley, a resident of Pawtucket, and a native of Dixie, Ont., a Canadian war bride, has received a divorce on the grounds of wilful desertion, according to a despatch from Providence, R.I., to-day.

The marriage in April, 1915, was a real war wedding, leaving his bride two hours after the nuptials had been affected to serve his country overseas. At the conclusion of the war the victor home. Smalley came home, and, for the brief space of 20 minutes, visited his wife at the store in which she was working.

He left, promising to write, but since then, Mrs. Smalley declared, she has had no word from him.

BRAMPTON

Two well-known local residents, Mrs. George S. Boyes and Mr. Arthur James Briggs, suffered fatal attacks of acute indigestion at their homes this morning, following within an hour in both instances.

Mrs. Boyes was dressing to go to church at the time of her attack. Born in Sandhill, the late Mrs. Boyes, whose maiden name was Sarah Louisa Dale, was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dale, who recently celebrated their sixty-eighth anniversary of their wedding.

The late Mrs. Boyes had lived in Chingacousy Township and Brampton all her life, and was a member of St. Paul's United Church. She is survived by her parents, her husband, three brothers, Robert, of Brampton; George D., of Duluth, Minn., and William, of Chingacousy, and three sisters, Mrs. Steele, of Brampton, Mrs. Snell, of Bolton, and Mrs. T. Nixon, of Chingacousy.

Mr. Briggs had been a resident of the town for the past 20 years. He was born in England, and after serving with the Imperial forces in the South African War came to Brampton, where he was a painter and decorator. He was 59 years of age, and was an Anglican and Conservative, and was a member of L.O.L. No. 5, Brampton, and of the Sons of England. He is survived by his widow. His only son was killed in the Great War.

The news of the sudden death of Mrs. (Rev.) John Locke came as a terrible shock to her many friends in Brampton. During their four years in Brampton, from 1917 to 1921, Mrs. Locke made a host of friends, and was very actively connected with the operations of St. Paul's Church, taking an especial part in the musical services of the Church.

TURKEY CONTINUES SLAUGHTER OF CHRISTIANS IN MOSUL TERRITORY

A despatch from Geneva says:—The slaughter of Christians in the troubled area in Iraq continues unabated, according to information spasmodically reaching Europe. Many Christians fleeing from the disputed Mosul region and attempting to reach Van, about 150 miles north of Mosul, in Turkish Armenia, have been killed, according to information contained in a telegram from the British High Commissioner at Bagdad. The telegram was received by the British delegation to the League of Nations Assembly, and was made public on Thursday.

The slain constitute, for the most part women and children and the older men, for it was the stragglers, unable to keep up with the main column, who were waylaid. The telegram says it is reported that 1,500 of this Christian party reached Van alive.

The Mosul muddle thickened on Thursday night during a dramatic session of the Council of the League, which M. Loucheur, as President, hastily adjourned after an outburst of disapproval from those present against the attitude of Rushdi Bey, head of the Turkish delegation, on the question of the deportation of Christians.

After denying the deportation of Christians, Rushdi Bey brought fresh charges against Great Britain. One was that an Iraq band, after committing atrocities, had attacked a Turkish post north of the Brussels line. A second was that 50 persons of all ages and sexes, escaping from the oppressive rule of the British forced occupation, had taken refuge in the Turkish zone. A third charge was that a band of 500, including Assyrians, commanded by British officers were preparing to attack the Turkish posts.

Col. Amery informed the Council that about 8,000 Chaldean Christians had been deported by the Turks. Rushdi Bey retorted that the Nestorians who had abandoned Turkey were working treacherously against Turkey on the British side. He demanded the appointment of a special commission to make an investigation of the military situation and of all incidents which had occurred since the signing of the Treaty of Lausanne in 1923, but the Council declined to take action on this proposal.

U.S. SUBMARINE RAMMED BY LINER

Thirty-four Men Imprisoned With Small Hope of Rescue — Three of Crew Saved.

New London, Conn., Sept. 27.—With deep sea divers tapping her steel skin and listening in vain for a response from her closed compartments, the submarine S-51 lies 130 feet deep on the floor of the Atlantic to-night, a gaping hole in her side and her slender hull, it is feared, the coffin of thirty-four officers and men who have perished in the United States Navy's greatest underwater disaster.

The wreck of the S-51 was located fifteen miles due east of Block Island and the same distance south of Newport, R.I., where it sank at 10:24 o'clock Friday night, immediately after collision with the Savannah liner City of Rome, bound from Savannah to Boston.

Above the stricken submarine is anchored a rescue fleet of other submersible boats, destroyers, mine sweepers and the cruiser Camden, anxiously awaiting the arrival of salvage vessels rushing to the scene from New York and hoping the reports of the first divers to reach the sunken ship do not mean there is no life left aboard.

Here, at the S-51's home port, headquarters for the relief expedition have been established at the Navy Submarine base, and the same atmosphere of tense anxiety and prayerful hope prevails.

Some relief was afforded by news from Boston that the three men of the submarine crew who were picked from the sea by the City of Rome had been landed safely in that city and none is seriously injured.

Guelph Woman Celebrated 103rd Anniversary

Guelph, Sept. 27.—Mrs. Mary Carruthers passed the one hundred and third milestone on life's voyage yesterday. She spent her birthday quietly and contentedly among her friends and relatives at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Robertson, with whom she resides.

Among those whom she honored with a clasp of the hand and a cheery word of greeting was Mayor George A. Drew, who paid his respects and conveyed the congratulations of the city. Mrs. Carruthers came to Canada from Glasgow, Scotland, 68 years ago, in a sailing ship, and settled with her husband in Puslinch Township, where she lived for many years. Although a little hard of hearing she retains her other faculties to a remarkable degree.

She was presented with a beautiful bouquet of flowers from the city, as well as from the Daughters of Scotland and other organizations.

Parishville Man Instantly Killed by Steam Roller

Prescott, Sept. 27.—William O. Harrow, aged 55, of Parishville, an employee of the State Highway Department, met a shocking death last night when he was run over by a steam roller and instantly killed. In avoiding a passing car he stepped aside, stumbled and fell directly in the path of the huge machine, which passed over his body without the operator being aware that anything had happened. He is survived by his widow and one daughter, Mrs. Nettie Boodle of Parishville.

Paris Food Prices Still Rising.

A despatch from Paris says:—The steady rise in the cost of living in Paris has become such a regular feature of life here that it is now accepted almost without comment. Fruit, in spite of the fact that this is said to have been an excellent year for yields, is about 200 per cent. higher than a year ago, while beef has risen about 35 per cent. in the last twelve months. Even potatoes have gone up in price about 20 per cent.

PRINCE ON HOME TRIP FROM SOUTH AMERICA

H.R.H. Entertains Officials of the Argentine Before Sailing.

Mar del Plata, Argentina, Sept. 27.—The Prince of Wales is homeward bound after a six weeks' visit to South America. H.M.S. Repulse, with the Prince aboard, sailed at 7:30 o'clock this morning.

On the eve of his departure for England the Prince entertained President De Alvear at a farewell banquet aboard the British warship. Several members of the Cabinet and high Government officials, as well as many others socially prominent, who had come from Buenos Aires to bid the Prince farewell, attended. The Repulse was lavishly illuminated and the function was a brilliant affair.

The Prince spent the last three days of his visit to Argentina at the ranch of the noted Argentine sportsman, Miguel Martinez de Hoz, who is now in Europe, but whose sons acted as hosts. Before embarking on the Repulse the Prince was the guest of honor at a reception given by the President and Madame de Alvear at their summer residence here, Argentina's premier seaside resort.

Old Roman Inscription Explains Name "Britain"

Paris, Sept. 27.—The origin of the names Britain and Brittany may be settled by a discovery recently made near Dijon, France, of a Roman inscription mentioning the name of the god "Britus," which is a legendary Celtic divinity. Chief interest in the discovery lies in the fact that no certain references to the god Britus had ever been discovered so far, although dim allusions come down from Roman times setting forth reports that this god was worshipped by the Britons of Western France and the British Isles long before the Gauls and Druids. By naming themselves after their divinity the Britons succeeded in perpetuating his name to the present day.

Unprecedented Rush of Grain to Market

A despatch from Winnipeg says:—With 6,000,000 bushels of wheat marketed on the prairies on Thursday, and 5,000,000 the day before, the deluge of grain has reached the peak with trains of 60 cars moving 30 minutes apart on both railway systems. All records of the Canadian West delivery have been broken this week. This rush to market, however, had no direct influence on Thursday's five-cent decline, the traders assert. Export demand is simply lacking for Canadian varieties with foreign competitors offering wheat on world markets below the price at which Canadian exporters can afford to move grain.

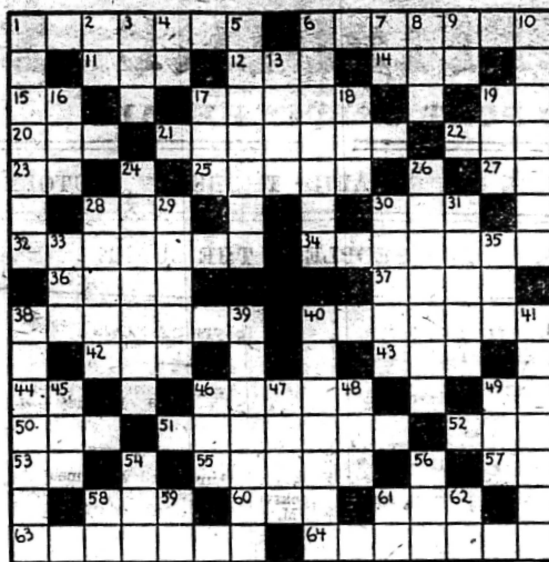

Half-Holiday Granted for Election Day, Oct. 29

Ottawa, Sept. 27.—The afternoon of Thursday, Oct. 29 (election day) has been declared a half-holiday throughout the Dominion of Canada to enable all voters to cast their votes in the Dominion election. An order-in-Council, granting the half-holiday, was signed by the Governor-General Saturday afternoon.

Threshing in West Stopped by Inclement Weather

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 27.—Cold, wet weather prevails throughout all the prairies, completely suspending threshing operations. In this province over one-half the grain is threshed, with nearly the same condition prevailing throughout Alberta, but in Saskatchewan very little has been done. Trade is afraid of some sprouting, but no deliveries thus far show presence of sprouted, tough or frosted grain.

SIR PRATAB SINGH WAS FRIEND OF BRITAIN

Loyal Maharajah May be Succeeded by "Mr. A." of London Courts Fame.

A despatch from London says:—News has reached London of the death in Kashmir of Lieutenant-General Sir Pratap Singh Indar Mahindar Bahadur, Maharajah of Kashmir and Jammu, G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E., G.B.E., and the probable successor to the throne of his nephew, Sir Hari Singh, hero of the "Mr. A." case in the London courts last year. Sir Hari was black-mailed out of $500,000 by a gang, who used as a decoy Mrs. Robinson, pretty wife of a broken-down race track gambler.

It is practically certain that Sir Hari will succeed to the throne. He is persona grata to the Government of India, which has the final decision, and it was for this reason that every effort was made to conceal his identity when the scandal broke last year.

The throne of Kashmir is one of the wealthiest and most romantic regions in India. The country is known as the land of nightingales and roses, and the income of the ruler is more than $5,000,000 yearly. The territory is about 80,000 square miles, and the population 3,000,000.

Pratap Singh was one of the best friends Britain had in India. When the Great War broke out, although 65 years of age, he insisted on the right to bring his own army to fight in France and to fight with it. He also insisted on paying the cost of his own troops, and refused reimbursement by the British.

ASTRONOMERS MAP 100 MILLION STARS

Gigantic Task of Surveying Heavens Started Forty Years Ago.

A despatch from London says:—The great work of remapping the heavens begun nearly forty years ago, and involving the definite location of 100,000,000 stars, is in danger of breaking down. Eighteen of the world's largest observatories agreed to share the vast undertaking, but only two famous English observatories—Oxford and Greenwich—have completed the tasks allotted them. In the majority of cases progress has been slower than expected, and in others no attempt was made to fulfil the obligations entered into in 1885. The Director of the Paris Observatory still hopes the four French observatories taking part will finish their work by 1935, but this is not at all certain.

Copies of the Greenwich and Oxford photographic charts and catalogues prepared at great cost have been distributed throughout the world. More than 100,000,000 stars have been located, it was explained at the Royal Astronomical Society, and this number is being constantly added to. Officials of the society admitted it was a mistake ever to have begun such a tremendous undertaking, for long before other observatories have completed their section of the heavens the Oxford and Greenwich charts will be out of date.

World's Wheat Crops.

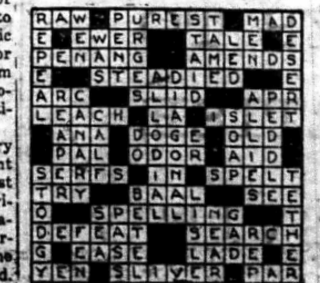

A despatch from Ottawa says:—Official estimates of this year's wheat crops have been received from 28 countries of the Northern Hemisphere, including every wheat growing country of importance except France. The total production of wheat in these countries is 2,519,000,000 bushels, as compared with 2,348,000,000 last year, and 2,436,000,000 the average of the five years 1919-23. This is an increase of 171,000,000 bushels over last year, but it should be remembered that last year's crop was an exceptionally small one. This year's production is far below that of 1923 when the 28 countries included above produced 2,725,000,000 bushels or 207,000,000 more than in 1925. Besides, there was an unusually small carry over of wheat in both exporting and importing countries at the beginning of the present grain year on August 1.

The Sept. crop report of the United States indicates a yield of 700,000,000 bushels of wheat against 873,000,000 bushels last year, and that of Canada 391,819,000 bushels against 262,000,000.

Captain and Crew Go Down With Ship

North Sydney, N.S., Sept. 27.—Captain Joseph Vatcher of the 55-ton schooner Inez G., of Burgeo, Newfoundland, and five seamen were drowned last night, when their vessel capsized about three miles off Lingan, when making for North Sydney for shelter.

572 LANGUAGES USED BY BIBLE PRINTERS

TREASURES OF BIBLE HOUSE IN LONDON.

400th Anniversary of First English New Testament by William Tindale.

A man from Korea arrived recently in London with his two sons. He could not speak a word of English, but he showed an address inside a little Bible and was guided to the Bible House, in Queen Victoria Street. Then he poured out a heap of money on the table and pointed to his two sons. When an interpreter was found, writes a London correspondent of "The Christian Science Monitor," the man related how he knew of nothing else in England but the place which had sent his Bible to him in Korea, and he had come there with his sons because he wanted them to be educated as Christians.

In the windows of the Bible House are bibles which show the link with little peoples and great peoples all over the world. Because of this work, the Bible, or parts of the Bible, are printed in 572 languages to-day. By reason of such efforts the Gospel has been published in a fresh language every six weeks for the last ten years.

To Honor Tindale's Work.

The work of the first translator to put the New Testament into printed English—William Tindale—is being commemorated at the Bible House this autumn in its 400th anniversary. Copies of all the earliest editions of Tindale's Testament have been gathered together in an exhibition in the library.

A long line of translators both before and after Tindale are commemorated in this library of 10,000 bibles, or part bibles, in different languages. There is the Latin Bible, written by hand, probably in the twelfth century, said to have belonged to Luther's friend, Melancthon, the German reformer; there is Wycliffe's Manuscript New Testament in English, of 1420, beautifully illuminated; there is the earliest New Testament printed in an Indian language and the first in any language printed in America, translated by John Eliot, "the Apostle of the Indians"; there is St. John's Gospel in Tahitian, written in 1820 by Pomare II., King of Tahiti. And there is the greatest treasure of all—a page of oldest manuscript of St. John, in Coptic, the old language of Egypt, which was found about two years ago during excavations in Egypt. It was written on papyrus—reeds of the Nile—about 400 A.D., and was found inclosed in a string bag in an earthenware pot.

Signs of Persecution Shown.

Many of the bibles bear witness to the persecutions which attended them. A Bible in the Madagascan languages shows signs of having been buried during the great persecution; another was rescued from the flames and hidden underground by the Christians during the Boxer movement. The earliest bibles printed in Chinese had a false label on the paper cover, put there by the Chinese printer "in view of the grave risks involved."

LESS WORK BETTER RESULTS

The library has a chained Bible and copies of the "Vinegar Bible," and various others in which are misprints. The Hebrew Roll of the Law, which is supposed to be 400 years old, was found in a cave near Damascus. It is written on sixty sheepskins and contains 204 volumes of writing.

The "Soldier's Bible," prepared by Cromwell for his army, presents a great contrast in size to the little khaki volume issued to the British soldiers in the World War. Yet it contains extracts only which "do show the qualifications of his inner man, that is a soldier to fight the Lord's Battle both before he fight in the fight, and after the fight."

Book Written With Twigs.

In many curious ways have the bibles been written. The Batta characters are written with a twig and ink made of soot upon bamboo slaves and the bark of trees. Photographs usually are made of the pages of the bibles written by hand, and plates for printing are made from the photographs. The printing is done as much as possible in the countries where the bibles are to be sold. But even so, 434 tons of Scripture have been sent out from the Bible House during the last year. Bibles by weight is the measure in the warehouse, for the boxes have to be made up according to the loads the native porters, mules or camels can carry in the different countries. A man's head load in Nyasaland is fifty-six pounds, while in Nigeria it is sixty pounds.

Bibles drift also into forbidden areas. People coming down from Afghanistan, where the Mahomedans do not like any Western influence at all, are given the forbidden Bible and take it home with them. People from Tibet, also, where Christian missionaries are not allowed by the Buddhists to settle, come across to India and go into China, where they find the Scriptures. In China itself, during the last year, when the country has been in continual chaos, 715,000 volumes of the Scriptures—more than in any year before—have been circulated.

At present it is not possible to send the Bible into Russia. The authorities will not allow it across the frontier. Yet there is evidence that the religious Russian peoples have not lost their love for the Scriptures. There are Siberian peasants who would willingly give a cow for a Bible. In the words of William Tindale, the Bible Society is asking: "Who is so blind to see why light should be showed to them that walk in darkness?"

NO BETTER MEDICINE FOR LITTLE ONES

Is What Thousands of Mothers Say of Baby's Own Tablets.

A medicine for the baby, or growing child—one that the mother can feel assured is absolutely safe as well as efficient—is found in Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets are praised by thousands of mothers throughout the country. These mothers have found by actual experience that there is no other medicine for little ones to equal them. Once a mother has used them for her children she will use nothing else. Concerning them Mrs. Charles Hutt, Tanook Island, N.S., writes: "I have ten children, the baby being just six months old. I have used Baby's Own Tablets for them for the past 20 years and can truthfully say that I know of no better medicine for little ones. I always keep a box of the Tablets in the house and would advise all other mothers to do so."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or will be mailed upon receipt of price, 25 cents per box, by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. A little booklet, "Care of the Baby in Health and Sickness," will be sent free to any mother on request.

Surnames and Their Origin

RADCLIFF.
Variation—Radcliffe.
Racial Origin—English.
Source—A place name.

Family names which were in the first place but the names of localities in which the original bearers lived are not so very difficult to trace, for the names of places seem to change less in their spelling than the names of families, and besides, there is always a wealth of historical data in connection with place-names which is so often lacking in the case of family names, and which makes it easy to identify the ancient forms of place names.

Thus, you need only a good atlas to come to the conclusion that the family name of Radcliff is the same as that of Radcliffe, a place in Lancashire, England. Of course, the original form of the family name was preceded by "de" (meaning "of") and indicating that the person referred to had come from or formerly lived in that place. In the case of Radcliffe, the meaning of the place name is not hard to ascertain either, though it is not quite apparent at first, owing to the change of a single vowel. Spell it "Radcliff" and you have it.

World's Biggest Cathedrals.

St. Peter's, Rome, is the largest cathedral in the world. It covers an area of 227,069 square feet. Its length is 718 feet, and its dome rises to a height of 448 feet, 85 feet higher than the cross of St. Paul's, London.

The next in order of size is the Spanish cathedral at Seville, which covers an area a little more than half that of St. Peter's. Its tower is 400 feet high.

When completed, St. John's Cathedral in New York will take third place. It is designed to cover 109,082 square feet, and beats all the others in the height of its tower, which is 500 feet. The famous cathedral at Milan covers an area of 107,000 square feet. It is 500 feet long and its tower is 355 feet in height. Three English cathedrals come next in size. By far the largest cathedral in England when it is completed will be the new one at Liverpool, designed to cover 101,000 square feet. York Minster comes next, but it covers an area of only 63,800 square feet.

St. Paul's, London, comes seventh on the world's list of big churches, covering 59,700 square feet, being 460 feet long, and its famous dome rising to a height of 363 feet.

Went Very Deep.

"Yes; he's studying the bottom of the ocean now."

The Common Law.

The tree that never had to fight For sun and sky and air and light, That stood but in the open plain, And always got its share of rain, Never became a forest king. But lived and died a scrubby thing. The man who never had to toil, Who never had to win his share Of sun and sky and light and air, Never became a manly man. But lived and died as he began. Good timber does not grow in ease; The stronger wind, the tougher trees. The farther sky, the greater length. The more the storm, the more the strength.

By sun and cold, by rain and snow, In tree or man good timber grows. Where thickest stands the forest growth

We find the patriarchs of both, And they hold converse with the stars Whose broken branches show the scars Of many winds and much of strife— This is the common law of life.

NATURE'S WARNINGS

Danger Signals That Everyone Should Take Seriously.

Pain is one of Nature's warnings that something is wrong with the body. Indigestion, for instance, is characterized by pains in the stomach, and often about the heart; rheumatism by sharp pains in the limbs and joints; headaches are a sign that the nerves or stomach are out of order. In some ailments, such as anaemia, pain is not so prominent. In this case Nature's warning takes the form of pallor, breathlessness after slight exertion, palpitation of the heart, and loss of appetite. Whatever form these warnings take, wise people will not ignore the fact that many diseases have their origin in poor blood, and that when the blood is enriched the trouble disappears. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are most helpful in such cases because they purify and build up the blood to its normal strength. In this way it tones up the nerves, restores the appetite and gives perfect health. Miss Hazel Berndt, of Arnprior, Ont., has proved the great value of this medicine and says:—"I am a young girl and have been working in a factory for the past four years. For two years I had been in such poor health that at times I could not work. I was thin and pale, and troubled with headaches and fainting spells. I doctored nearly all this time, but it did not help me. My mother advised me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after using them for a while I could notice an improvement in my condition. I used nine boxes and can truthfully say that my health is restored. When I began taking the pills I weighed 97 pounds and now I weigh 114. I feel that I owe my good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and hope other ailing people will give them a fair trial."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Somewhere a Woman.

Somewhere a woman, thrusting fear away,
Faces the future bravely for your sake,
Toils on from dawn till dark, from day to day,
Fights back her tears, nor heeds the bitter ache;
She loves you, trusts you, breathes in prayer your name—
Soll not her faith in you by sin or shame.

Somewhere a woman—mother, sweet-heart, wife—
Waits betwixt hopes and fears for your return;
Her kiss, her words will cheer you in the strife
When death itself confronts you, grim and stern.
But let her image all your reverence claim,
When base temptations scorch you with their flame.

Somewhere a woman watches, thrilled with pride—
Shrined in her heart, you share a place with none;
She toils, she waits, she prays, till side by side
You stand together when the fight is done.
Oh, keep for her dear sake a stainless name,
Bring back to her a manhood free from shame.

BOTHERED WITH ECZEMA IN RASH

Face Was Disfigured. Healed by Cuticura.

"Some time ago I was bothered with eczema which broke out on my face in a rash. I took no notice of it at first until the trouble began to spread and the irritation caused me to scratch. My face was disfigured and the trouble lasted about three months. I tried different remedies but none seemed to do any good. I heard about Cuticura Soap and Ointment and purchased some, and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." HER NERVES BETTER NOW

Received Much Benefit by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chatham, Ontario.—"I started to get weak after my second child was born, and kept on getting worse until I could not do my own housework and was so bad with my nerves that I was afraid to stay alone at any time. I had a girl working for me a whole year before I was able to do my washing again. Through a friend I learned of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and took four bottles of it. I gave birth to a baby boy the 4th day of September, 1922. I am still doing my own work and washing. Of course, I don't feel well every day because I don't get my rest as the baby is so cross. But when I get my rest I feel fine. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and am going to keep on with it until cured. My nerves are a lot better since taking it. I can stay alone day or night and not be the least frightened. You can use this letter as a testimonial and I will answer letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. CHARLES CARSON, 27 Forsythe Street, Chatham, Ontario.

THE REVIEW

Cooksville Dots and Dashes

With nearly 6,000 people on the grounds, and with an array of more than 100 exhibits of the first quality, Cooksville Fair was unanimously declared a huge success. The showing of live stock highly pleased the judges, and in the ladies' section the cooking and needlework were well above the standard. Albert Hewson, of Malton, won the W. R. F. Parker Cup for the best horse on the grounds, and the winner in the baby show was John Robbins Halliday, aged 7½ months, of Clarkson. The handsomest married woman on the grounds was declared by the judges to be Mrs. F. Watson, of Dixie, while Miss Willie Couse, of Streetsville, was declared the best-looking girl.

Race Results
The results of the races were:
Pony race, under 13 hands—1, Fire, E. Williamson, Toronto; 2, Alarm, May, Cooksville; 3, Pretty Polly, Bovaird, Brampton; 4, Nina, J. Matthews, Meadowvale.
Fairs in the neighborhood had a tendency to keep the number of entries down in the horse races, but there was plenty of excitement, and the time was satisfactorily fast. The results were:
2.16 Class—
Alfred Elk, J. Bailey, Milton 1 1 1
Billy G., G. Watson 2 2 2
Darkey Todd, McDowell, Toronto 3 3 3
2.25 Class—
Opera Queen, F. Rowntree, Weston 1 1 2 1
Billy B., W. H. Rutledge, Port Credit 2 3 1 2
Posey, J. Haywood, Hornby 3 2 3 3

The Sunday school of Cooksville United Church will hold Rally Day services next Sunday morning, Oct. 4th at 10.30 a.m. Rev. W. J. MacQuarrie of Port Credit will give the address and the children of the Sunday school will provide the program. The Sunday school invites the parents and members of the community to come and help make their Rally Day service a huge success.

Congratulations to the Directors of Cooksville Fair, for putting on so fine an exhibition last Saturday. Only work, perseverance and able management can produce such good results.

The Young People's Society of the United Church was reorganized on Monday night as follows,
Pres.—J. Kingsbury
Sec.—Miss B. McCurry
Vice Pres. and Convenor of Devotional Com.—Miss Readman Literary—Miss Flewelling
Missionary—T. McCurry
Social—Misses L. Tolman and R. Harris
Pianist—Miss Smith.
The first regular meeting will be held on Monday next, the evening given over to devotional study.

School is closed this Thursday and Friday, as the staff is attending the Teachers' Convention in Brampton.

Chicken thieves are in the neighborhood. A resident of the first line had 40 Rhode Island Reds stolen from his roosts last week.

Several members of Cooksville L. O. L. No. 1181 were guests of their Islington brethren on Wednesday of last week. The first part of the evening was given over to degree work, the Cooksville officers performing and were warmly complimented by the District Deputy on their efficiency. A corn roast and social night followed. The visitors say they were royally entertained.

Announcement was made in the United Church on Sunday evening by Rev. Mr. Bellsmith, that his departure from this Circuit was expected to occur in a few weeks time and his successor would be Rev. Arthur Harden of Collingwood.

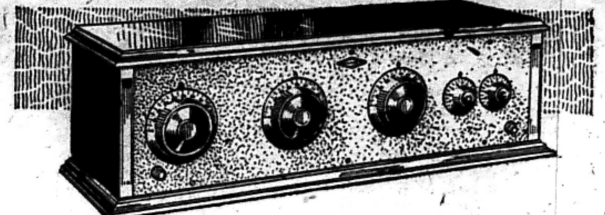

The Shale Brick Company's fine horses netted $550 in prize money from the Toronto and London Fairs.

Mr. Gordon B. Jackson was one of the speakers at a Conservative political meeting in Brampton on Saturday night.

Mr. Pelham Bellsmith left Wednesday for Parry Sound, near which place he will have charge of a preaching station until next summer.

The Young People of Dixie Presbyterian Church enjoyed a fine corn and weeper roast party at the home of Mr. Hector Death on Wednesday of last week. Mr. John Bell and sons entertained the young people of the village to a similar party last Friday night. Miss Dorothy Sander son provided a corn roast and party for nearly forty of her classmates and teachers from the Humberstone Collegiate, at her parent's home here on Friday.

He was jamming the cork into the neck of a pop bottle when the article broke and the corners of jagged glass pierced his wrist, cutting a severe gash and severing tendons. He has at present lost the use of his fingers on the injured hand.

Mr. Parker, the Liberal Candidate has opened committee rooms above Turner's garage. He also has an office in Lakeview.

The football game scheduled on Toronto was not played on Saturday but this coming week end the game in Long Branch will be a good one. It is the same day as the opening of Lakeview's new park so a good crowd can be expected.

Port Credit

All but three residents of Orchard Grove Park subdivision have signed a petition asking Port Credit Council to annex the subdivision so that their children could attend the Port Credit school which they could reach in five minutes in place of their present mile and a half walk to another school. See ad in this issue for the opening of Lakeview Park Saturday

Fire

Last Saturday evening, about six-thirty, the fire alarm was sounded, and a crowd soon gathered at the home of Mr. C. D. Evans, which was reported to be on fire, caused by an over-heated chimney. Mr. Eph. Evans threw a pail of water into the chimney just in time and put the fire out, thus saving this comfortable little home from destruction.

Liberal Meeting

Mr. W. R. P. Parker held a successful meeting in Streetsville Tuesday evening, when the Oddfellows Hall was comfortably filled with people of different political faiths. Mr. Wm. Couse occupied the chair. The first speaker was Mrs. Bonnell of Port Credit, who said she was sure Mr. Parker would be the next member for Peel at Ottawa. Mr. Parker was a man capable of getting what he wanted done. We want Peel put on the map and we are going to get it. We have a mighty force against us and we will have to fight but we will fight and we will win. She said if the Grits made a failure of anything the Tory papers reported it in big headlines, but if they made a success it was always set in small type and put on a back page. They say that Canada is not progressing, but the Hudson Bay Co. is erecting a five million dollar building at Winnipeg, which is one instance that proves to the contrary. Small men are hurting their party by their talk, but you will never hear Mr. Parker say anything against his opposition. Are we going to help to build up Canada and the British Empire, or are we going to let it go to pieces? Hon. MacKenzie King is the man to build it up. The great est love is service and Mr. Parker is showing his love for Peel by offering himself a candidate for parliament. Vote for Parker and good times, and Peel County will be prosperous. They say Parker is an outsider—but if he can do things for Peel as an outsider, what could he not do if he was elected? Mrs. Bonnell is a resident of Port Credit, is a farmer, and cultivates her own land. She said she would rather sell berries at 3c box after Parker was elected than 10c box under present conditions. Be true to yourself—vote for Parker and you'll have no crosses to carry. Mrs. Bonnell was presented with a bouquet of roses.

The chairman then introduced Mr. Parker, who gave his story of coming to Peel 12 years ago. He thinks Toronto will spread along the lake shore to Port Credit, and many country homes will be built along the Credit River. He told about the work done at Port Credit Harbor, about the new Park secured for the people of Lakeview and the different delegations which had interviewed him. He read from the Brampton Conservator an item charging him with bribery, but he would leave it to the right thinking people of Peel whether he was guilty of the charge. His idea of public service was to do things. If people want anything done, they should go to their member and he should stand up and do it. He also gave a good explanation of the flag incident and described the different flags of the Empire, telling of the many changes that had been made.

He told why the Premier went to the States when the war was on. He was 40 years old at the time—too old to enlist, was a poor man, and only had the income from his writings to support himself, his father and brother. He was called on by the U.S. government to help settle a strike in the iron and steel mines and after 3 months negotiations was successful in making a settlement. Mr. Parker referred to the charges made by Mr. Meighen, and said they were unworthy of a political leader. He said we have a great country and all we need is courage to go ahead and build it up.

The next speaker was Mr. Abel of Toronto, who has travelled all over Canada and the States and seemed to be well posted in political affairs. He dwelt on railways, the tariff and many other questions. The Tories say "Vote for the Conservatives and they will give you work" but Mr. Abel said if you vote for the Liberals they will give you twice as much work.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem and cheers for Hon. Mr. King, Mr. Parker, and Mrs. Parker, she also being on the platform.

"Love gives itself and is not bought."—Longfellow.

Arrived at his journey's end, finding himself amid the happiest conditions and the most exquisite surroundings, Garvock naturally found it difficult to realize the Klondyke in winter. To him it was now a region of enchantment and of dream; and whether or not he was to be successful in his search, he must for the remainder of his life be glad that he had penetrated so far into the heart of Alaska.

On the morning after his arrival he sallied forth from his comfortable hotel to find the Canadian Bank of Commerce, which was only a stone's-throw off. His inquiry for the manager was courteously met, and when he was ushered into the private room, he was politely received by a thin, clean-shaven man whose appearance suggested that of a lawyer in practice rather than a Klondyke banker.

"Morning! And what can I do for you, sir?" he inquired, with an undoubted American roll on the "r."

"My name's Garvock. You don't know me, and it would be hopeless to explain," said Peter quietly. "I've made a long journey from Scotland to inquire whether you know the whereabouts of a man named Affery—I don't know his Christian name, but I think I've got the surname right."

He added that because he saw the gleam of quick intelligence on the banker's face.

"You have, sir. Mr. Affery is a client of ours, and I do happen to know where he is at this very minute."

"Oh!" said Garvock with a little gasp of relief. "Can you put me on to him then? Is he anywhere in this district?"

The banker nodded, and made his mouth into a long, queer line which seemed to indicate that he knew much more than he would put into words, even under severe pressure.

"What do you want him for?—if it's a fair question," he asked as he pushed a chair towards Garvock, at the same time studying him keenly. "Scotland, did you say? Affery's Irish—at least three parts Irish. He has bought a place in his father-country in Donegal."

"Well, as a matter of fact, I don't know Mr. Affery, and my only interest in him is on account of a third party—a relative of my own, who was at one time in his company, and who, it is surmised, came out to Alaska with him."

"I see. Name of Rankine perhaps?" The blood rushed, full and hot, to Garvock's face. He knew now that though he was in close touch, he had hardly expected this.

"That's the name! He's my cousin. I'm here really on behalf of his wife and his other near relatives. He's been lost to them for over two years."

The banker nodded understandingly.

"I see. Well—he's been here in the Yukon with Affery for the last six months—let me see—yes, longer. He came in October, just before the navigation was closed. I believe he came down the Yukon on the last boat of the season."

"And isn't he here now?" asked Garvock feverishly.

"Not in the city. But he's gettable. He's no further off than on one of the creeks in the Klondyke."

ing, and some things that were almost incredible about the strange new land to which he had come.

He heard stories of the old Dawson days, when the gold-born city was in the full grip of lawlessness and lust; heard, too, how the troops came over the White Horse Pass to proclaim martial law; and many stories of personal heroism and adventure which put into the shade all the fiction of adventure he had consumed in his youth. In fact, he felt inclined to ask himself whether he was in his sober senses, and listening to tales of actual life.

CHAPTER XXXI.

GREATER LOVE.

On Friday, about ten of the morning, he got on board the stage once more, bound for the nearest point to Gold-water Creek. In the late afternoon, having left his small handbag at the rest-house, and received full instructions, he set out on foot to find Gold-water Creek and the shack where Alan Rankine and Affery were leading the simple life.

To the death, Garvock would remember that day of heavenly beauty: the entrancing blue of the skies, the vivid coloring on the mountain and wood, the glow of the summer sun on the snows, and the wealth of wild flowers—frail creatures of a day, many of them, but incomparably beautiful.

The only living thing he encountered on the way was an Indian squaw of unimaginable ugliness, who stared at him with the utmost stolidity and made no sign that she even recognized his existence. The sight of smoke a little distance off indicated the proximity of a wig-wam or shelter of some kind. Presently he descended upon the left bank of the Klondyke River, and began to find more signs of life.

Here and there he saw the ruins of a tumble-down shack, the remnant of a disused gold dredge, a heap of tin pannikins and cans, eaten through with red rust, and at rare intervals a thin line of smoke curling upward to the sky, indicating that humanity was to be found in these strange and desolate solitudes.

Presently, low down upon the creek, he came upon an old grizzled man sitting on his hunkers, a black and foul pipe in the corner of his cheek, and a pannikin in front of him, in which he appeared to be washing the precious dust.

The ice was moving out of the Klondyke now, and its mid-channel was clear, but at the edges it had to be broken and pushed aside to get at the running water—no difficult task, now that a sun of daily-increasing intensity was blazing high in the heavens.

To this dishevelled and uncouth old figure Garvock addressed himself civilly, asking for the location of Affery's shack.

He stood up stolidly, and without uttering a single word, pointed with a skinny and blackened hand, from which two fingers had gone in the frost-bite, to a little wooden frame house hanging sheer on the edge of the bank overlooking the river. It was about five hundred yards distant.

Garvock thanked him, and pondered whether he might offer some honorarium for service rendered, but was restrained by the reflection that perhaps he might be offering alms to some Bonanza king, who would scorn it.

As he walked away face to face with the fact that so short a distance now intervened between himself and the man he had made such a tremendous journey to find, he was overcome by that strange sort of reluctance which causes men of his nationality and temperament to shrink from scenes of emotion or personal feeling. It is within the mark to say that that was quite the most poignant moment in Peter Garvock's momentous undertaking.

But pulling himself together, he advanced in a straight line towards the indicated shack. It stood alone in the midst of a clearing, with a hill rising behind it, every available inch of which was ablaze with flowers. In front lay the winding river and hills upon hills beyond, with snow-peaks rising to the sky.

He marched on, stumbling now and again over some rut in the track, and keeping his eyes fixed on the half-open door. And, presently, it was drawn back from within, and a man came out—a long, gaunt man, in top boots into which his trousers were pushed, and a digger's shirt of grey flannel, open at the throat, and guiltless of a collar.

But the face, save that it was thin, had hardly altered. At sight of its ineffable sadness, something gripped Peter Garvock by the throat, and he could have stood still in the roadway and cried like a child.

The beautiful head was quickly turned, a pair of startled eyes dwelt on the face of the approaching stranger, then ensued silence, absolute and profound.

Alan Rankine looked precisely as a man might look who suddenly found himself face to face with some denizen of another world.

In the last week he had dwelt much among dreams and shadows, and listened by day and through the silent night watches to the meanderings of a sick and dying man, and he had now no doubt that his imagination had run away with him.

But this wraith was very real, for presently it stepped nearer, and with outstretched hand spoke these words: "It's Peter Garvock, Alan—come to take you home!"

"Peter Garvock!" stammered Rankine. "But how have you come? How did you know I was here?"

"I made it my business to find out, old chap," said Garvock joyfully, for now that Rankine spoke, the strain of the moment almost anguish in its intensity, was relaxed.

"I don't understand," said Rankine dully. "It's the queerest thing I've ever heard—that you should seek and find me here!"

"There's nothing queer about it, Alan," said Peter Garvock, still cheerfully. "Let us sit down here and just talk it out."

He made for a bench in front of the shack, but Rankine looked round at the door with a somewhat wavering smile.

"There's a dead man inside, Peter. My pal—the best pal ever man had in this God-forsaken world!"

Peter looked aghast.

"Affery?"

Rankine nodded; then all at once, as if feeling the infinite comfort of a hand on a friendly eye, he put his hand on Peter Garvock's arm.

"Let us go into the scrub a bit, and sit down. Peter Garvock in the flesh on the Klondyke! Gosh, but it's a funny world!"

He laughed then, the strangest laugh! It was without mirth, and sounded, in Garvock's ears, sadder than tears. He cast a swift glance at his cousin's face, which Alan caught and fully understood.

Making Music Well-Balanced Feature in Sunday School.

"A very essential feature in a well-ordered Sunday School is the music," claims a superintendent who is in a good position to judge. "There is a vast difference," he claims, "between jangle and music."

"The very best kind of music only," he says, "should be found in the school. There is so much meaningless stuff printed under the name of good music, which is only jingles. There is no inspiration to be found in words or tune."

Music which causes the feet to move and the body to sway should be avoided in the Sunday school service. This is characteristic of the jingle stuff, and is but another means of adding to the disorder of the Sunday school life.

For example, we have not infrequently seen boys during the reading of the lesson and recitation period hum one of these catchy songs, and keep time by moving their arms and swaying their bodies and stamping with their feet, much to the amusement of the other teachers and the annoyance of the teacher. Such antics not only added to the disorder of the school, but at the same time prevented serious study. We need bright music in the school, but worshipful, inspirational and dignified music which will instill within the soul that spirit of reverence."

Don't you think a man's character can be found out by reading his palm?

"A better way is to ask his neighbors, I think."

A Mining Problem.

A youth began work in a mine, and his first job consisted of driving one of the pony wagons used for carrying the coal to the elevator.

He got along very well indeed until one day he came to a place where the roof of the "gallery" was far too low to allow the pony to pass. Consequently, he took a pick and commenced to hack away part of the roof.

Immediately a foreman came on the scene and asked what he was doing. The lad explained that he was making a way for the pony to pass.

"Now, that's a very dangerous thing to do," said the foreman. "You might bring the whole roof down. What you ought to do is to cut away the floor."

"D'ye think I'm a fool?" retorted the lad. "It's the pony's head that won't go through—not his feet."

Two hundred and two, two thousand two hundred and ten tons of fish pass through Billingsgate market yearly.

ARE GAMBLING or INVESTING? YOU

When you buy speculative shares which have no Earning Record and no Market Value you are simply gambling—with the overwhelming probability that you will lose your money. Why take this long chance when you can invest your savings in sound, dividend-paying securities of known value and earning power (always readily marketable) and be safe. You can do this by availing yourself of our

Pay In A Year Plan

(Example, $500 Invested).

$500 Invested (pay in a year) will buy the following securities:

20 SHARES Canadian Industrial Alcohol	YIELDING 8.9%
10 SHARES Steel of Canada	YIELDING 7.7%
10 SHARES Canadian Car Foundry (Preferred) ...	YIELDING 8.6%

Assuming the market on the above shares advances 10 points within a year, your profit would be $850 plus dividends paid.

(Other group selections for smaller or larger sums on request.)

Our new booklet, "The Road to Financial Independence," gives a complete record of Canadian dividend-paying securities, with their high and low market prices, and explains how you can start investing small or large sums with absolute safety by our "Pay in a Year Plan." Send for it to-day. No obligation.

PRACTICAL AND DAINTY.

A very dainty frock for the little tot, and a most practical apron for her older sister have been evolved from the simple design of pattern No. 1177. Very clever effects may be obtained by combining contrasting color materials and using fancy trimming braids to make the frock. In this instance a plain material was chosen, and the sleeve section joined to the front and back with colored silks in a blanket-stitch. The same stitch outlines the round neck and the top of the patch pockets. A wide sash is joined to the sides, tying in a bow at the back. To make the apron, the sleeve section is omitted and the corners of the front cut round. Sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8 years. Size 4 years requires 1 1/2 yards of 32-inch, or 1 1/2 yards of 36-inch material. Price 20c.

The designs illustrated in our new Fashion Book are advance styles for the home dressmaker, and the woman or girl who desires to wear garments dependable for taste, simplicity and economy will find her desires fulfilled in our patterns. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

HOW TO ORDER PATTERNS.

Write your name and address plainly, giving number and size of such patterns as you want. Enclose 20c in stamps or coin (coin preferred; wrap it carefully) for each number, and address your order to Pattern Dept., Wilson Publishing Co., 73 West Adelaide St., Toronto. Patterns sent by return mail.

Keep Minard's Liniment in the house.

Soap must never be rubbed on to white silk, but must be dissolved in the water before you begin to launder the garment. Rinse in warm water. To this you may add a few drops of blue ink to prevent a yellowish appearance.

Fifty-Fifty!

The Secretary of State for Air, Sir Samuel Hoare, told an amusing story a little while ago of an airman who took a friend for a trial flight at a Hendon gathering.

When they were about 3,000 feet up, the pilot executed a nose-dive.

"There!" he exclaimed, as he righted the aeroplane. "Jolly exciting, wasn't it? I bet you that fifty per cent of the people down there thought we were falling."

"Very likely," said his passenger. "And fifty per cent of the people up here thought so, too."

WHAT HAPPENS TO THE OIL IN YOUR CAR?

Two Things Are Continually Occurring When It is in Use.

BY V. C. PARKER.

Lubricating oil is the life blood of your engine. Stop the oil circulation but a moment and your motor is gone. An autopsy at the nearest garage may disclose complications such as scored cylinders, burned bearings and the like, but the lack of oil will be self evident.

So well recognized is this danger that most cars are now provided with a visible oil gauge as a sort of mechanical pulse for the engine, by means of which you can assure yourself, from time to time, that oil circulation is normal. Few engines fail, these days, from a lack of oil.

But suppose the blood stream becomes poisoned and instead of circulating a life-giving, wear-saving flow of clean oil, it carries a thin dirty stream laden with particles of abrasive grit. The oil gauge will continue to show normal circulation and there will probably be no sudden and spectacular breakdown of the engine but, little by little, the working parts become infected and an insidious disintegration, heralded by sundry knocks and rattles creeps upon it, until at the end of a few thousand miles a major operation, known in automobile circles as a "complete overhauling" is necessary to make it again deliver quiet and satisfactory service.

If you would avoid such a situation as I have described, you must see that your engine has not only plenty of oil but that it is clean oil that is being circulated when your motor runs.

Two things are continually happening to the oil in your engine when you use your car. It is constantly thinning out or losing its lubricating body, and it is constantly accumulating abrasive particles of dirt. Engineers apply the terms "Dilution" and "Contamination" to these conditions.

Dilution is due to the presence in the lubricating oil of considerable quantities of gasoline. It accumulates faster in winter than in summer; more rapidly in cold weather than in warm. It is at its worst in cars driven by physicians or salesmen, who make frequent stops and starts, allowing the engine to cool down in between. It frequently comes so pronounced that the engine apparently uses no oil at all and the crankcase seems to be full even after several hundred miles, but an examination will show that the oil is thin and black and has entirely lost its slippery feeling. It is no lubricating "body." The fact that an engine is apparently using less than a normal amount of lubricating oil is generally an indication of severe dilution.

CAUSE IS A MYSTERY.

How does the gasoline get into the oil to thin it out? To many people who are familiar with the results of dilution, the cause is still a mystery.

When you started your car this morning, particularly if it had stood all night in a cold garage, you pulled out the "chocker" before you started to crank it, and very likely you drove several blocks before you considered the engine warm enough to run without using the choker to some extent. The "chocker" simply gives your engine an additional amount of gasoline, probably from three to ten times as much as is necessary to form an explosive mixture. You use a "rich" mixture on a cold day because the air does not contain heat enough to readily vaporize the gasoline and you must have a vapor to get started.

But what happens to the remaining gasoline that enters the engine cylinders in liquid form? It condenses on the cold cylinder walls and dissolves the lubricating oil off of the piston rings. On the down stroke of the piston, some of it is carried down into the crank case to mix with the oil there.

Now we depend on the oil around the piston rings to form a seal and make our cylinders gas tight, as well as to lubricate the moving parts, and if this oil seal is dissolved by gasoline, we no longer have a tight cylinder. More gasoline and even the products of combustion can then work their way past the piston rings and into the crank case.

Gasoline and oil are chemically very similar, both being products of crude petroleum, and is very easily dissolved in gasoline in any proportion. That is why we use it as a cleaner to take grease spots out of our clothes.

Any gasoline reaching the crank case is immediately absorbed by the oil and makes it just that much thinner. As the oil gets thinner it loses its "body" and becomes a poorer and poorer lubricant. This thin oil does not give as good lubrication as thick oil, and more wear takes place between the moving parts of the engine. Further, this thin oil does not make as good a piston seal as thicker oil and therefore allows more gasoline to work past the piston rings the next time the car is started.

In other words, the effects of dilution are cumulative. The more gasoline getting past the piston rings the greater the dilution. The greater the dilution, the more gasoline will get past, until the process becomes a vicious circle and tends to continue indefinitely as long as you stop and start your car.

Contamination works in the same way. The thinner oil, containing gritty particles causes greater wear and greater wear produces more gritty particles of metal to be picked out by the oil. Contamination is frequently aggravated by quantities of road dust and fine particles of carbon which also work past the piston rings and get into the oil.

Some engineers claim that the thinning out of the oil by dilution would have but little effect on the engine if contamination could be prevented and the oil kept clean. Other engineers are just as positive that the fine particles of dirt which constitute contamination would be harmless if the working parts were separated by a film of thick undiluted oil.

Engineers may take their choice of these theories, but the repair man requires no higher mathematics to demonstrate the results of operating an engine on thin, dirty oil. He sees too many motors which show evidence of excessive wear after a few thousand or, in some cases, only hundreds of miles.

Now that we know the dangers of running our engines on diluted and contaminated oil, what can we do about it?

WHAT IS THE REMEDY?

This question has been the subject of extensive scientific investigations on the part of experts for the past three or four years, and these learned gentlemen, after much experimenting, are now able to draw some definite conclusions which can be used by the average car owner to prevent these troubles to some extent.

Briefly, these engineers have found that the causes of dilution, in the order of their importance are as follows:

1. Operating engine at too low a temperature.
2. Excessive use of the choker.
3. Use of an over-rich mixture.
4. Use of poor gasoline which does not vaporize readily.

To make practical application of this information and avoid additional repair bills as far as we can, let us resolve for the good of our engines to:

First: Keep the engine warm by covering the radiator in cold weather, or even by throwing a robe over the radiator until the water gets hot after starting up on a cold morning.

Second: Use the choker only when necessary and never drive with it on. A motor in good mechanical condition should not require excessive choking to start.

Third: Use the cleanest mixture at all times and if possible overcome the temptation to "give her more gas" every time the motor spits on a cold morning.

Fourth: Buy gasoline from a dependable refining organization which maintains a uniform product.

Finally, we must recognize the fact that we will always have a certain amount of dilution and contamination of our lubricating oil under even the best operating conditions, and that eventually the oil in the crank case will become too thin and dirty to provide proper lubrication and prevent wear. When this time arrives there is nothing to do but drain out the dirty oil, throw it away, and refill the crank case with clean, fresh oil of the proper grade. In winter, this should be done every five hundred miles to be safe, and even more often for cars which are started and stopped a great deal in cold weather.

Oil is cheaper than bearings and in this case it certainly pays to follow the manufacturer's instructions.

When Manure Starves a Crop.

Manure applied fresh from the stable usually works a temporary injury to a new-planted summer crop. Manure, like cheese, reaches perfection through a ripening process. The ripening of manure is brought about through the work of countless bacteria.

When manure is applied to land when in a green or new state bacteria sets to work ripening it right in the soil. In the main these bacteria are working at the job of breaking down the straw or other cellulose material in the manure. Such material is not a very well-balanced ration for bacteria. They need extra nitrogen in the diet, so they proceed to take this nitrogen from the soil.

When fresh manure is applied to the land in the summer, when the temperature is at a height to encourage bacterial growth, these tiny denizens of the soil will take up in their bodies practically all the available nitrates. A plant can't get nitrogen which is tied up in the carcass of a bacteria.

A young seedling put out at the same time as fresh manure is therefore forced to go on a low nitrogen diet for the first month or six weeks. Finally the bacteria finish ripening the manure and themselves die and become available as plant food. But while the manure-ripening process is going on there is really far less nitrogen available in the land than if no manure had been put out.

The moral is that fresh manure should never be applied to land just as a crop is planted. The manure should either be composted before application or else go out several months before the crop.

SPORTS FOR AUTUMN DAYS

FOX AND GEESE.

The players choose one of their number to be the fox and one to be the gander. The rest are all geese and stand in a long single file behind the gander, each with hands on the shoulders of the player in front, the first one's hands on the shoulder of the gander. The object of the game is for the fox to tag the last goose in the line, who then becomes fox.

But this is not an easy thing, for the gander and the long line of geese all try to protect the last goose. The gander will dodge around in front of the fox with his arms outspread sideways to bar the fox from dashing back toward the line of geese; and of course whenever the gander moves, the line has to move with him, being a continuous chain. If the chain is broken the fox wins.

If the fox gets past the gander, then the end goose will try to make the line double back to get out of his way, or the geese in front will loop the line to bar his progress.

WHEEL FISHING.

Did you ever fish with a water wheel? You probably exclaim, "How in the world can I fish with a water wheel?" This is how you do it:

A small shaft is set up across the stream with a paddle wheel on one end. If the stream is rather wide, the shaft is cut in two and a wheel put at each end. Fish lines, with floats, hooks and sinkers, are attached to the shaft. Then as the wheels turn the lines are slowly drawn upstream until they are completely wound up.

Use a double set for wide streams. For creeks, only one shaft need be used. The shaft should be a light rod of hardwood. Cut out a block of wood two inches thick and about four inches square for the paddle wheel hub. Bore a hole through it for the shaft. The shaft should fit tightly so it will turn when the wheel does.

Each wheel has four paddles of tin. The spokes are of either light rod iron—stiff wire will do—or straight-grained wood about half an inch in diameter and twelve or fourteen inches long. Set these in holes bored in the wheel hub.

Now drive stakes across the stream and either bore holes through them near the tops or notch them for the shaft.

It will take only a few minutes to let out the lines again after they have been wound up. Set them about four feet apart on the shaft, and if several hundred feet of line are to be used, it will be well to place tin disks on the shaft four inches apart on each side of the line so that it will wind up in one place and prevent fouling.

When the wheels stop turning or actually revolve in the opposite direction you may rest assured that you have a fish on a line.—D. R. V. H.

A Pond for the Farm.

There are many farms that have no dependable running ditches or other available watering places for the live stock. Then, too, a good pond serves as a bath for the hogs, as a means where the horses and cows may stand and keep the flies off of their feet and legs. This is a service that cannot be estimated in dollars and cents. The significance of it may be partly realized by watching the farm animals on a hot day as they enjoy such an experience as a pond offers, in apparent happiness and contentment.

A great deal of time should be spent in deciding upon the site, as this is the most important element in building a pond. Drainage is another factor that should be looked out for before constructing the pond. A pond to be sanitary may have to be drained and cleaned. With the above factors in mind choose a place that is low and one that will not receive too much surface drainage, as there is a possibility that the mud and soil from the adjacent hillside will be carried to the pond and fill it up.

The time to make the pond is this fall when the ground is dry. If there is a flowing spring that may be made over into a pond it will be much more serviceable.

In digging the pond be sure that it is deep enough but that there are no "jump-offs" or sudden deep places where the animals might get into deep water and drown.

Efficiency crept into shops after sensible book-keeping found its place in the offices of manufacturing concerns. Farming will have to pass the same stages of evolution. It is coming, for the subject of farm accounts is now being promoted in the country schools. The plan is to teach this subject in the habit-forming seventh and eighth grades.

The muscles of a bird's wings are, proportionately, twenty times more powerful than those of a man's arm.

A NEW ERA FOR FARM WOMEN

Economic, Social and Cultural Conditions on the Farm Are Improving.

BY J. T. HORNER.

The discussion was about the illa and welfare of agriculture. Women were there who had spent years of toil in rearing a family and doing a woman's work on a farm. They showed stains of weary toil and self-sacrifice undergone, that their children might have a better lot in this world. Their hands gave signs of doing tasks which are thought of as belonging to men. Their faces showed cuts of sharp winds, the bites of cold and the blisters of heat.

These women were the kind that made the conquering of the wilderness possible, for without woman the farmer is helpless. These women were the kind who underwent hardships and suffering of the hour in hope of better things in later life. They faced privation, loneliness, and hard toil, to the end that a civilization be founded and the frontier be beaten farther and farther back.

At this meeting these women were looking forward with hope of a better agriculture in the future, as their mothers looked forward with hope in the pioneer days. They had faith in agriculture and their desires were to remain on the farm.

Regret was expressed that the farm boy and girl were being educated away from the farm. It was thought that some effort should be made to educate these growing children in such a way that they would prefer farm to city life.

CHANGES IN FARM WORK.

The lures of the city and attractiveness of city employment have two influences on rural life and rural people. In the first place, it takes the strong, virile young manhood and womanhood of the rural community and it causes a shortage of labor on many farms.

In pioneer days much more labor was needed on the farm than at present. The land needed clearing. There were fences to build, land to plow and drain, houses and barns to build, and many operations to perform which are now done in the town.

The changes which have come about in industry during the past one hundred years, have caused many of the operations once performed on the farm to be done in the city factory. Machinery is made in the city. Flour is made at the mill and in many instances is baked into the loaf before it gets to the farm. Wool is washed, spun, woven, and made into cloth. Feed for live stock comes from distant sections of the country. The farmer's meat is no longer a product of "butchering day," but comes from one of the large packing centres.

There are not so many people needed on the farms to-day, because there are fewer things done in the country. Also, the general use of improved machinery makes it possible to get along with less help.

This trend of population from the country to the city is just a natural consequence of our national development. It is not due to the use of city text books in our country schools or the farm boys and girls being educated away from the farm. Economic conditions and economic changes are the reasons for the trend away from the farm.

There are many attractions about city life which appeal. The vigorous, rapid life in the city appeals to youth more forcibly than the quiet hard toil of the farm. The vim and vigor of youth seeks the activity of city life, longs for the new sights and is lured by the recreational side of life within the town. Youth is ever eager to see new things and learn. The city, with its many phases of industry, commerce, and pleasure offers wide fields for new experiences. Industry in the city also offers a greater immediate reward for the services of the young man or woman, so naturally the trend of population is cityward.

Farm folks who have toiled a lifetime to clear up and improve a farm, dislike to see their children leave and go to town. Every man really wants to establish an estate and family which will continue down through the generations. This, in his mind, should be on the old farm where he has spent his life of toil. The family home for years to come should be on the old farm where the pioneer has given his life labor. These old pioneer farms have really a part of the character of the men and women who have wrung them from the wilderness. The children like the dear old farm, but it is not a part of their lives as it is of their parents. It does not mean the same years of labor and hardships. Youth looks to the future. Age looks backward. Where the brightest prospects are there goes youth, while sentiment perishes.

FARM VS. CITY REWARDS.

In the march of economic progress, family ties, ambitions, ideals, go by the wayside. Youth forges ahead into those activities which seemingly offer the most. Mothers and fathers back on the farm may regret the movement from the country to the city, but it will continue just as long as the city offers more comforts and a fuller life. Youth should be taught the real conditions in the city and be able to compare the rewards of city and farm occupations followed for a lifetime rather than compare the weekly wages.

The past generation experienced the change from a hand to a machine agriculture, and from a self-sufficing to a commercial agriculture. The generation prior to that forged its way into the wilderness and made the development of a civilization possible. During both these periods the tasks of the farmer were hard. He lived a strenuous life and underwent many hardships. The signs of the times seem to indicate that the agricultural accomplishments of this nation during the next generation will be a popularization of science among rural people and a marked improvement in living conditions, social life, and culture on the farm.

The day of the farm woman is about to dawn. Not much longer will she be expected to toil like a slave, live in undesirable quarters, deprive herself of wholesome social life, and forego those dainties and cultural things dear to every woman's heart.

The fruit of the vision of the farm women of days gone by is on the tree. The harvest is about to be gathered and with it will come the rural life which has, heretofore, existed mainly in vision.

THE TEST OF SPORTSMANSHIP

There are few things in this world that go as far in developing good sportsmen as do our county fairs. It is here that our young live stock men get their first lessons in showing live stock, and naturally they have much to learn.

It takes a great deal of grit and determination and nerve and cleverness and hard work to take live stock to the fairs and prepare them to win the "blue" in competition. There is but one "blue" in each class and after fighting hard for it, it is not easy to let the other fellow take it. Here is the test of a good sportsman:—to work and strive and fight for the prize, and then, if he must accept the red or the white or the green in the same spirit as the blue.

It takes courage and patience, a strong spirit of fairness to be a good loser. The act of doing one's best at these fairs is where the benefit comes in, and then to take defeat gracefully for ourselves and our choice animals is the test of the real sportsman.

First vs. Second Year Queens.

An experiment conducted for two years by the Dominion Apiarist at Ottawa shows that the average crop of honey obtained from ten colonies headed by a queen less than one year old was larger than that obtained from the same number of colonies headed by a queen in her second year. In 1923 the crop obtained from the yearling queens was 243 pounds, 2 ounces greater than that obtained from the queens in their second year. In 1924 the difference was 379 pounds, 12 ounces in favor of the young queens.

COOKSVILLE

The following report of Cooksville Fair was crowded out last week.

The baby show was one of the great events of the afternoon, Dr. L. G. Brayley, of Port Credit, assisted by Mrs. E. Bryans and Mrs. G. E. Dyer, awarding the prizes to John Robert, 7½ months, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Holliday, Clarkson; Margaret Smart, 8 months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Smart, Summerville; Howard James, 5 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Prescott, Clarkson; Olive Muriel, 5½ months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Hepton, Cooksville; Richard, 12 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Guthrie, Dixie.

Outstanding visitors on the ground were S. Charters, M.P.; W. R. P. Parker, Councillor J. H. Finch, Miss Helen Beardmore, Meadowdale; Rev. F. Vipond, Streetsville; Warden Leslie Pallett, Rev. F. M. Bellsmith, Cooksville; Rev. H. V. Thompson, Erindale; Ed. Orr, Edward Burns, J. R. Fallis, John Curtis, Toronto; Arthur Johnston, Islington.

Unconsciously were the married ladies and the single ladies parading for a prize, the judges making the award just before the close of the fair to Mrs. Fred Watson, Dixie, and Miss Willa Couse, Streetsville. After the horses had left the ring decorated automobiles were judged, the winners being Stanley Patchett, Cooksville, and F. Fenwick, Brampton.

The poultry classes deserved all the attention bestowed on them by people who are critical because poultry raising goes hand in hand with the gardening industry of the district. The birds shown were good to look at and the variety shown added interest to the display. Plenty of game birds, bantams, pigeons, with rabbits were on view. The heavy winners were A. E. Waldie, 11 firsts, 2 seconds, 3 thirds; V. Plunkett, 10 firsts, 8 seconds; Joseph Foster, 4 firsts, 7 seconds; M. A. Mitchell, 4 firsts, 2 thirds; Donald W. Pallett, 2 firsts, 5 seconds, 5 thirds; J. R. Fallis, 4 firsts, 4 seconds, 1 third; J. J. Pearson, 7 firsts, 4 seconds, 7 thirds.

Winners in route—Chas. Plunkett, W. E. W. Steen, Guthrie Bros., W. Haywood and Sons, Ed. Belford, C. E. Terry, Mrs. A. Harper, Mrs. Fenwick, Thos. Thorley, Wm. Pinkney and Sons, Mr. Smart, Rennie special, best display of vegetables, Chas. Plunkett; Mrs. Bryans' special, best field roots, Chas. MARRIED

Miss Annie Elizabeth Lyness, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lyness, Albion, was married this week to Mr. Wesley McMullin, also of Albion, by Rev. R. G. Davidson, Mono Mills, in the presence of immediate relatives of the young couple. The bride wore her travelling costume of navy tricotine, with hat to match, and carried rose carnations. Miss Minnie Lyness, in blue Canton with hat to match and bouquet of Carnations, was bridesmaid, and Mr. Samuel Arlow was best man. After a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Buffalo, Mr. and Mrs. McMullin will reside in Albion.

McKay—Watson

In Alton, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Watson, their daughter, Margaret Mae, was married to Alexander McKay, Niagara Falls, Ont., by Rev. J. S. Stevenson, pastor of the Alton United Church. The bride was in white satin, and wore her mother's veil, with orange blossoms, her bouquet being of Ophelia roses and Baby's Breath. The bride and groom left on a honeymoon trip to Ottawa and Montreal, the bride travelling in a navy ensemble suit trimmed with squirrel fur, and hat of black velvet. Mr. and Mrs. McKay will reside in Niagara Falls, Ont.

TORONTO

A wholesale clean-out of jewellery, valued at about $3,000, was made by burglars on Saturday night in the home of Harry G. Thorley, 394 Palmerston blvd., downtown. The burglars were visiting their daughter, Mrs. Thorley, having left the house early in the afternoon. Returning at eight o'clock in the evening they found the house broken open.

The jewellery taken is as follows: One lady's gold ring, set with an opal and twelve diamonds; one lady's dinner ring, Tiffany & Co.; one lady's gold ring, with rubies and diamonds; one hunting case gold watch, initials A.E.T. on back; one fine gold rope chain, 36 inches long; one fine gold rope chain, lavallier, set with pearl and green stone; one fine gold chain, set with amethyst and pearls; one pair of gold cuff links; one tie pin, set with pearl; three gold tie pins, pear shape; 1908 on back of locket; a gold fountain, a pearl ring, and other small articles.

BRAMPTON

A presentation to Inspector W. J. Galbraith, who is entering on his 16th year as inspector of Peel County, was a very pleasant feature of the closing hours of the annual convention of Peel Teachers' Institute. Miss Agnes Taylor read an address, and Mr. John Drury, of Belfountain, handed Mr. Galbraith a purse of $150, while Mrs. E. Bell, Cataract, gave Mrs. Galbraith a basket of chrysanthemums and orchids.

A very interesting illustrated lecture showing the application of pictures in teaching history, was given by W. E. Macpherson, of Toronto University, who followed this talk by one on the teaching of commercial and political geography. Henry J. Moore gave an illustrated lecture that will be very helpful to teachers planning beautification of their school grounds, and J. S. Newton gave a report on the recent Ontario Educational Association. Talks on health by Miss Isabel Galbraith, school nurse; on Japan, and her year of teaching there, by Miss Luella Rutherford, and an address on Teachers as Empire Builders in their influence on children, by Rev. Stanley Elliott, were the other numbers on the programme.

The new officers are: President, D. T. Appleton, Brampton; vice-president, Miss Eva Walker, Lakeview; secretary-treasurer, Miss C. Mary Fallis; executive committee, Miss A. McKenna, Inglewood; Mr. Newton, Port Credit; Miss A. Fleming, Brampton; auditors, Miss Margaret Dawson, Miss Doris Clarke, Brampton; delegates to O.E.A., Major A. Firth, Miss Rena Gordon, Port Credit; librarians, Miss Fallis, Miss E. Beatty, Brampton.

"We give you to this charge feeling sure that you will be a happy influence in the town and that your personality and the influence of your kind heart will work the way to peace and harmony where there have been dissensions. We know that your demeanor, tactfulness, kindness and firmness of character will sweeten the atmosphere, and we charge you to use every power that God has given you to that end," were the solemn words with which Dr. James Wilson, ex-pastor of Dovercourt Road Presbyterian Church, in the presence of a congregation of nearly five hundred people, Dr. Stuart Parker, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, Toronto, gave the charge to the minister, concluding with the words quoted, and Rev. Norman McEachren, former pastor of the church, and now of Bonar Church, gave the charge to the congregation.
Rev. D. T. L. McKerrill of Victoria Church, moderator of Presbytery, was in charge of the solemn service.

COMMUNITY CLUB

The Club met at the Coulson home on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 1st, with a large attendance. The afternoon was spent in sewing for the bazaar, and as if by magic, aprons and other articles flew from the fingers of the busy women. The bazaar is to be held in the white schoolhouse on the afternoon of Oct. 24th, when beautiful fancy work, aprons, night dresses, hand made mitts and socks, home made baking will be offered for sale. Refreshments will be served. The proceeds of the afternoon are to go toward helping any one in need or to make a happier Christmas for some needy family. Come and help with the good work. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Harold Beatty, Wed., October 14th. Mrs. Coulson served lunch at the close of the meeting.

We have heard some "tall stories" in our day, but the Wall Street Journal recently printed one that takes the palm. It read as follows:

Things grow big in Texas, including imaginations which, if given wing, would eclipse the efforts of Munchausen and Marco Polo. Recently one, that of a shy young man too, was loosed a little. He was showing a company of men from other states how Texas, compared with the rest of the country, is like the dog that wags the tail. One illustration was this: "If all the cattle in Texas were made into one steer the bovine mammoth could not pasture in the United States. His hind hoofs each larger than Ohio, would straddle Hudson Bay, while the fore feet would rest somewhere south of the Panama Canal. He would drink from the Amazon, stretch out his neck to graze from the pampas of Argentina and lick corn from off the Tropic of Capricorn. Light from the Southern Cross would glint his horns, while in the North, Aurora Borealis would make him switch his tail so that with it she could wipe the star dust from off the Northern Lights." Later, in discussing the statement, one of the survivors recalled that in pioneer days it used to be said that California had the smallest stoves and the biggest liars in the country. It was voted that California still held the record, for stoves.

CLARKSON

Justice Kelly had allowed the amendment claim of Margaret L. Fairbairn to stand in the action she has brought against Michael J. Sage, Mary Emma Sage and their son, Philip Sage, for $10,000 damages in respect of alleged negligence in the keeping of the Blue Dragon Inn at Clarkson, which was destroyed by fire. In the first claim plaintiff sued on the ground of negligence of the defendants, who were lessees of the property, but the Master allowed her to amend and allege conspiracy to burn the inn for the purpose of obtaining insurance to the amount of about $6,000.

Defendants appealed from the Master's order, but Judge Kelly allows the amendment to stand, saying that "the course of plaintiff's proceedings is suggestive of uncertainty on her part as to the real nature of her claim."

BRAMPTON

At the annual meeting of the Peel County Progressive Association, held in Brampton Saturday, it was decided that no candidate be put into the field, but that, on the other hand, no active support be given to either of the two present candidates. The speakers were W. C. Warren, Mrs. C. W. Wilson, Clarkson; E. A. Orr, Cheltenham, and Herbert Taylor, Cheltenham.

The officers elected are: President, D. H. McCaugherty, Streetsville; Vice-President, Cecil Gott, Albion, Mrs. Richard Boyes, Malton; Secretary-Treasurer, C. W. Johnson, Britannia; Directors, John Anderson, Albion; Thomas Sweeney, Caledon; Graham Crawford, Chingachouy; W. E. Calvert, Brampton; E. Cation, Toronto Gore; William Maxwell, Streetsville; E. G. Forster, Bolton.

The funeral took place to St. John's Cemetery, Castlemore, of the late Mrs. William Kersey, who passed away on Friday last after a protracted illness from nervous trouble. Deceased was formerly Agnes Lawrie, daughter of the late John Lawrie, and was born near Woodbridge 77 years ago. She came to Castlemore at the time of her marriage, 54 years ago, and has always resided in the section. Her husband died 14 years ago and she is survived by four sons, William and John, Toronto Gore; Thomas, Vaughan; Robert, Vancouver, and two daughters, Mrs. William Taylor, the Gore, and Mrs. Adam Agar, Nashville. Two sisters, Mrs. Robert Kellam, Vaughan, and Mrs. John Mattress, Woodbridge, also survive. Mrs. Kersey was connected with St. John's Anglican Church, Castlemore, during her long residence in the district and was one of its most honored members.

Love Gives Itself

THE STORY OF A BLOOD FEUD

BY ANNIE S. SWAN.

"Love gives itself and is not bought."—Longfellow.

CHAPTER XXXI.—(Cont'd.)

"I'm not off my nut, Peter, old man! Only—only up here, at the back of my head, a man gets a bit away from the normal. Tell me, how long is it since you left Scotland?"

"Five weeks yesterday."

"And—are they all well?" he asked, and the question fell with obvious halting and difficulty from his lips.

"They are all well. I am here, Alan, by your wife's leave, and with her blessing. She wrote to me the night before I started to wish me God-speed."

Something leaped in Alan Rankine's eyes—a hunger of the heart which was like a flame in its passion! It broke up the dead stillness of his face, banished the remoteness, brought him back, swift and sure, to the realms of living men.

"My wife! Then—then you know, Peter?"

"They all know. And she and Judy are at Stair together, waiting for you, and my immediate business in life is to get you to them as quick as I can."

Peter fumbled in his pocket, brought out the thin, gold-bound letter-case, and handed to his cousin the little note he had received from Carlotta at The Lees the night before he left it.

Thus and thus did Carlotta write:

"Dear Peter,—It is a great thing this that you are going to do—one of the great deeds of love and service which redeem life from its sadness, and lift it up. God will be with you, I don't doubt, because many will be praying for you in Scotland. For me—if it should be that the good God permits you to bring back my husband to Stair, then my debt will be one that never can, or will be paid. But I shall be content to owe it, because I know that it will make you a happier man. God bless you, Peter Garvock, and I am, till death,

"Your grateful friend,

"CARLOTTA RANKINE."

Having read these words, Alan rose to his feet, and still holding the same sheet in his fingers, walked away.

And Peter, understanding, sat still, looking after him, and the wonder of the whole story was upon his soul, like some flood that bore him away.

When Alan came back his face had taken on a new look—that of a steadfast soul which beholds the goal in front.

"You can have it now, Alan. Later, when you have something that is of more account, you can let me have it back."

Rankine gravely nodded, and opening the bosom of his shirt, placed the folded sheet within, handling it as a man handles that which is precious to him.

"Now speak, Peter. Tell me everything, for the hunger is gnawing in my heart like a ravening wolf! Speak till you are tired, for I will never tire of listening!"

Peter spoke, going back to the beginning of things, to the summer in which Rankine had left Scotland, giving a faithful recital of all that had happened to Stair, and those so dear to his cousin.

"It's an amazing tale, Peter, but the bit I don't get the hang of fully is how they can afford to go back to Stair to live. What miracle has happened in the meantime?"

"No miracle, Alan," said Peter, with an odd smile. "You saw Carlotta in New York, holding the most critical audience in the world in thrall? The woman who can do that puts money in her purse. It is your wife who has redesigned Stair!"

Rankine looked incredulous for a moment, then his face slowly flushed.

"Bless her! Bless her, ten thousand times! But—"

"She set out to do it," went on Peter Garvock, for now that atonement was possible, he would give it in full measure, pressed down, and running over!

"Judy told me that, from the moment you left Scotland, Carlotta set herself to do this, and because she held herself responsible for the parting of Stair—but it was I who was responsible for that! I, and no other."

"No, no! And, anyway, you've wiped it out to-day, Peter! By God, you have! For though I have it in my power to go back, and, if I choose, redeem Stair in full, it is a question whether I would have done it, but for you."

When a man has been here for a spell, Peter, at the Back of Beyond, clean out of all the things that matter in the lives of men, something happens to him; either he loses his sense of proportion, or he is clean lifted up to unimagined heights. He comes nearer God, I suppose, or else the Devil gets him. When I came out of the shack just now, I was not sure but that the Devil had me fast. You see, I've lost my pal, and what that means to a man on the Yukon—well, nobody but the man who has been through it can understand."

"But, after all, Alan," said Peter the practical, "mountains and gold—"

"It was his idea, and I—well—I hadn't much to say, and it's good life, Peter—the life of the wild for those who understand it. We lived like trappers on what we shot and found, and at night, shut down in the shack, we were as comfortable as any man could desire. It was Affery's real home. That castle he bought in Donagall never held him, nor ever could. He belonged to the wild."

"He was obsessed by the idea that there was gold hidden in this neighborhood—the fortune of a pal who built this very shack. Time and again he had come back to seek it, and those who knew about it took it as the harmless obsession of a chap not quite right here," said Rankine, tapping his forehead. "But it was more than a notion—he found it before he died."

"I have a sort of queer feeling about telling you this yarn, Peter, for you are a chap who deals in hard facts, and you'll find it difficult to swallow."

"Oh, no," Peter assured him cheerfully. "We're a long way from Scotland now, and it's possible to swallow anything!"

"Well, the winter went on. We had a grand winter, Peter, and here my soul, in a sense, came to itself. We had books out from Dawson, and we read and discussed everything under heaven, and I was as happy as a man could be who had a past he was afraid to look back on."

"There never was a day when the thermometer was higher than fifty below zero, and in the nights it sometimes fell to seventy."

"Can folks live through cold like that?"

Rankine nodded.

"It is possible, with suitable clothing and a house small enough to conserve the heat. Affery's chum, Arizona, built the shack down there, and held the spell of the Yukon are all very well, and I grant you their power in full, for I've felt it myself since I have been here, but you can't get away from the fact that there is a woman belonging to you at Stair, and that, at the present moment, she is neither a maid, wife, nor widow. And so right back you march with me—this very day, if I can take you!"

It was the right note to strike, and the red rose in Rankine's cheek again.

"You're right, Peter. But listen to the tale of the last two years, and then, perhaps, you will grant that there are seasons in a man's life when to shirk his responsibilities seems not only natural, but absolutely the only thing to do."

"When I saw Carlotta in the Manhattan Theatre that night, Peter, and realized the impassable gulf between us, something seemed to burn in my brain till I did not know who or where I was. I had only one object in front of me—to get clean away from New York, to put the whole breadth of the American continent—the world, if possible—between me and the woman whose life I had spoiled. I realized then—as you say—that she was neither maid, wife, nor widow, and that the wrong I had done her was irreparable."

"I had the idea of suicide when I got outside, but, somehow, I lacked either courage or resource—I can't tell. Anyhow, I had my chance, for my railway tickets were in my pocket, and I boarded the train at midnight, as I had intended to do, and I woke up in Toronto. I went on, but did not alight at Calgary, as I had intended, for there was one man in New York who knew that address, and from whom it might be possible for Carlotta to obtain it. I went on to Vancouver, and there I fell in with a Yorkshireman, who offered me a job on his ranch, a little east of the Rockies, and I found enough Calgary that I could have found the other man's place without difficulty. But I lay low and kept dark, and for nine months I was lost there, and was nothing more than one of a number set to certain tasks. I did well, for I liked the life, and, of course, I was at home in the saddle—a good life for the young and fit, a life which a man can live and keep his self-respect, though it leads nowhere in particular. Perhaps him for ever adrift from all ideas of home. I spent my days in the saddle, and my nights chiefly in the cook-house wagon, for we were away from the homestead, on the round-up, six weeks at a time. I could spin you a good many yarns about that bit of my career, but they'll keep. Perhaps—who knows?—some day, on Barasie Hill, we may sit on the march dyke and reel them off!"

Peter turned his head away, for a strange, salt moisture stung the eyes that had never known a tear since boyhood.

CHAPTER XXXII.

ALLAN'S STORY.

"Nine months of the ranch, then Keighley died, and I had to quit." Alan did not say how or why, though that part of his experience, and Rose Keighley's frank offer of a matrimonial partnership would have made no uninteresting chapter. "Then I tried the lumber camps, but that was the absolute limit! Gad! what brutes men are, herded together, cut off from all that's good. The mother's sons I've seen wallowing in the pit! I couldn't stick it. I quit that too; and all the time I was making slowly West, or to put it with absolute correctness, North-West, toward the Yukon and Affery. He said to me the night I bade him good-bye at the Central Station in New York that we should meet on the Yukon—and we did."

"I came here in October, and found Affery in Dawson City. It was the queerest meeting! I came down with the last boat of the season, and the pack-trail was grating her shins all the way down the river, and on the quay there stood Affery."

"So you've come!" was all he said, as casually as if we had met by arrangement. "I hoped it would be by this boat, for the trail and the stage in winter are not for the tenderfoot."

"Just as if he had been expecting me, see! And never a single question as to why or how I had come. He just laid hold on me, and the next day we came up to the shack."

"But that was the beginning of winter! You mean you wintered here?"

Rankine nodded.

"It was his idea, and I—well—I hadn't much to say, and it's good life, Peter—the life of the wild for those who understand it. We lived like trappers on what we shot and found, and at night, shut down in the shack, we were as comfortable as any man could desire. It was Affery's real home. That castle he bought in Donagall never held him, nor ever could. He belonged to the wild."

"He was obsessed by the idea that there was gold hidden in this neighborhood—the fortune of a pal who built this very shack. Time and again he had come back to seek it, and those who knew about it took it as the harmless obsession of a chap not quite right here," said Rankine, tapping his forehead. "But it was more than a notion—he found it before he died."

"I have a sort of queer feeling about telling you this yarn, Peter, for you are a chap who deals in hard facts, and you'll find it difficult to swallow."

"Oh, no," Peter assured him cheerfully. "We're a long way from Scotland now, and it's possible to swallow anything!"

"Well, the winter went on. We had a grand winter, Peter, and here my soul, in a sense, came to itself. We had books out from Dawson, and we read and discussed everything under heaven, and I was as happy as a man could be who had a past he was afraid to look back on."

"There never was a day when the thermometer was higher than fifty below zero, and in the nights it sometimes fell to seventy."

"Can folks live through cold like that?"

Rankine nodded.

"It is possible, with suitable clothing and a house small enough to conserve the heat. Affery's chum, Arizona, built the shack down there, and by Gad, he built it well! There isn't a chink or cranny in it where so much as a breath of wind can get through. It's lined, and interlined, and when the stove's piled high, and going merrily, it is as comfortable and warm as the heart of a man could desire! In March, when the cold is at its worst, at the time when more temperate climates are enjoying their spring, Affery got a bad cold."

"He was always out in the scrub, watching the wild creatures, shooting, when we needed fresh meat, but he never trapped anything! He said that was a cowardly and devilish way of treating dumb animals; and it was through kneeling for a long time at a trap to let loose a gopher that he got this cold."

"It was snowing hard, and he got it soaked into him, and next day his temperature was up. He got better of that, and was about again, but not so strong as before. He talked less about leaving the Yukon, and more—"

a great deal more—about Arizona's treasure. He was as set on discovering that before he died as other men are on accomplishing the objects of their ambitions! And the odd thing was that, after all, he did discover it just six weeks ago to-day!"

"No!" said Peter Garvock in the utmost amazement. "Then there has been truth in it, after all!"

"It was all true—absolutely so. Arizona told him about the gold on his death-bed, and when he was almost past speech tried to direct him where to find it. But he couldn't. The only thing Affery was able to make out was that it was somewhere near the shack. After Arizona died and at subsequent visits to the shack, he dug all about it. He took up the floor, took off the roof, and explored every likely nook and cranny. As a matter of fact, the nuggets were hidden on the overhanging bank of the creek, just below the house. I'll show you the hole later on. It was as cunning an arrangement as you could imagine—a regular little mine—yet so carefully concealed by the brush and the boulders that nobody could have imagined that there was a covert there even for a muskrat! But Affery saw one coming out under the brushwood one day, and exploring its hole, found the bag with the nuggets. Not only one bag, but three, packed full and bursting with their shining contents that had lain there, unknown to any human being, since Arizona's death in 'ninety-nine."

RIPLING SIDE-DRAPED GOWN.

A very charming model is this printed crepe gown in beige tone, with its rippling side-front drape in new pointed effect. The round neck and short sleeves are finished with a ruche fashioned of the material of the drapery, and a flat ornament is cleverly placed at the hip. The diagram portrays the simple design of the gown, which may be made with long sleeves. No. 1183 is in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Size 36 bust requires 4½ yards of 36-inch, or 3½ yards of 40-inch material. For short sleeves ¼ yard less material is required. Price 20 cents.

You will be surprised to see how quickly the garment shown in our new Fashion Book may be made by the home dressmaker. No expense has been spared to make our styles as representative in our patterns—the very best that can be produced by the most competent designers and cutters. "No - I've not boiled any garments since"

"A friend suggested that I stop boiling the clothes I washed and try Rinso, which I did, with such delightful results that I have not boiled any garments since then."

"I found that Rinso is excellent for removing finger prints from white paint and for washing all woodwork."

"It has cut my house cleaning troubles in half and consequently I felt that it was only your due to know that Rinso has a much bigger work to do in our house than just to clean the dirt from our laundry."

The makers of Rinso receive many such letters as this. For Rinso not only does the family wash merely by soaking—it is also excellent for many household duties, such as cleaning woodwork, scrubbing floors, etc. Order Rinso today.

Germs Against Germs. Malaria germs are bad, but paralysis germs are worse, and the two kinds hate each other. As between two evils, the lesser is preferable, so Professor Wagner-Jauregg, of Berlin, has found he can save patients from progressive brain paralysis by dosing them with malaria. After the malaria germs have killed all the paralysis germs the professor drugs the victims. The medical profession is, indeed, becoming more and more a matter of bacteriology.

Weston Won Finals Great Game at Brampton

Excelsiors fell two short of tying Weston for the senior championship of the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association in one of the bitterest fought struggles ever played in this town. Excelsiors won by 5 to 3, but as Weston was four up from the game last Saturday at Weston they win the round and championship by 10 to 8. The game here was witnessed by between 4,000 and 5,000 lacrosse enthusiasts from all over the Province.

On three occasions during the game the locals were two up on their opponents, but over-anxiety sadly handicapped them and they could not increase their lead. Especially was this noticeable with the younger members of the team, but nevertheless they acquitted themselves admirably in the gruelling battle. A free-for-all fight in the second period, in which Burton and Coulter started the trouble, was the most serious happening in the whole game, and police had to resort to the batons to bring it to a conclusion. The immense crowd swarmed on the field. Another fight between spectators in the last session caused a long delay and the malefactors were escorted from the grounds.

The game was sprinkled with penalties all through, with both teams suffering alike. In the early part of the game Excelsiors played a man short most of the time. The checking was fierce and merciless, and the bitter antagonism between the two teams was too evident by the deliberate fouling.

Weston in winning the championship can give the glory to Wilson, their goaler, and Bill Coulter. The former made scores of brilliant saves, while the younger Coulter boy was the best man on the field. He came through often to make stops when Wilson was out of his net, and his intercepting was heartbreaking to the Brampton attack. There is little to choose from in selecting stars from the Excelsiors. Every man was out there doing his very best to pull down the lead. Excelsiors had possession of the ball 60 of the 80 minutes' playing time, outshot Weston 10 to 1, and the most neutral fact present conceded that they were at least six goals better than the champions on the day's play. They checked hard, asked no mercy, and players of both teams will bear the marks for days of the strenuous fight for a championship.

The only goal of the first quarter went to Excelsiors, Reeve making a clever attack resulting in a goal. Gordon Coulter evened the score for Weston early in the second quarter. Machell registered for Excelsiors, and the half finished 2 to 1 for Excelsiors. Worthly, on a fast shot, put the locals two ahead, and then followed a bombardment of the Weston net. The visitors broke away after a loose play by the locals, Griffiths counted. Spencer evened the score for Weston in the last few minutes of the quarter. Staging a terrific attempt to pull down the Weston lead, Excelsiors practically made all the play in the last session. Far counted Excelsiors' fourth and Zimmer their fifth. But Wilson was too good for them and repelled repeated attacks in the last 10 minutes of the game.

Peel Juniors Plan For Big Day

The Peel Junior Institute and Junior Farmer Association are planning to stage their respective competitions in Cooking and sewing and Stock Judging at Brampton on Friday, October 16th.

Thanks to the generosity of many interested friends and organizations throughout the county, splendid prize lists have been prepared. The two standing highest in each competition will be given free trips to the Chicago International Live Stock Show and Junior Club Convention which is held the latter part of November. In addition to these individual prizes will be given those standing highest in each class and also to members of the ranking teams.

$850 in Prizes For County Match

The Peel County Plowmen's Association have issued their prize list for their first match which is being held on Friday, October 23rd, on J. Silverthorne's farm on lot 18, 3rd line west of Snelgrove.

The prize list in all totals over $850.00 and as there are a number of classes open only to Plowmen from the County of Peel this should bring out a large number of local entries.

The Mount Pleasant Ladies' Aid have consented to cater for the match and as the day of the match draws near it would seem that only good weather is needed to make Peel's opening match a huge success. Copies of the prize list may be secured from the secretary, J. E. White-lock, Brampton.

Engagements

Mr. David Cordingley, Streetsville, Ont., announces the engagement of his daughter, Florence Rubena, to Hartley William Cavell, M.A., of Toronto, son of the late William R. Cavell, and Mrs. Cavell of Toronto. The marriage will take place the latter part of October.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Charters, Brampton, announce the engagement of their elder daughter, Dorothy Norine, to Harold Hendry McFarland, of Akron, Ohio, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. McFarland of Toronto, the marriage to take place early in November.

Cooksville

Don't forget the meeting of the Young People's League next Monday night, Oct. 12th, in the United Church of Cooksville at 8 p.m. Being missionary night the committee has arranged for an interesting evening. An address will be given by Mrs. Dodds, wife of Rev. Thomas Dodds of Dixie. The musical part of the program will be given by Mr. Cecil Carr of Cooksville. The Young People are trying to increase their membership. Everyone come and try to encourage them in their work.

Mr. W. Clarence Dennis of Britannia, President of Streetsville Junior Farmers is speaking on "Junior Farmer Organization in Peel County" at the Junior Farmer Conference at the Kemptville Agricultural School, Oct. 8 and 9. The object of this conference is to stimulate interest to get organized in the Counties of Eastern Ontario. Mr. Dennis will tell of the activities of the Streetsville Juniors particularly.

SAVE THE RINK

The only chance that Streetsville has to secure a skating rink is about to be ruined for the want of a little money. The old rink owned by Mr. Ward will be torn down unless the town realize what this means and gets busy to prevent it.

It must be plain to the people of Streetsville that a rink is something we shouldn't be without. Of course the majority of people approached on the subject think it nothing to do with them, so why should they bother about it. If they can't skate themselves, surely their is some enjoyment in watching others, and knowing that they have helped provide it. Think how much easier the parents would rest at home if they knew their children were on the rink instead of taking chances skating on the river, where they might make a slip some time and then, the cry goes up "Why haven't we a rink."

Last year there was a movement on foot to try and raise money to purchase the rink, but it was met with very little success. What seems to be the trouble with the men of Streetsville, don't they want to see the town grow, aren't they anxious to have a hockey team to bring visitors and money to the place. Do they want to have the young generation of the town leaving as soon as they are able to go where they can get some sport, where it is provided for them. Because that is what is going to happen, no young fellow, who has any pep in him at all, wants to sit beside the fire, popping corn or playing checkers on a winter's evening, when he should be out in the fresh air getting the exercise he so badly needs, and it is up to the town to look after these things. Why should Streetsville, with the material it has got, take a back seat when their is anything doing. Why is it necessary to always have to refuse when some other town wants us to play them a game of hockey, doesn't it seem kind of a shame that we should have to tell them we have no rink.

It isn't as if there had to be a new building erected, then there might be some excuse for a little hesitation, but we have the building, and it is a good one, for the size of the town. I have no doubt that some people will laugh when they read that, but those that do, don't know what shape the building is in. The rink does need a little repair, but from good authority all it needs is a little money and some willing work. Don't let some knocker put it into your head that the rink can't be fixed or that it wouldn't make a good job of it was fixed, see for yourself and then you will know. I have spoken to men about fixing the rink, and asked them what they thought about it, they didn't see how it was possible to make a job of it, it would fall down on the skaters some night, and a lot more of the same kind of talk. If the truth was known these men have not likely ever been near the rink.

It was a common occurrence on a Saturday night and often on other nights, to see one or two sleigh loads of boys and girls, and also car loads, pull out of town. Where do you suppose they are going? Why to some place where they can enjoy themselves, some place where there is amusement provided by those that have the interests of the younger generation at heart. These people are bound to spend money out of town that the merchants of Streetsville might just as well have had.

Now Streetsville, look alive, and don't let this opportunity slip, because it will be far harder to build a new rink than to fix the old one. If you don't keep the young people in town what will the town be like in a few years, and if you don't provide some sport to keep them here, then they will certainly go where they can get it.

DISTRICT NEWS

In the presence of some 500 persons, Lakeview Park, newly acquired from the Dominion Government by Toronto Township on a purely nominal lease, was officially opened here by Warden Leslie Pallett of Peel, Reeve of the township.

Addresses were made by W. R. P. Parker, Liberal candidate in Peel; Samuel Charters, former member and Conservative candidate, and T. L. Kennedy, M.P.P. In the parade, which opened the ceremonies, Mrs. George Bush of Lakeview had the best-decorated car, and Lakview School won the silver cup for the biggest turnout of pupils. In a girls' softball game, Beaches of Toronto, beat Bolton.

As a result of the motor car in which he was riding crashing into the rear of a Port Credit bus at Stop 34 on the Highway at 7.30 last night, Charles E. Ring of 535 Lake Shore Road, Mimico, is now lying in the General Hospital suffering from severe facial injuries occasioned by flying glass. The driver of the car, J. A. Ross of Yorkville Avenue, Toronto, was similarly hurt, but, after being taken to the hospital with Ring, was able to go home. Mrs. Ring and Mrs. Ross were in the car at the time, and escaped practically unhurt.

W. T. Ford
The citizens of Milton were shocked when it was learned that William Todd Ford, one of the town's oldest and most highly esteemed citizens, was found dead about 10 o'clock. He was found by Arthur Cannon while repairing a building owned by W. A. Chapman, near the curling rink. Mr. Cannon went home to get some tools and left Mr. Ford sawing a stick of timber on a sawhorse. When he returned he found the lifeless body of Mr. Ford lying on the ground. Dr. Sutherland gave the cause of death as apoplexy. Mr. Ford, who was in his sixty-ninth year, was a staunch Conservative, and in religion was a lifelong Presbyterian. He was unmarried, and is survived by four brothers: Andrew, of Durham; Thomas and James, of Milton; and John, of Oswego, N.Y., and two sisters, Misses Christina and Mary.

Services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. will be taken by Rev. Mr. Borland of Toronto.

Harvest Home Services were held at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Sunday, Oct. 4th, when Rev. Mr. Borland of Toronto, preached. The congregation in the morning was especially large, and good music was rendered by the choir, anthems of praise being sung at both services.

Mrs. Greig, leader of the choir, and Mr. Powrie of Brampton, contributed solos. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers, fruit and everything to show the cause for thankfulness on the part of the people for the bountiful harvest. The day will long be remembered by the churchgoers of St. Andrew's. Among the visitors from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Hill of Islington, Mr. and Mrs. Webster of Buffalo, N.Y., Mr. Harry Barber, and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Walker and son, Weylie, of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hall of Agerton.

Donald McEachern
The funeral of the late Donald McEachern, sixth line west, Caledon, took place to White Church Cemetery. Deceased was in his 62nd year and was born on the fifth line, the son of the late Ronald McEachern, one of the early settlers of the district. He is survived by his widow and one son, Elmer, at home; four brothers, Ronald, Malcolm, on the homestead; Archie, of the sixth line; John, Inglewood, and three sisters, Miss Sarah, at home; Mrs. P. and Mrs. J. McEachern, Eldon Station. Mr. McEachern was a Liberal and a Presbyterian.

PORT CREDIT
Raspberries, fresh off the bushes, were the treat John Dickert of the Mississauga Road, northwest of here, was able to give his household today. Yesterday Mr. Dickert, who has a small farm, and is especially interested in raising raspberries, picked five or six boxes of the little red berries from a few plants of the Cuthbert variety which he has in his one-acre patch. The berries were all of a good size, and very palatable, Mr. Dickert says.

A banquet and musical programme, interspersed with speeches, entertained an enthusiastic gathering of Royal Arch Masons at Port Credit when the chapter was visited by Walter H. Davis, Grand First Principal of the Grand Chapter of Canada. He was Grand Z and Grand Treasurer; Henry T. Smith, Grand Scribe E.; S. S. Forbes, Grand Superintendent of the Hamilton District; Dr. Austin Evans, Grand Superintendent Toronto, West District, and Dr. Walter G. Price, Past Grand Principal Sojourner.

Junior Institute
All girls who wish to enter the County Judging Competition at Brampton on Friday, Oct. 16th, should attend practice in church's Hall on Tuesday next, Oct. 13th, at 2 o'clock sharp. Miss McIntosh will be in charge.

Bowling Notes
There was a good attendance at the annual meeting of the Ladies Bowling Club Monday evening. The books showed a fine year financially and otherwise, as we had some exceptionally good games.

The following officers were elected: Pres.—Mrs. Longwell
1st Vice Pres.—Mrs. Cook
2nd Vice Pres.—Mrs. Smith
Treas.—Mrs. W. Couse
Sec.—Mrs. Clipperton
Assistant Sec.—Mrs. Munro

The ladies are making arrangements for the Winter Club. They are planning to have ten evenings holding them the 2nd and 4th Tuesdays. Come and join a real live euchre club. First meeting will be on Tuesday, Nov. 10, in the club rooms.

Obituary

The death occurred at his residence 346 Palmerston blvd, Friday, of Andrew Nelson, in his 74th year. He was a former well known builder and contractor in Toronto, from which business he retired several years ago. He was a life member of St. George Lodge A.F. & A.M., and also connected with the Home Circle. He is survived by his widow, who is a sister of Mrs. Jas. Irvine of Streetsville, and five sons. The funeral on Monday afternoon was largely attended.

The funeral of the late Thos. Goddard, held from the family residence on the Weston road to Riverside Cemetery Tuesday afternoon was marked by every evidence of sorrow on the part of the Mount Dennis people, the funeral cortege extending over a mile in length, and numbering among those present scores of leading men throughout the county. Services at the grave were in charge of Carlton Purple Star, L.O.L. 602, of which the late Mr. Goddard was a valued member for many years. He was the founder of the Mount Dennis Volunteer Fire Brigade, 30 members of which attended in a body.

Women's Institute
The regular monthly meeting of the Womens Institute will be held on Thursday, Oct. 15th, at the home of Mrs. Rodick at 30 sharp. Mrs. Aiken of Beeton will speak on "Manual Training for Boys."

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE THE REVIEW

Canada from Coast to Coast

Halifax, N.S.—Canada's apple crop for 1925 is estimated at 96 per cent. of 1924, or 2,643,869 barrels, as at the 1st of Sept. A gain of 90,502 barrels is shown from British Columbia, Quebec, New Brunswick and Ontario combined and a loss of 43,485 barrels from Nova Scotia. The estimated yield for 1925, by provinces, is as follows: New Brunswick, 55,433 bbls.; Nova Scotia, 975,176 bbls.; Quebec, 51,100 bbls.; Ontario, 862,860 bbls.; and British Columbia, 2,097,900 boxes.

Fredericton, N.B.—Crop conditions in this province are eminently satisfactory, according to a report of the provincial department of agriculture. The hay crop was exceptionally good. Pastureage is also good. Potatoes will be a fair crop, although the yield will not be as great as last year due to a smaller acreage.

Quebec, Que.—The city of Quebec will show a population of 118,500, it is expected, when the census that is now being taken is completed by the city assessors, this being a difference of 2,500 from figures contained in the official city directory for 1924.

Toronto, Ont.—Provincial Paper Mills, Toronto, are extending their market and recently shipped from their Port Arthur mill ten carloads of book and writing paper to New Zealand and Australia. This is one of the results of the recent trade treaty concluded between Canada and the Commonwealth and it is believed that the favorable terms obtained by Canada will result in a larger paper business between the two countries.

Winnipeg, Man.—Beets, grown on a purely experimental scale, have been produced on a total of 260 plots throughout the eastern and southern portions of the province, chiefly in the Red Deer and Assiniboine valleys.

Despite early wet weather, 80 per cent. of the crop is stated to be quite satisfactory and the analysis which has commenced points to sufficient sugar content and purity. A few cars will be shipped to Minnesota for commercial trial at a factory there. Arrangements are already being made to increase the acreage considerably for next year.

Regina, Sask.—That the increase in Saskatchewan's dairying was greater in 1924 than in any previous year, is the outstanding fact revealed in the annual report of the Provincial Dairy Commissioner. The total value of all dairy products in the province last year was $19,357,329, made up as follows: Creamery butter, 13,583,902 lbs., valued at $4,509,250; farm made butter, 19,250,000 lbs., $4,235,000; factory cheese, 165,000 lbs., $29,700; ice cream, 345,000 gallons, $443,379; ice cream, unreported and estimated, 50,000 gallons, $65,000; milk consumed, 32,400,000 gallons, $8,100,000; sweet cream, 190,000 gallons, $475,000; whole milk fed to calves, 7,500,000 gallons, $1,500,000.

Edmonton, Alta.—Editors of United States agricultural papers, representing 11,000,000 circulation, were deeply impressed with what they saw during their recent tour of the Prairies. "We have no wheat land in Illinois the equal of this," said P. A. Potter, editor of the Orange Judd Farmer, of Chicago. "We dare not go back and tell the whole truth of what we have seen in Western Canada or we would lose half of our farming population."

Vancouver, B.C.—The Vancouver Board of Harbor Commissioners have purchased the Hastings Mill site on Burrard Inlet and will construct a truckage, new piers, cold storage and other facilities on the 40-acre plot in the course of the next few years.

MANTLE OF SNOW COVERS THE PRAIRIES

Old-Timers Cannot Recall Precedent for Present Unusual Weather Conditions.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 5.—King Winter to-day had spread a mantle of snow over the entire Prairie Provinces and indications are that the present conditions will continue for several days.

A cold northern wind which swept the snow-covered territory brought about a sharp drop in temperature, Vegreville, Alta., being the coldest point in Canada with eight degrees above zero.

In Central Alberta, a near-blizzard was experienced on Sunday, and following a sharp dip of the mercury, the dry snow was piled in high drifts by a strong Northwest wind.

Winnipeg to-day was added to the list of snow-bound cities in the West, bringing to an abrupt close a season of real "Indian Summer" weather. About three inches of sleety snow has already fallen.

Light snowfall was fairly general throughout Saskatchewan, the northern part of the province particularly presenting a wintry aspect. Snow ranging from one to five inches has been reported from many districts, while the temperature has been uniformly cold.

Regina, Sask., Oct. 5.—While the musty records on file at the Weather Bureau here have not been searched, officials to-day declare they could not recall any precedent for present conditions. The mercury in the official glass dropped down to 16 last last, thus recording 16 degrees of frost. At noon to-day the official reading was 28; the ground was frozen solid and covered with half an inch of snow. Officials of the Provincial Dept. of Agriculture said wheat that was real damp before the heavy frost would probably grade lower, but no extensive damage on that score was anticipated. It was estimated that in the average field from 1 to 2 per cent. of the potatoes would be touched with frost.

Winnipeg, Oct. 5.—Western Canada's 1925 wheat crop is placed at 400,385,000 bushels in an estimate released here to-day by the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association. This figure is based on an estimate average of 20.1 bushels to the acre on 19,865,500 acres.

By provinces the production is estimated as follows: Manitoba, 98,634,000 bushels; Saskatchewan, 226,518,000 bushels; Alberta, 135,238,000 bushels.

The aggregate estimate for oats is 392,653,000 bushels; barley, 65,355,000 bushels; rye, 9,220,000 bushels, and flax, 6,395,000 bushels.

Gen. Richard Mulcahey, former defense minister of the Irish Free State, who, on his arrival at Hoboken, N.J., was greeted with eggs, tomatoes, stones, sticks, flints and epithets.

TAKE FIRST STEPS TO REFORM CALENDAR

Date of Easter Fixed for the Second Sunday in April to Begin in 1928.

Vancouver, Oct. 4.—First steps toward the reform of the calendar to divide the present year of 12 months into 13 months, have been taken by the League of Nations committee on calendar reform, in fixing the date of Easter permanently on the second Sunday in April, beginning 1928.

Moses B. Cotsworth, of Vancouver, director of the International Fixed Calendar League, Saturday announced receipt of news from the committee that the unanimous assent of all the great church authorities had been secured to make this change.

It is the first essential step accomplished toward winning the more important benefits of calendar reform, said Mr. Cotsworth. The proposed 13 month year will be a gain to all humanity, he said.

The plan is to make the last day in each year an international "year day," and dividing the 52 weeks in to 13 months.

A new month "Sol" is proposed, to be made from the last two weeks of June and the first two weeks of July. Each month would consist of four complete weeks like February, 1925, and all times for earning and spending would be equal or exact multiples of each other.

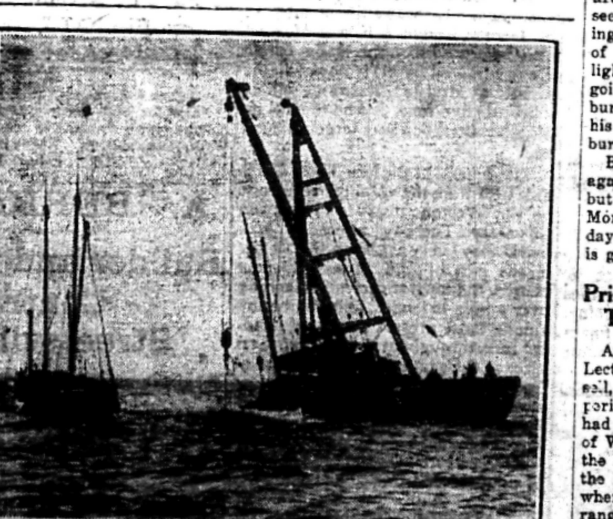

LAD ELECTROCUTED IN DOING ACT OF KINDNESS

Another Boy Helping on Installation of Radio Aerial May Die of Burns.

Welland, Oct. 5.—A terrible tragedy occurred here this afternoon when Robert Young, 15 years of age, only son of John Young of the Volta Manufacturing Co., was instantly killed by electrocution, and Hugh McMillan, aged 16, son of J. C. McMillan, agent of the Canadian National, was so badly injured that he has been unconscious since, and it is not expected he will recover. Herbert McQuig, aged 17 years, nephew of H. C. McQuig, former principal of Welland High School, was badly burned, but is expected to recover.

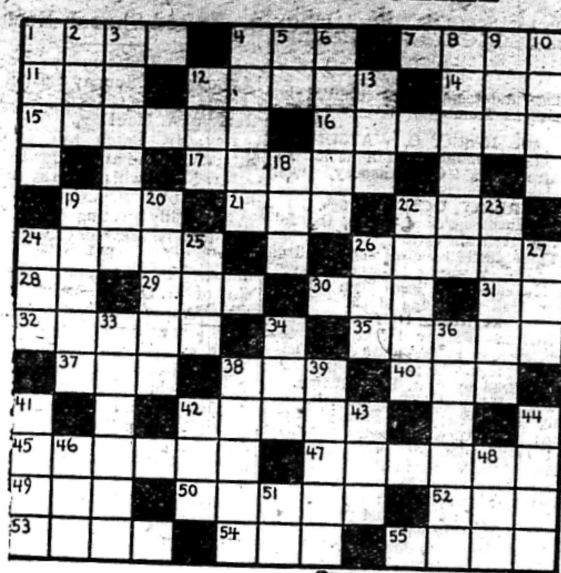

The three boys were on an errand of mercy, installing at the hospital a radio for a young friend, Stuart A. Kirk, who was badly burned a short time ago at the Page Hersey pipe mills, and who is still in the county hospital. The cause of the tragedy appears to be through the aerial wire of the set coming in contact with a high-tension wire at the back of the hospital, the wire catching Young around the neck and well-nigh burning it through.

McMillan, who had hold of the wire, received a severe shock and serious burns about the body. The third boy, McQuig, received severe shock, but escaped with lesser burns.

EFFORTS TO RAISE SUBMARINE FAIL

THOUSANDS OF TOKIO HOUSES INUNDATED

Thirty Lives Lost as Result of Heavy Rains and Landslides.

A despatch from Tokio says:—Thirty persons are dead, scores injured and many more are believed to be buried alive by landslides in Tokio, Yokohama and the vicinity, caused by heavy rains and floods. Sixty thousand houses were inundated and nearly a hundred demolished under the landslides. Damages will total several million yen.

Six persons were killed at Yokosuka Naval Station. Extent of damage to the naval yards is withheld. There were many narrow escapes as retaining walls in Tokio and Yokohama broke. Little crippled girls were pinned under the house ruins by tons of earth, but removed unscratched. Two women were killed in the same house. Reservists, firemen and soldiers continued the rescue work throughout the night and all Thursday. Tokio's new broadcasting station was endangered, the retaining wall having collapsed, demolishing twelve houses and leaving the station in a precarious condition. Communications were disrupted.

Struck by Lightning and is Still Alive

Sarnia, Ont., Oct. 4.—William Beatty, farmer on the London Road, was struck by a lightning bolt Friday afternoon and his life was spared seemingly by a miracle. He was leaning against an eavestrough at the farm of his niece, Mrs. Lusk, when the lightning hit him on the right arm, going out at his thumb and severely burning it, and then passed through his body and down the right leg, burning two toes severely. Beatty was thrown violently against the kitchen door, smashing in but not rendered unconscious. Dr. Morrison was called, and reports to-day are to the effect that Mr. Beatty is getting along nicely.

Prince of Wales Relieved Tense Moment During Visit

A despatch from London says:—Lecturing on Canada, Sir John Russell, director of the Rothamsted Experimental Station, said Canadians had a great affection for the Prince of Wales, who worked on his ranch in the same manner as his men. When the Prince was visiting a small town where a civic welcome had been arranged, a drunken man staggered up to him and said thickly: "I am the first cousin to the Archbishop of York." No one knew quite what to do, but the Prince relieved matters by quickly replying: "All right, old fellow, I won't tell him."

ARGENTINE TO REJOIN LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Costa Rica May Again Become a Member and Turkey's Admission is Probable.

A despatch from Geneva says:—Argentina will rejoin the League of Nations and Costa Rica, whose withdrawal was announced at the recent assembly, is reconsidering her decision and probably will resume her membership, according to League officials. Sir Eric Drummond, secretary-general of the League, received a cable from Costa Rica on Friday thanking the League for its resolution of regret at Costa Rica's absence and expressing hope of overcoming the financial difficulties which necessitated a curtailment of expenses.

During the Assembly, Argentina sent a cheque for 800,000 gold francs, the assessment for the present year. The League also learns the participation in the last Labor Conference and the payment of her dues is a preliminary step toward a resumption of Argentina's membership.

The admission of Germany is entirely dependent upon the success of the security pact, but inasmuch as Germany's affiliation with the League is a prerequisite to the pact becoming effective, it is practically certain that Berlin will apply. Turkey, which has announced that she will apply for admission if the Mosul controversy is settled amicably, would be the fourth nation to join during the coming year.

400 Per Cent. Gain in France in Living Costs Since 1914

A despatch from Paris says:—Living expenses in France of a worker's family of four persons have increased on an average of 400 per cent. since 1914, according to official statistics of the principal cities published in "The General Statistics of France." Of the seven largest cities (with the exception of Lille, which failed to send in a report), the high cost of living is most pronounced in Marseilles, with Paris fifth on the list and Lyon showing the smallest difference between 1925 and 1914.

BRITISHERS REJOIN RELATIVES IN CANADA

Families Reunited in Land of the Maple Leaf—Ages from 4 to 70.

Quebec, Oct. 4.—With a family reunion awaiting each at the journey's end, 140 newcomers to Canada, chiefly women and children, passed through this port to-day. Brought to this country through the British Dominions' Emigration Society, the group, including members of 35 families, will rejoin relatives who have already become permanently established here. While destinations range across the continent from Montreal to Vancouver, the majority of these new citizens will find homes awaiting them at Toronto when they leave their special C.N.R. train there.

Comprising part of the 600 passengers who disembarked from the S.S. Doric, the newcomers were guided through the immigration formalities by A. G. Dionne, Canadian representative of the British Dominions' Emigration Society, and by Albert Chamberlain, Secretary of the British Welfare and Welfare League of Toronto. Passage money in the majority of instances had been advanced by the former organization, which had investigated each case.

To-day's group brought the total for the season to 800 individuals who have come to Canada in this manner, and this number will be again augmented by a further group which will travel on the next westbound voyage of the Doric. Ages among yesterday's arrivals ranged all the way up the scale from 4 years to the septuagenarian, Richard Fullerton, bound for Toronto, with his daughter-in-law, to meet his son.

Whole Family Saved by Heroic Mother

Glace Bay, N.S., Oct. 5.—Awakened Sunday morning by the crackling of flames and a most suffocated by smoke, Mrs. Alex. McDougall of MacKay's Corners, heroically rescued her eight children from their beds and carried them to safety.

Mr. McDougall was at Sydney, and the frantic mother was obliged to enter the burning building several times in bringing her children to safety.

Canada Receives Share of German Reparation

London, Oct. 5.—The High Commissioner has been advised by the Treasury that, in accordance with the distribution between the different parts of the British Empire of sums received in respect of the Dawes annuities, an amount of $39,755 19s. 8d. has been placed to the credit of the Receiver-General of Canada.

Sherlock and "Sir Sherlock."

It is almost certain that no character in fiction created by a living author has become so internationally familiar as Sherlock Holmes, the great detective. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, in his recent very interesting book of reminiscences, Memories and Adventures, relates how, shortly after he had been knighted, on account of quite another literary work, he received a bill from a tradesman that was correct and businesslike in every detail save that it was made out to "Sir Sherlock Holmes."

"I hope I can stand a joke as well as my neighbors," records Sir Arthur, "but this particular piece of humor seemed rather misapplied, and I wrote sharply upon the subject. In response to my letter there arrived at my hotel a very repentant clerk, who expressed his sorrow at the incident, but kept on repeating the phrase, 'I assure you, sir, that it was bona fide!'"

"What do you mean by bona fide?" I asked.

"Well, sir," he replied, "my mates at the shop told me that you had been knighted, and that when a man was knighted he changed his name, and that you had taken that one."

"I need not say that my annoyance vanished, and that I laughed as heartily as his pals were probably doing round the corner."

A party of French schoolboys visiting London asked as the first of the sights that they wished to be shown the Baker Street lodgings of the great Sherlock Holmes; but they could not be gratified, since Conan Doyle has always discreetly declined to identify the building. In South America Sherlock is so well known that a convenient new word, based upon his name, has been added to the language; clever bits of offhand deduction are now tersely defined there as "sherlock-holmitos."

Letters in praise of Sherlock Holmes or propounding problems for Sherlock Holmes's creator to solve reached him from the four corners of the world, including the Samoan Islands. Robert Louis Stevenson wrote to him from Vailima.

"He had been retelling some of my Sherlock Holmes yarns to his native servants, I should not have thought that he needed to draw upon anyone else, and he complained to me in a comical letter of the difficulty of telling a story when you had to halt every moment to explain what a railway was, what an engineer was, and so forth. He got the story across in spite of all difficulties, and, said he, 'if you could have seen the bright, feverish eyes of Simite, you would have tasted glory!'"

Simite and his comrades accepted all the tales as literally true; they could not be convinced that any story was merely a feat of fancy. But to many more sophisticated admirers the superdetective is little less real—and certainly if he is not true he ought to be!

Secrets of the Snows.

This summer has witnessed one of the greatest exploits of mountaineering ever recorded—the conquest of Mount Logan, the highest peak in Canada, which rises to a height of over 19,000 feet.

The Canadian Alpine Club expedition, which triumphed over all obstacles and reached the summit of Mount Logan, originally consisted of eight members, but two of them had to abandon the attempt because of frost-bite and general exhaustion before attaining their goal.

Almost incredible hardships were suffered by the conquerors of Mount Logan, who spent forty-four days entirely on ice in getting to the summit and back again. Each man of the party had to pack about seventy pounds over two hundred miles of ridge and glacier. Dangerous storms were encountered, especially on the return journey, and only the most heroic efforts averted loss of life.

On the last lap of the ascent, when the party reached what they believed to be the highest point of the mountain, they found yet another peak towering above them. To attain this they had to descend a thousand feet into a valley between the two peaks before again beginning to climb.

This final peak was heart-breaking work, as the party had to make progress up a steep snow and ice slope, terminating in a knife area that led to the summit. The temperature when they gained the top was four degrees below zero.

"Leaves" of gold and nickel have now been made by a German scientist, so thin that it would require 2,500,000 of them to measure an inch in thickness.

RHEUMATIC PEOPLE CAN NOW FIND RELIEF

By Driving the Poisonous Acid From the System.

Rheumatism attacks people when the blood is thin and watery, or charged with impurities, thus setting up inflammation of the muscles and joints. Cold, wet weather or sharp winds may start the pains, but the cause is rooted in the blood and to get relief it must be treated through the blood. As a blood builder and nerve tonic Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are unsurpassed, and for that reason do not fail to give relief to rheumatic sufferers when given a fair trial. Among the rheumatic sufferers who have proved the great value of this medicine is Mrs. Simeon J. Tatton, Indian Head, Sask., who says:—"For over two years I was an intense sufferer from rheumatism and until I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills no treatment that I took helped me any. The trouble grew so bad that I could not move around the house without help, and finally I had to give up and go to bed. Words cannot tell how much I suffered, and I could not bear to have anyone come near me. Finally one of my neighbors strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to do so. In the course of a few weeks I could feel an improvement, and I was able to get up. I kept on taking the pills until all traces of the trouble were gone, and I could again do my housework, feeling like a new person. Three years have passed, since that and there has never been the slightest return of the trouble, so that I feel safe in saying that the relief brought by this medicine is permanent."

You can get the pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SICKNESS HEALED BY SPIRITUAL MEANS

Christian Science Lecturer Claims No Incurable Disease.

The Christian Science lecture broadcast from Massey Hall, Toronto, gave many an opportunity to hear for the first time something authentic about the subject.

After half a century of growth the claims of Christian Science that spiritual healing is to-day practical is being recognized by material systems of healing and by the older churches. The lecturer, Robert Stanley Ross, of New York, spoke in part as follows:

Christian Science is demonstrating that it is the Christianity of Jesus made practicable to-day. Now, as of old, it is showing mankind how to escape from all evil. No matter how long one has been ill, no matter how deeply one may be involved in sin, no matter how heavy one's burden of sorrow, poverty, or care, Christian Science joyfully points the way out, not through death and the so-called hereafter, but here and now. The Bible tells us that the kingdom of God, the kingdom of heaven, is at hand, here, now; and that now is the day of salvation; that now are we, the sons of God.

All of us know that an ugly disposition (which is a mental state) will manifest itself in harsh, unlovely features (supposedly a physical state); whereas a gentle disposition (which is a mental state) will manifest itself in a smiling and serene countenance. Some one has well said that if fear, irritability, and hate will distort the features, they will distort likewise the heart, stomach, and liver. Why not? Jesus recognized clearly that it is not mere food which disarranges the human system, but fear, sensuality, hate, and other poisonous, destructive beliefs.

Writing on page 248 of Science and Health, Mrs. Eddy says: "Let unselfishness, goodness, mercy, justice, health, boldness, love—the kingdom of heaven—reign within us, and sin, disease, and death will diminish until they finally disappear." All of which indicates that mortals are healthy or unhealthy, happy or unhappy, strong or weak, alive or dead, in the proportion that their thinking is good or bad, spiritual or material. Centuries ago the wise man said: "As he (a man) thinketh in his heart, so he is."

In the sight of infinite Love there are no incurable diseases; there never have been any, there never will be any. The Psalmist knew this when he sang: "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits: who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases." Note well that it reads all thine iniquities and all thy diseases, not some of them.

How Glasses Affect Features.

A well known oculist declares that more people are wearing glasses today than ever before. Too many people who are obliged to wear glasses do so without a thought as to the effect particular shapes will have upon their appearance.

Before purchasing glasses some attention should be paid to facial characteristics. The person with a long, straight nose should hesitate before buying glasses with an arched bridge-piece, as this will appear to lengthen the nose.

Those with Roman noses can improve their profile by having glasses with a low bridge and side clips adjusted so that the skin above the bridge is pulled slightly downwards. This slackens the skin along the length of the nose and appears to reduce the curve.

A person with tip-tilted nose who is desirous of straightening it should wear pince-nez and not spectacles. The latter serve only to pull at the bridge and still further elevate the tip of the nose.

Glasses can be made to alter, or appear to alter, the whole form of the face. Any dark, horizontal lines—such as well defined eyebrows—across the oval of the face will seem to shorten its length. For this reason a long-visaged person should wear narrow spectacles with heavy rims and a straight bridge-piece.

Apart from personal taste it would seem advisable to wear pince-nez in preference to spectacles, as the ear-bars of the latter cast shadows which add age to one's appearance by emphasizing the wrinkles at the corners of the eyes. The thickness of the rims affects the appearance of the face. Generally speaking, the darker the rim the smaller the face appears. A full face is made to appear thinner when heavily rimmed glasses are worn.

MAKE CARE OF BABIES EASIER

Baby's Own Tablets Are a Great Help to Mothers of Young Children.

Stomach disturbances and constipation are responsible for much of the peevishness of babies. The modern mother does not resort to so-called soothing mixtures but corrects the trouble by sweetening the little stomach and giving a gentle laxative that acts without griping. Such a remedy is found in Baby's Own Tablets, easy to take and guaranteed to be free from opiates or narcotics.

Every mother who tries Baby's Own Tablets becomes enthusiastic about them. Mrs. Oscar Auger, Holyoke, Mass., says:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets and think them a splendid medicine for constipation and other ailments which affect little ones. I have no hesitation in recommending them to other mothers." Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. A little booklet, "Care of the Baby in Health and Sickness," will be sent free to any mother on request.

Cupid and a Camera.

Dr. C. W. Sanborn, of San Francisco, is not likely to speak well of the camera now that photography has given him the surprise of his life.

According to law reports the doctor had a breach of promise suit for $100,000 brought against him by Miss Beatrice Lichtendorf, a Chicago typist. The doctor had fallen in love with Miss Lichtendorf, but he was a cautious wooer, and to each of the letters he wrote her he appended a postscript requesting her to return the missive after she had read it. This she did.

But she also pursued businesslike methods, and when the doctor declared that he had never proposed marriage to her she produced photographic copies of love letters in some of which he spoke of marriage!

FREE GOVERNMENT INFORMATION Increase Poultry Profits by Marketing Co-operatively

THE Western Wheat Producers, the Ontario honey men and others, have made co-operative selling a marked success. They have stabilized prices and increased their profits by standardized grading and shipping methods; and applying efficient salesmanship and real merchandising to the disposal of their crops. By these methods the poultry producers, too, can secure these benefits. The outstanding proof of this is Prince Edward Island, where, for the last thirteen years, expert and efficient salesmanship applied to co-operative marketing, has saved thousands of dollars annually for the poultry farmers and permanently stabilized their markets.

Peel Pleads Protection that will Protect

Leaders in almost every line of production represented in this County set forth views on the Tariff and seek relief from the present unsatisfactory condition

KING GOVERNMENT TURNS A DEAF EAR

No Heed Given to these requests from Employers of Labor and to Appeals made on behalf of the Workmen of this County by Samuel Charters in Parliament.

THAT PEEL COUNTY has suffered from the Reductions in the Tariff and the general policy (or lack of policy) of the King Government is evidenced by the fact that practically every line of production in this County has appealed to the government and sought relief from the present unfair and unsatisfactory condition. Peel Woollen Industry, Peel Brick Industry, Peel Shoe Industry, Peel Florists, Peel Poultrymen, Peel Fruit and Vegetable men, Peel's Starch Industry, Peel's Iron and Steel Industry, Peel Farmers have all been hard hit with a consequent loss of work and wages for Peel men. By petition and through the representation of Samuel Charters in Parliament, they have called upon the Government to raise the Tariff and Preserve the Home Market for our own Producers, but the King Government has failed to carry out their desires.

PEEL FRUIT AND VEGETABLE GROWERS

The vegetable and fruit growing industry is one of the greatest in the County of Peel. Very much money is invested in this business. Many families are dependent upon the Toronto market for the sale of the product of their orchards and farms. In recent years the quantity of vegetables and fruit coming in from the United States has greatly lessened their income and profits. In all parts of the district, from Kingston to Niagara Falls, injury has been done. It is not surprising, therefore, that the following resolution should have been unanimously passed last year at the annual meeting of the Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association, of which many Peel market gardeners are members.

"THAT we realize from reports from all parts of the province that our farmers, especially those engaged in supplying vegetables during the winter and early summer seasons, are gradually being driven out of business by the importation of cheap, field-grown products of the semi-tropical parts of the United States. We therefore humbly beseech the Hon. Minister of Finance to help us obtain some relief from these disastrous conditions. Knowing as all Canadians do, that money must be obtained through taxation to carry on our governmental activities and pay our portion of the great war debt, we think that those most able to bear the burden should do so, and therefore petition you to impose a 10 per cent. luxury tax, in addition to our present taxes on our vegetable and fruit imports, which are undoubtedly a luxury in the seasons during which we find competition impossible."

The Government of Right Hon. Mackenzie King refused this reasonable demand of the Farmers, Fruit and Vegetable Growers. The Liberal party has declared its policy to be the placing of the "principle articles of food" on the free list. Let the Americans flood the Canadian market with their surplus stock.

The Liberal candidate in Peel supports that policy. The Conservative party stands for a TARIFF THAT WILL KEEP THE CANADIAN MARKET FOR THE CANADIAN PRODUCE.

S. Charters, the Conservative candidate, by voice and vote, supported in parliament this policy.

PEEL POULTRYMEN

Every farmer in the County of Peel and a very large number who are not actively engaged in farming, devote considerable attention to poultry, and are anxious that the market should be preserved for their product.

The present tariff of only three cents per dozen, enables imports to come in from the United States and other countries in a measure sufficient to injure the sale of Canadian eggs.

In answer to a question in the House of Commons on March 20, 1925, the Hon. Mr. Motherwell gave the following information:

The number of eggs imported into Canada from the United States in the following years were—1923 8,256,168 dozens
1924 6,454,313 dozens
1925 2,429,655 dozens
(up to the time when the answer was given)

That means that in less than three years, 17,140,136 dozen eggs were brought into Canada from the United States. During the present year, there also came from China 75,000 dozen.

In view of these facts, the Canadian Poultrymen's Association passed the following resolution, as reported in the "Canadian Poultry Journal" for September.

"WHEREAS a large majority of the farmers and other poultry keepers of Canada depend to a considerable extent on poultry raising as a means of livelihood;

"AND WHEREAS our income is largely reduced by the influx of eggs from the United States, which is permitted under one small customs duty of three cents per dozen;

"AND WHEREAS it is impossible for us to get a share of trade in return by selling eggs in the United States on account of the protection afforded their farmers by their customs duty of eight cents per dozen;

"THEREFORE we respectfully request our Dominion Government to afford us at least an equal opportunity to do business by placing our customs duty on a level with United States duty of eight cents a dozen;

"AND THAT our Secretary transmit a copy of this motion to the Dominion Government." (Carried unanimously.)

Right Hon. Mackenzie King refused the reasonable request of this industry. His announced policy is to place all the "principle articles of food" on the free list. The Liberal candidate supports the Liberal policy. The Conservative party is in favor of a tariff on eggs as high as that imposed by the United States.

S. Charters, by voice and vote, supported that policy in parliament, but the Liberal party turned a deaf ear.

ST. LAWRENCE STARCH COMPANY EMPLOYEES OPPOSE REDUCTION IN TARIFF

The employees of the St. Lawrence Starch Company, by petition to Parliament, set forth their views on the question of tariff reduction, protesting against "any change in the policy under which the country prospered and progressed." Under present conditions further reductions will result in greater unemployment. Mr. King's policy is food stuffs on the free list, that they may be imported from the United States, China, or any where else. Mr. Parker is supporting Mr. King's policy.

Mr. Meighen and Mr. Charters are for protection for the producers and work people.

INJUSTICE TO PEEL FARMERS

The following schedules on farm products imposed by the Canadian and by the American Governments make clear the injustice to Peel farmers. Not satisfied with allowing American farm products to come into Canada under a tariff about half that imposed on Canadian products entering that country, the King administration sounded the death-knell of protection for farmers when they conceded the following reductions under the Australian treaty. The Conservative party stands for Protection for farmers of Peel:

WOOLLEN INDUSTRY IN PEEL

Not only the proprietors of the woollen mills at Alton, Orangeville, Inglewood, Brampton and Huttonville, and the employees of those factories, but many individual holders of stock in companies located in different parts of the Dominion, are strongly opposed to the present tariff, and ask for reasonable protection, as the following resolution passed by the Canadian Woollen Manufacturers' Association shows:

"WHEREAS the result of forsaking the National Policy and reducing the tariff five times since the war is apparent in the depression which has now lasted for several years, the exodus of thousands of skilled workers to the United States, the closing down or partial operation of many plants, the distress of the farmers, whose domestic markets have been restricted, and the general decrease in business activities:

"Therefore be it resolved that the Canadian Woollen Manufacturers' Association, in annual meeting assembled, strongly protest against this ruinous policy which has been followed since the war, and determine to do everything in our power to bring about the restoration of the old National Policy of protection, and with it tariff rates that will encourage the development of production in Canada."

The Hon. Mackenzie King and his government reduced duties in 1922 and 1923.

The Liberal candidate in Peel supports the Liberal policy.

The Conservative party favors a tariff that will protect this Peel County industry and give employment to our own men and women.

S. Charters has at all times advocated such a policy, and does so now.

TARIFF CUTS HURT IRON AND STEEL INDUSTRY

According to H. J. Waddie, the change in the tariff has made an enormous difference to their business, as fifty per cent. of it was done with the agricultural implement people, the wood-working machinery, lumbering interests and with the mines and fisheries. Here is what he says: "Our margin even with a twenty-five per cent. tariff was very close, owing to the excessive expense of carrying on our business as compared with the costs in the United States. For example, we have to import a large proportion of our raw materials from the United States, as they are not made in Canada; we pay a duty of $7.00 per ton on our importations; thus the stock we carry to begin with has cost us $7.00 per ton more than a similar manufacturer in the States. The freight rates from Pittsburgh, for example, to Ontario points are very little higher than they are to Hamilton and after we take into consideration that we pay our freight rates on a percentage of scrap, whereas, buying the finished article direct, the freight rate say from Pittsburgh to Toronto is, if anything, a trifle lower than the freight rate on our raw material to Hamilton.

"After manufacturing, we have still to take care of a freight rate from Hamilton to Toronto, or to London or other Ontario points. In this way, even if our manufacturing costs were as low as the American costs, we would not be able to compete and our present spread between raw material and the finished article is lower than the spread in the United States.

"Naturally, under these conditions our output is decreased very seriously, with a corresponding reduction in both hours of employment and number of employees. This condition is attributable entirely to tariff reductions and the lack of an adequate tariff to meet conditions. If Canada is to continue its industries and to build them up, nothing but a substantial increase in the present tariff on certain articles will achieve this."

BRAMPTON BOARD OF TRADE RESOLUTION

The following resolution, moved by George Akehurst, and seconded by James Harmsworth, was passed by the Brampton Board of Trade at a regular meeting on April 8th, 1924, without opposition. James Martin, the President, occupied the chair:

"WHEREAS the reduction of the tariff on manufactured goods entering Canada has already seriously affected many well established industries in the Town of Brampton;

"AND WHEREAS many of our best artisans have been forced to seek work in the United States, due to the closing or partial closing of industries in this Town;

"AND WHEREAS it appears that further reductions are intended by the present Government;

"THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED: That the Brampton Board of Trade is strongly of the opinion that further reduction in the tariff would be fatal to many Canadian Industries, and that in several branches of industry the tariff has already been reduced to a point where such industries cannot successfully compete with foreign industries operating under the advantage of low wages, low exchange or much greater massed production."

GREENHOUSES WANT FAIR DEAL

Brampton's greatest industry is the Dale Estate. The cut flower trade, like every other trade, is affected by the tariff. The Canadian duty on cut flowers is 17½ per cent. The American duty is 40 per cent. For three years appeals were made by the member for Peel, Senator Blain, Sir Henry Drayton and others to the Finance Minister to increase the Canadian duty to an amount equal to that imposed by the United States. This the management of the Dale Estate and others regarded as only simple justice. The King administration refused, the answer of Mr. Fielding to the florists' request being that they were not increasing the tariff. During the last session of Parliament an increase of from 14 to 50 cents per ton in the duty on the coal used by the Dale Estate, was imposed. Having varied their policy in regard to coal, which is one of the important raw materials used in flower growing, the present Finance Minister, Mr. Robb, was again appealed to by Mr. Charters. The increase in the duty on coal should be followed by the increase on cut flowers it was argued. Mr. Robb refused on the ground that no other reductions in the tariff would be made.

PEEL'S BRICK INDUSTRY

There are eight brick yards in the County of Peel, which are capable of a very large output providing the market for their goods is increased. Like every other industry, brick making depends upon prosperity in other directions. If building operations are slow, the demand for brick is correspondingly decreased. Brick makers throughout the Dominion are strongly in favor of a tariff that will better protect their industry.

At the annual meeting of the National Clay Products Association held in Toronto, March, 1924, at which Mr. T. H. Graham, of Inglewood, was elected president, the following resolution was passed:

"In view of the fact that freight rates in the United States are lower than in Canada; that the U. S. manufacturers of brick are situated so advantageously with regard to coal supply as to be able to absorb customs duties in full through fuel savings, and are at still further advantage in the superior quality of their raw materials, the Canadian manufacturers are at a decided disadvantage from a competitive standpoint.

"Be it therefore resolved that this Association bring to the attention of the Federal Government that a substantial increase in tariff protection on building brick is required."

OUR SHOES FACTORIES WANT TARIFF CHANGED

One of the largest deputations which visited Ottawa during the present parliament was that of the Shoe Manufacturers of Canada. The cities and towns of Ontario sending delegates were Toronto, Kitchener, Brampton, Whitby, London, Tilsonburg, Hamilton, Galt, Kingston and Waterloo in Ontario, and Montreal, Quebec, Three Rivers, Ste. Hyacinthe in the province of Quebec.

Mr. Deslongchamps, who introduced the deputation, urged that Canadian workers, owing to climatic conditions, had the higher cost of living and therefore had to receive higher wages than workers in Europe. Depreciated currencies and transportation costs by rail were also in favor of the foreign worker. Roy Weaver, secretary of the Shoe Manufacturer's Association, read a memorandum outlining the position of the shoe industry in Canada. Owing to the depreciated exchange and high foreign tariffs, Canada had practically lost the foreign market for shoes it had once had and was now dependent on the home market, which demands higher protection.

Handicap of 10 per cent.
The memorandum placed the net tariff on British shoes at 15¼ per cent. and claimed that "owing to depreciated currency and lower wage costs, the Canadian makers were under a net handicap of ten per cent."

The Government of Hon. Mackenzie King refused the request of the Shoe Men's Association.

The Conservative party is for Protection for every industry. Brampton's shoe factories would be able to give greater employment under a better protective policy.

PEEL LABOR WANTS WORK—NOT CHEAP GOODS

The chief and vital concern of Peel wage earners is that ample employment opportunities at good wages shall be at their disposal. With these available, they can hold up their heads like men, satisfy the needs of themselves and their dependents and educate their children. Without employment and a living wage, their lot is sad indeed. Peel workmen are not concerned about cheap goods. What value to them is boots at two dollars per pair if they cannot earn the two dollars to pay for the same? Cost of living in Canada is necessarily about the same as that in the United States. Wages should therefore be on the same level. Peel workmen cannot compete with the cheap labor of Germany and other foreign countries. A German workman, for example, receives $5.72 per week of 66 hours when employed in a textile industry. A Canadian employed at the same work receives $19.20 per week. The Peel County workman demands protection against the products of the poorly paid labor of Germany.

CHARTERS STREETSVILLE MEETING MOST ENTHUSIASTIC EVER HELD HERE

Conservative Standard Bearer In Peel Given a Rousing

Reception By Electors of This Village at Public

Meeting on Monday Night Last

J. C. HODGINS AND COL. KENNEDY, M.P.P., ALSO SPOKE

Streetsville had a meeting on Monday night of this week that will live in the memory of those who had the privilege of being present at it for many a long day. Not since the day in war-time, when patriotic fervor was at its height, had anything like it been witnessed here, and the strange part of the whole affair is that it was purely spontaneous on the part of the audience, and utterly unsought on the part of the men on the platform.

The occasion was the Conservative meeting held in the interests of the candidate, Sam Charters. Workers in the village had made the platform gay and attractive with flags and bunting, the emblem of the country being conspicuous everywhere. Bright lights and eager faces supplied the rest of the setting for this remarkable meeting, while the spirit of patriotism that never dies in the heart of a Conservative supplied the fervor on which the meeting was winged out of the commonplace into something little short of a miracle.

John Weylie, veteran campaigner, was called to the chair, and in the courtly way for which he is so well known welcomed the candidate to the village. With Mr. Weylie on the platform were the candidate, Sam Charters; Col. T. L. Kennedy, M.P.P., and J. C. Hodgins, better known to the audience as Onlooker.

It was Miss Ruth Greig who struck the patriotic note of the evening, and the response to the chord was overwhelming. Miss Greig recited a beautiful patriotic poem by Owen Smiley on the Maple Leaf and the Flag, producing a crimson leaf and later waving a small Union Jack. It was when she came to the conclusion of her number and declared in impassioned tones that "Britons never, never would be slaves" that the pent-up feelings of the audience broke loose. Every man, woman and child sprang to their feet, they caught up the air that Miss Greig was singing, and finished it with her, and then in a larger burst of enthusiasm sang it through again.

A similar demonstration took place when Sam Charters finished his address, in which a closing reference to the flag was made, and in which he hoped that the Union Jack will float over Canada until it is replaced by the white flag of universal brotherhood floating over a new world of men. Again the audience rose and sang in resounding strains the good old war song, "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall!" "It's a queer sort of political meeting," said one old Tory war-horse, wiping his eyes, "but it's got the real kind of spirit in it!"

Col. Kennedy paid a tribute to Peel County as the foremost county in the Province, first in intelligence, first in the exercise of the franchise, polling 82 per cent. of the votes it has, with the best record on Victory Loan subscriptions, with more children that can read and write, with fewer chattel mortgages against its property than any other county. "This is the county," he said, "which is asking Sam Charters to be its representative. Mr. Charters was asked by both Liberals and Conservatives to come out and represent them in those days when the country needed men of unselfish character to pilot it through the dark days of the war. Your duty and your interest are involved in seeing that your candidate is returned with an overwhelming majority."

Mr. Charters gave a review of the failures of the King Government to keep its promises with regard to various reductions in debt and taxation. Instead of a reduction of the public debt, there has been an increase of over 20 millions, and that does not take into account the 234 millions of guarantees to the railroads. The interest on this debt means $9,000 this year to the people of Streetsville, $104,000 to the people of Toronto Township. And there is no use in saying that it does not have to be paid. It is being paid in salary taxes, in income tax and in customs.

Mr. Charters went on to show needless extravagance on the part of the Government that had promised economy in commissions, in positions made for unusual officers at high salaries, at unnecessary salary increases, and showed how all these useless expenditures were opposed by the Conservatives and by some of the Progressives. But the Liberals did not seem to care, Mr. Charters said, they went on spending as if nothing in the shape of an election loomed ahead of them, when they must give an account to the people.

A heckler asked the speaker, when mention was made of 539,000 Canadians going to the United States during the four years of Mackenzie King's regime and paying $8 per head for the privilege of getting into Uncle Sam's domain, how many had returned. "About 42,000," replied the candidate, "and most of these were tourists!" "Thank you!" replied the heckler, and subsided.

The failure of the Government to see the need of encouraging immigration, and the large sums of money spent in useless immigration were touched upon. And then the candidate got down to the main issue of the election—the tariff. Mr. Charters pointed out the reasons why Canada must have a protective tariff, why the people of Streetsville and Toronto Township will not be able to make ends meet unless they get such a policy favoring Canada, and a very detailed statement was given of the applications from various manufacturers, right in the county, for relief from adverse conditions imposed by the United States high tariff.

"I feel sure," said Mr. Charters in conclusion, "that the people of Peel will be loyal to the party which has worked for them, and which has sought their good and their prosperity on every occasion, the party which has stood by the country in the darkest days that ever beset it, through the stress and strain of the war. I feel sure that they will be true to the old policies and to the old flag, till the white flag of the Prince of Peace floats over Canada, and the true brotherhood of man is proclaimed!"

Mr. Hodgins made a strong appeal for the candidature of Mr. Charters, for the greatest fault, he said, is his extreme modesty. "I handed Mr. Charters," he said, "a letter written by Hon. Arthur Meighen, in which the leader of the Opposition spoke of the deep loyalty and unselfishness with which Mr. Charters had served his party and his leader. But you never heard a word of that letter from Mr. Charters, although he owns five papers in which he could have published it. Neither did he ever refer to it on a public platform."

"The only reason Sam Charters did not do things during the four years that the King Government was in power was that the sign, 'No Conservatives need apply,' was hung on every Liberal door at Ottawa. They would not permit the Conservatives to undertake anything progressive and closed every avenue of usefulness!"

"Bankers, manufacturers and even farmers are seriously alarmed at the condition of affairs at present. You cannot replace the men and women, 106,000 of them, who have gone over to the States during the past year. I do not blame them. But it has been a costly gift to make to Uncle Sam, when you value each human being at $5,000. We have made a pretty costly gift when we count up the 539,000 Canadians that have gone over to the States in the past four years! How can we grow as a country if we cannot hold our own people?"

"Meighen believes in a tariff which will insure the stability of the capitalist, wages to the working man, and fair prices to the consumer. He believes in giving the United States a Roland for an Oliver. England had free trade, but she is finding that she, too, must protect her own interests, and I believe that very soon England, too, will be a highly protected country."

"Mouths are markets," said the speaker, "and it is better to feed ratepayers and patriots than our commercial rivals. The best thing for Canada is to have her villages develop into towns, her towns into cities, and her cities into metropolises. The home market is the valuable market in all countries. The machine has taken the place of the worker, and if Canada can manufacture for herself and keep her own money in her own country, she will grow in wealth and in importance."

"The towns and cities are the safeguard of the farms. It is not always the cleverest boy who stays on the home acres. From the farm come the brightest and best minds to the city. Such men never forget what they owe to the environment and influence of the home farm, and they never repudiate the debt. Yet a political party has tried to sow hate between the town and city, and we are paying for it!"

Mr. Hodgins told in detail the story of the railroads of Canada, and showed how far from fact Mr. Parker is when he speaks of the railroads as "Meighen's Millstone." As a matter of fact, it was through Sir Henry Drayton that the nationalization of railroads came about after he had conferred with an expert on the best plan of cleaning up the whole matter, which had been a bugbear to many a government. Mr. Meighen had actually nothing to do with the matter.

Sav-offs between Liberals and Progressives, Mr. Hodgins said, are repudiated between right-minded men of both parties. The great bulk of the Liberals, he declared, are protectionists first and Liberals afterwards. They are going to vote Conservative in this election because they are patriots. They were patriots at the time of the union of parties in Union Government, and there is as strong a need for their patriotic offices to-day as there was then. These are the men and women who think more of their country than they do of a label.

Very much delighted was the audience with Mr. Hodgins' picture of the brother of the editor of The Globe, a prisoner in China, making an appeal to the good old Union Jack. "He did not then talk of a Canadian flag," laughed the speaker, "it was the British flag he sought for protection. If the talk had been of a Canadian flag and of a Canadian navy, God help him, he would have been a prisoner yet."

"There was a glorious response to the tocsin of war," the speaker declared, "and there will be a response just as glorious on October 29."

During the evening the audience were treated to solos by Mrs. R. H. Greig and Mrs. Hector Wright which were splendidly rendered and loudly applauded.

The accompanists of the evening were: Mrs. Hec. Graydon for Mrs. Hec. Wright; Mrs. W. H. Davis for Mrs. R. Greig, and Miss Hicks for Miss Ruth Greig.

That she had to go away from home to learn how she should appreciate the blessing of being a Canadian was the opinion of Mrs. J. H. Edmison, wife of the former pastor of Mt. Pleasant Church, as she spoke at the annual thank offering of the Women's Missionary Society of that church. Mrs. Edmison was a delegate to the Presbyterian Alliance convention in Wales this summer, and described her travels in the Old Land.

At a largely attended meeting of the members of the congregation of Knox Church, held last Monday evening, Rev. James McFaul, of Tottenham and Beeton, was given a unanimous call to the pastorate of the church. Mr. McFaul was here on Sunday, Sept. 27, when he preached able sermons. It is hoped that he will accept the call. If he decides in doing so the date of his induction will be announced in due course.—Milton Champion.

Love Gives Itself

THE STORY OF A BLOOD FEUD

BY ANNIE S. SWAN.

"Love gives itself and is not bought."—Longfellow.

CHAPTER XXXII.—(Cont'd.)

"Three bags of nuggets! Eh?" repeated Peter Garvock, with the vivid interest of an eager school boy. "Representing how much?"

"Between forty and fifty thousand pounds. We took it down to Dawson and had it assayed and carefully put away, then we came back here."

"Wasn't he excited over it?"

"No—only rather like a man who had got rest for his soul at last. He said we'd spend the summer here, and get back to civilization, possibly to Europe, in the fall. But from the day he found the loot he began to decline in health. The lung trouble came back in full intensity. I've had the doctor out several times. Finally he took to his bed and yesterday he died."

Rankine's steady voice broke in his throat, and he turned his head away. "It's a queer experience, Peter, for a man to be shut up in such solitude, with a soul drawing near to the other side! Affery was without fear. He talked of it as the great adventure, beside which everything else paled. And he died last night as peacefully as a child, with his cheek on his hand, and a boy's smile on his face."

With that Rankine picked himself up and walked away a few steps; and Garvock understood. It was wonderful the understanding that was between those two from that moment henceforth! The past, with all its bitterness, was wiped out as if it had never been.

Presently Rankine came back and sat down again.

"Affery hasn't a relation living in the world; and he himself said, hardly a friend. He has left me everything he possesses, and his wishes were as explicit as if they had been set down in black-and-white by any lawyer! As a matter of fact, his will was made by the Dawson lawyer. He knew the whole story of my life, Peter, and the idea of redeeming Stair seemed to please him. It was the last thing he spoke of before he fell asleep. He said it was the thing he had been sent into the world to do."

"So you go back to Stair a rich man, Alan, after all!"

"A rich man as far as money is concerned, Peter, but a poor man in some respects, for I'll never look on his like again! I've been through the hardships, and in New York I touched the rock-bottom of human misery. But I'd go through the whole of the last two years cheerfully if it would bring Affery back! He gave me a few instructions about the kind of folk I was to help as I had opportunity. Like me, he has been on the round-ups, and the lumber camps, and he knew that it is not always the working poor that most need the helping hand. I'll never be able to go back and live in idleness at Stair! Never again, Peter. Life has shown me too much."

"The first thing you have to do is to get back to Stair," said Peter, "and hear what the women-folks have to say. And I am wondering how soon I can get back to Dawson to send Carlotta a cablegram. Won't you come back with me and sleep at the rest-house to-night?"

Rankine shook his head. "I won't leave him till he is under the sod, Peter. And that will be tomorrow. The Presbyterian minister will come out from Dawson, and we'll bury him close by. He chose the spot. Then I'll leave him to the music of the Klondyke till the great silence enfolds him in its bosom."

Garvock, a little awed, in truth, stood back and looked at Rankine's uplifted face. For the time being, he had not much thought to spare for Carlotta, but was loyal in his fealty and love to the friend who had lifted him from despair.

Garvock knew that he was in the presence of a greater thing even than the love between man and woman—the deathless love of a man for his friend!

"I'd like to see him, Alan."

"Come, then," said Rankine, and led the way to the door of the shack.

CHAPTER XXXIII. LOVE CLAIMS ITS OWN.

Carlotta, with two letters on her knee, sat on the terrace steps at the back of Stair on the morning of a glorious Twelfth.

For the first time within the memory of man, no gun was out on Barassie Hill, the shooting tenant having gone, and the Laird of Stair being far away from his own demesne.

Three months' complete rest had undoubtedly helped Carlotta, had taken away the wan look and the sharp outline from her face, filled the curves once more, and restored all the waste which two years' incessant and exacting work had made.

The call to action had come again, and in her hand she held the contract for her winter's work.

It had nothing to do with Graham Madox, with whom the rupture was complete. Carlotta was sorry for it, and further was conscious of an odd reluctance to sign the document, though it was generous in all its provisions, and there was not one condition embodied in its elaborate page which she could desire to alter.

Having made the stupendous effort, she felt, somehow, as if she had come to the end of her resources.

Presently, when Judy came to her she found her with knit brows, set lips, and stormy eyes.

"This ought to go to-day, Judy, and something inside of me refuses to sign it!"

Judy nestled down on the grassy step by her side.

"Then wait till the inspiration comes. Is there any hurry?"

"The man must not be kept waiting, for he wants a holiday himself, and is going to Marienbad the day after to-morrow."

"Well, Marienbad isn't the end of the world. Put it by till to-morrow. Do you know this is the first time in Stair history there hasn't been a gun on the hills! Let us get one, Carlotta, and go out and kill something!"

Carlotta hardly smiled, though she loved the vagaries of her sister's mood, and usually entered into them with full zest.

"I think it is very selfish of Claud and Cleely not to have come," went on Judy discontentedly.

"But they are coming next week!"

It may be said here that Ann Christy and Mrs. Baddeley had shared, all the summer, the housekeeper's sitting-room at Stair, and were the best of friends, despite sundry discussions, which sometimes waxed a little acrid, regarding the relative merits of the Scotch and the English. The common bond between them was love for her who was now mistress of Stair, and surely never had there been a dearer one!

All the county knew now that the famous Margaret Tenterden was wife to Alan Rankine, or perhaps his widow. And on the whole the county behaved well. Judy had simply entrusted the secret to Bobbie Sanderson, and instructed him to spread it abroad as it ought to be spread; and Bobbie had come up to high-water mark. But the pity and the sadness of it all weighed down his bright spirit, because personally he had small hope of Alan's ultimate return. Though he was honestly glad that Peter Garvock should have risen so remarkably to the occasion, he did not believe that he would ever find Alan, much less bring him back.

Mrs. Baddeley's thin, eager face wore a very odd expression as she advanced towards the ladies, addressing herself to her own mistress.

"Pleas'em, it's Mr. Madox in the library."

"Mr. Madox?"

Carlotta and Judy stared at one another in amazed silence.

"This is very strange, but on the whole I think I'm glad, Judy! If I'm going back to the stage I would rather go with Graham Madox. This thing will never go now. Take care of it till I come back, and if I am more than twenty minutes come after me, for I shall need you."

Carlotta made constant and frank demands on her sister-in-law's time and devotion, and the rendering of such services as were in her power made Judy's allegiance to Carlotta complete. Together they had taken the tangled affairs of Stair in hand, and Carlotta's quick imagination and wide sweep of view, allied to Judy's strong common sense and practical application thereof, had mightily astonished old Samuel Richardson and even caused him to change his mind regarding the business ability of the sex.

Judy sat down on the grassy slope after Carlotta went, and with her chin in her hand, pondered on the strange fate that had cast their lot together and added such a unique and vivid page to the history of Stair.

Carlotta's hope and courage were invincible, and although no word of Peter Garvock's success or return had come to them, she simply rose up each morning saying it was all right, and that things might happen any day.

Judy had caught the invincible spirit too, and though her face was thoughtful at that moment it was not sad. She was thinking of what this visit of Graham Madox might mean, and that probably the middle of September or early October would see Carlotta once more domiciled in London.

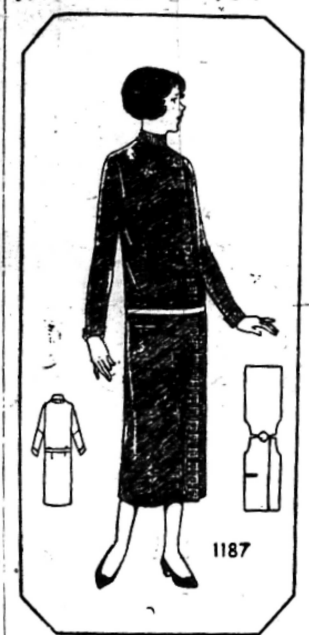

The Professor and his wife had gone for a long-planned excursion to the Black Forest, and were expected at Stair to spend the latter part of that summer.

Judy wondered in the depths of her practical soul whether it would be possible to find a six months' tenant for Stair, and determined to speak of it to Carlotta that very day. But she must first wait until she heard the result of the interview with Madox. Personally Judy had always liked Madox, and had admired his treatment of Carlotta, and forgiven him for making love to her.

The coolness between Carlotta and Madox had arisen from her refusal to take the chief part in a play Madox had written especially for her. For this decision she had given no reason, even to Judy; she had simply said she did not care for it and would not take it. Madox, keenly sensitive, as most of the writing fraternity—especially in the dramatic world—are, had resented it; and Carlotta, a little worn and fretted in spirit by the long strain, had seized the opportunity to break away.

(To be concluded.)

THE STRAIGHT AND SLENDER MODE.

Long tight-fitting sleeves and the high neck are important features of this new fall frock which follows the straight and slender mode, and buttons at the side front from the high collar to the hem. Fine repp fabrics this model, which relies on its handsome trimming braid to lend distinction. The front and back are cut in one-piece, and a set-in pocket is conveniently placed at the right side. The diagram shows the simple design of No. 1187, which is in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years, or 34, 36, and 38 inches bust. Size 18 years (or 36 bust) requires 3½ yards of 36-inch, or 3 yards of 40-inch material. Price 20 cents.

Home sewing brings nice clothes within the reach of all, and to follow the mode is delightful when it can be done so easily and economically, by following the styles pictured in our new Fashion Book. A chart accompanying each pattern shows the ma-

EARN MONEY AT HOME

THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS Are Earned Each Month I Know Because I Pay It!

No matter where you live you can work for me. If it is money you want, read this.

HOW would you like to earn extra money without leaving your home—without neglecting your other duties? Not by canvassing or selling, but in a pleasant, private way—right in your own home!

Even though you have no actual need to earn money, wouldn't it be very pleasant to sit down this afternoon or this evening and in an easy restful way turn your spare time into dollars?

Here is What You Do

With a simple hand knitting machine you knit wool socks for me. I pay you cash for the knitting—so much a pair—and I keep you supplied with the yarn that you use. I sell the socks my workers knit to wholesale firms here in Toronto—Hundreds of thousands of pairs. I have immediate sale for every pair that I can possibly get.

Experience Unnecessary

Each worker learns from a set of simple, clear instructions. They work as much or as little as they please, filling in the hours that best suit their convenience. Of course the more socks they knit the larger their pay-check.

These Workers Are Happy With Their Earnings

I have over one thousand letters in my office written by men and women who are only too glad to tell others of their success. I only wish that I could print them all for you to read! Think how pleased Mrs. George Poole of Ontario must be that she sent me her name four years ago. Here is part of her last letter: "I have had my machine over four years, since taking up the work I have never been without money. As we live three miles from town I have always wanted a car, and now I have one which my Auto Knitter is paying for. Last winter I cleared $325.00." And part of a very interesting letter from Mrs. James Shaw, also of Ontario, reads as follows: "We have had our machine three years. Last fall from October until two days before Christmas, it brought me in $400.00." While most of my workers are women, hundreds of men find it profitable to turn their spare time into dollars. Listen to Mr. Arlington Fraser, who lives in a small Ontario town: "I was a little afraid of starting as I had never seen a knitting machine, but with the help of the instructions it was easy. I have only had the machine five months and I have made $325.00 in my spare time." When you read these simply written records of what others are doing, is there any reason why you cannot do the same?

Beautiful Booklet Free

My beautiful booklet giving full information about Auto Knitting is free. It is illustrated with photographs and letters of those who are making a great success of this Home-Earning plan. I would like very much to send you a copy. I know you will be surprised to learn how valuable your spare time is.

Simply fill in the coupon below and by return mail you will receive the booklet. And please remember, there is not the slightest obligation in your doing this. It will be my pleasure to send it. Why not clip the coupon right now and mail it as soon as you can?

In the last fiscal year 3,843 homestead entries were granted in the Prairie Provinces, aggregating an approximate area of 614,880 acres, while, in addition, 710 soldier grants of 113,600 acres, make up a grand total of 728,480 acres so settled.

In 1915 Canada exported no wheat to China. In 1918 she sent only eight bushels to Japan. In 1924 China imported over 5,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat and over 1,500,000 barrels of flour, while Japan took 7,000,000 bushels of wheat and 110,000 barrels of flour. It is predicted these figures will be well beaten for the current year.

The Grand Challenge Cup, emblematic of the First Aid Championship of the entire system of the Canadian Pacific Railway, will be competed for at the Place Viger Hotel, Montreal, November 15. The champions in a knock-out competition among Eastern and Western teams respectively, will fight it out for the trophy.

Plans are already being laid to make the 1925 Eastern International Dogged Derby an even greater success than in any previous year, and it is reported that the prize money will be considerably increased next winter, with the object of attracting more teams and mushers from the West and the United States.

Fire Prevention Week, October 4-10, was observed throughout the Dominion, and to mark the sense of the importance of the occasion Mr. Grant Hall, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, broadcast an appeal by wire to every officer and employee of the system "to co-operate as in the past and set a good example by thoroughly cleaning up all premises."

Canada's great outlook, says a recent issue of the London Outlook, is that she wants more people, but of the right type, namely, steady agricultural workers with enterprise, initiative and endurance. Enthusiastic letters from emigrants under the joint scheme of settling 3,000 families in Canada are bound to have their healthy effect on relatives and friends dissatisfied with their lot in England.

E. F. L. Sturdee, general Passenger Agent for the Orient of the C.P.R., with headquarters at Hong Kong, has been appointed Assistant General Passenger Agent of the system at Montreal. His duties commenced here in October. He was relieved of his other work owing to ill-health, but the climate of Canada soon restored him to physical well-being. He has a long record of service with the C.P.R., dating back to his first appointment at Saint John in 1894.

Sixty bushels of wheat at every tick of the clock is the rate at which the Canadian Pacific Railway have carried the grain into the elevators this season. To keep up this unprecedented rush, it has been necessary to move one car-load of grain out of Winnipeg at every one minute and twenty-three seconds of the twenty-four hour day. Grain delivered at the head of the lakes by the Canadian Pacific in September alone would fill a fleet of 200 ships, each with a cargo of 200,000 bushels.

Back from an extended tour of inspection over the company's western lines, E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, found a very marked improvement in the West as compared with that which had existed when he last went across the country. He thought the spirit of the people was much more optimistic and with very good reason since he considered it safe to say that 300,000,000 bushels was not too high an estimate for the total Canadian wheat yield this year. He noticed throughout the country a sustained interest in immigration and a more general realization that therein lay the soundest remedy for the age of Canada's difficulties.

ISLINGTON

Mr. H. R. Pattison, for the past two and a half years leader of Islington Presbyterian Choir, has resigned to accept a position as soloist in Euclid Ave. United Church, Toronto. The choir members gave him a farewell surprise at his home in Toronto last Wednesday night and presented him with a cut glass water set. Mr. A. M. Allen has been offered the dual position of organist and leader and it is hoped he will accept as he is a musician of outstanding repute.

Last Wednesday evening in the United Church here, Rev. J. S. Harrington, a returned missionary from China, gave an excellent lecture illustrated by lantern slides on "The Romance of China." The meeting was under the auspices of the Upper Canada Bible Society. The three churches here contributed far too small an audience, considering the importance of the theme and the objective. A house-to-house canvass will be instituted by committees from the Anglican, United and Presbyterian Churches.

At the last meeting of the executive of the Islington Ratepayers Association it was decided to call a meeting of all the ratepayers to discuss the advisability of erecting a firehall and procuring a small engine and hose reel to meet the present requirements of the community.

The recent formal opening of two new rooms at Eatonville School (better known as Swamp School), was celebrated with fitting ceremony. Addresses were delivered by Trustees Hughes and Marshall, Reeve Tier, Inspector Campbell, M.A., Dr. McNamara and Miss D. Reaman, former teachers; and by two former pupils who began their school life there in the persons of A. Mercer and J. H. Beames. A fine program was given by the pupils, assisted by outside talent. This was followed by inspection of the new rooms, luncheon to the visitors, and a dance free to all who could manoeuvre the outlandish modern "trots." Across the hall from the new entrance above the door appears this inscription: "S. S. No. 2, Eatonville, Erected 1870." This is the old brick building which served for so many years and now remains at the rear in a "T" formation as a third class room. About twenty years ago, when increased accommodation was needed, instead of enlarging the brick building, a separate frame structure was built in another part of the grounds. This latter building was torn down this summer to make way for the more modern, furnace heated addition. Its location being at the corner of Bloor St. and Brown's line, the Eaton farms surround it on all corners. Through the generosity of the T. Eaton Co. the grounds were greatly enlarged a few years ago. In the late "Seventies" this school site was surrounded by dense bush, poorly drained. Hence the name "Swamp School," now under the more acceptable appellation "Eatonville School."

Miss M. Fisher is principal and Miss McKay and Mrs. K. Gooding are the assistants. The foundation of the one-storey addition provides for a second storey when needed—possibly only a couple of years, as the section includes the thickly populated district on (Bloor St., comprising five-acre garden lots. The total cost of the new addition is $14,500.

Earlby Shannon L.O.B.A. No. 550, was organized two years ago and was named after Earlby Shannon, one of the fine young men of Islington. The recent second anniversary and birthday party held in the community hall was an important milestone in the history of Orangeism here. Wor. Bro. Isaac Smith of Toronto, presided. A new banner, bearing a picture of Earlby, was unveiled by Sister Scott, Toronto, and dedicated by Rev. Thomas Dodds. This banner costing $800, and a new piano valued at $400 presented to the lodge by Bro. Smith, have both been fully paid for by private subscriptions. At the banquet which followed, Mayor Foster, Toronto, who lived here as a boy, was one of the speakers. On behalf of the lodge, Mrs. Shannon, mother of Earlby, was presented with an immense basket of roses by the Mayor.

The Continuation room of our school, under Principal H. S. White, has been selected for observation and critic work for first class teachers-in-training at Toronto Normal School.

A new bus route was inaugurated today (Monday), to carry Islington and Lambton pupils to Weston High School. It leaves Bloor and Dundas at 8 a.m. and returning leaves Weston H. S. at 4 o'clock. The fare each way is ten cents.

A reception was tendered to Rev. N. Argyle Hurlbut and family last night by the congregation of St. Paul's United Church, Milton. Rev. Mr. Hurlbut succeeds Rev. T. H. The output of silver from Cobalt during July amounted to about 400,000 ounces, according to preliminary estimates. This had a value of less than $300,000, or at the rate of about $3,500,000 a year.

All attendance records for the Central Canada Exhibition were broken this year. There was a total attendance of 349,200, or 42,400 greater than the previous record of 307,000, made in 1922.

The first Italian ship to visit Vancouver in several years will be the steamer Piave II, of the Navigazione Libera Trestina, due here at the end of this month. This boat will inaugurate a new service between this port and points on the Mediterranean.

Production of paper by the Powell River Company, at Vancouver, will be increased 80 per cent by the completion of a $5,000,000 development programme, now under way, according to an announcement made by M. J. Scanlan, a director of the company. At present the plant is turning out about 75,000 tons a year.

Signs of returning prosperity to Canada are evidenced by the fact that more Canadians are registered in the Canadian Pacific Rocky Mountain resorts during the past week than at any time since the beginning of the year. These resorts, which are usually filled almost entirely by Americans, contain a guest list last week which is 50 per cent Canadian.

Production of gold in Ontario for the first six months of this year amounted to $14,506,219, as compared with $11,810,060 in the corresponding period of last year, according to a report issued by the Provincial Department of Mines. Silver production increased from $3,262,100 to $3,792,662. Total mineral production was $41,560,355, as compared with $37,997,776.

John Edwin Hoag and Frank S. Wilton, who travelled across the entire continent in a small motor-boat arrived recently in Montreal and moored their craft to Canadian Pacific Pier No. 8 having come from Astoria, Oregon, via Columbia River, Celilo Falls, Fort Benton, the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers, the Chicago Drainage Canal and Lake Michigan since May, 20th. From Montreal they continued their journey to New York and returned to the States, via Canadian Pacific Railway to Vancouver and Seattle in order to see the country.

The groundwork for what promises to be a big industry is now being developed by the Singer Sewing Machine Company at Thurso, a point on the Canadian Pacific Railway, on the north shore line to Ottawa. It is planned by the Singer Company to manufacture at Thurso all the woodwork required for their numerous plants in different parts of the world. Work on the new plant is being pushed with all possible speed and it is anticipated that shipments from Thurso will commence sometime early next year.

While the Canadian Railway Commission is besieged with all kinds of applications for reductions in Canadian freight rates, the Western group of railways in the United States is asking for a five per cent increase and the northwestern section of the group is asking more than that "as a measure of relief." Some of these roads are in the hands of the receivers. Yet these American railways already have higher rates than the Canadian roads, the freight revenues in the U.S.A. being 1,288 cents per ton mile on western lines as compared with 1,011 cents on all Canadian railways. The average American rate is 28 per cent above the average Canadian rate. Owing to the low grain rates in Canada, the C.P.R. average rate is 1,011 per ton mile, so that the average rate on American western lines is more than 20 per cent above the average C.P.R. rate.

Unveiling The "Altar of Peace" at Vancouver

The President Harding International Good-Will Memorial located in Stanley Park, Vancouver and erected by Kiwanis International through the voluntary subscriptions of its 95,000 members in the United States and Canada, was unveiled by John H. Moss, president of a large gathering of both United States and Canadian government officials and members of Kiwanis.

The memorial was designed by Charles Marega, a well known Italian sculptor of Vancouver. When the scheme was first decided upon, it was the intention of the American Kiwanis Clubs to raise the funds on their side of the border and to present the memorial to Canada. Canadian Kiwanis, however, insisted upon contributing towards the fund and the memorial was thus erected by the joint efforts of the United States and Canadian clubs.

At the unveiling ceremony, the Dominion Government was represented by Hon. Dr. J. H. King and Dr. G. T. Harding, brother of the late president. United States Kiwanis was represented by International President John H. Moss, and International Past President Victor S. Johnson and Edmund F. Arras. The Canadian Pacific Railway was represented by Frank W. Peters, General Superintendent at Vancouver. Several of the United States delegates in the Canadian Pacific Rockies before proceeding to Vancouver. The memorial itself is throughout a made-in-Canada product, being designed by Canadians and made of Canadian materials and by Canadian labor.

The site of the memorial is the spot where the late

President Harding made his last public speech, when just before he died in 1923 he visited Canada. Warren G. Harding, late president of the U. S. A. was a chartered member of the Kiwanis Club at Marion, Ohio, his home town.

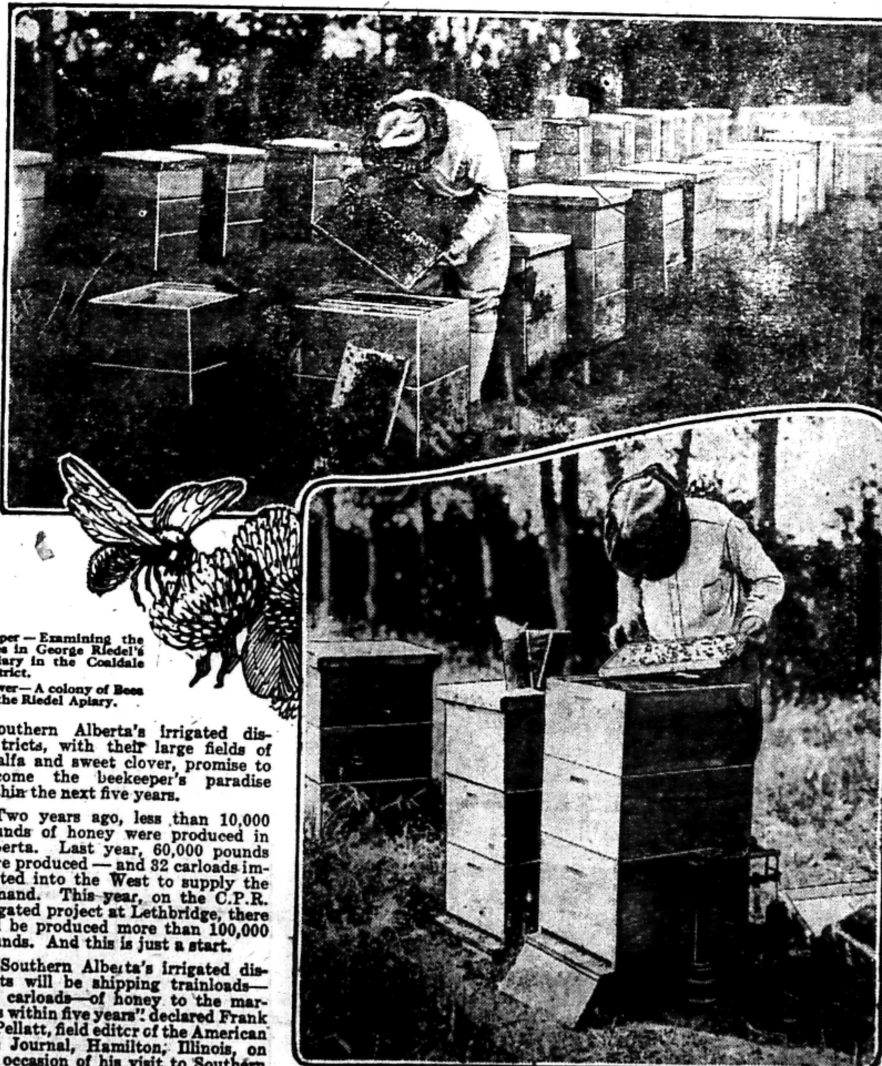

An extract from the speech made by the Chief Executive of the United States on that occasion, written in bronze for the memorial, and the possible text of many a murmured prayer of hope of the cosmopolitan tourist who reads it as he passes through the park, is as follows:

"What an object lesson of peace is shown today by our two countries to all the world. No grim-faced fortifications mark our frontiers, no huge battleships patrol our dividing waters, no stealthy spies lurk our tranquil border hamlets. Only a score of sentinels, recording hardly more than a simple understanding, safeguarding lives and properties on the Great Lakes, and only humble mileposts mark the inviolable boundary-line for thousands of miles through farm and forest."

"Our protection is in our fraternity, our armor is our faith, and the tie that binds, more firmly each year, is ever-increasing acquaintance and comradeship through interchange of citizens; and the compact is not perishable parchment, but of fair and honorable dealing, which, God grant, shall continue for all time."

The memorial, which is known as "The Altar of Peace," has been referred to as the only material symbol of fortification, outside of mileposts, to outline the invisible demarcation of the thousands of miles of border line separating the two countries from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Southern Alberta is Beekeeper's Paradise

Upper—Examining the bees in George Riedel's Apiary in the Coaldale district.
Lower—A colony of bees in the Riedel Apiary.

Southern Alberta's irrigated districts, with their large fields of alfalfa and sweet clover, promise to become the beekeeper's paradise within the next five years.

Two years ago, less than 10,000 pounds of honey were produced in Alberta. Last year, 60,000 pounds were produced—and 82 carloads imported into the West to supply the demand. This year, on the C.P.R. irrigated project at Lethbridge, there will be produced more than 100,000 pounds. And this is just a start.

"Southern Alberta's irrigated districts will be shipping trainloads—not carloads—of honey to the markets within five years," declared Frank C. Pellatt, field editor of the American Bee Journal, Hamilton, Illinois, on the occasion of his visit to Southern Alberta late in July this year. "This is the greatest potential honey-producing district in North America."

Today, one apiarist in the Coaldale district on the C.P.R. irrigated project has 600 colonies of bees. This man, C. George Riedel, came to Southern Alberta from California in the spring of 1924 and started with 900 colonies. In 1926 he will have 1800 colonies and will make more than 160 tons of honey. This year his bees will make him about 50 tons, and one wholesale firm having branches throughout the West is handling the whole output.

Each colony of bees makes about 200 pounds in a season, though one colony at the Lethbridge Experimental Farm broke all records for Canada by making 472 pounds in the season of 1923. A record of 21 pounds in one day by one colony was made in 1923 when the bees at the Experimental Farm averaged 189 pounds for the season, the high record for the year at the experimental farms across Canada.

Protection that will Protect Peel Farmers

THE MARKETING PROBLEM

The marketing of its products is the primary problem facing the agricultural industry of Canada. During the last few years that problem has been allowed to become acute so that to-day the Canadian farmer is having serious difficulty in finding satisfactory markets for his products. He has no assurance of reasonable return from his enterprise and industry. Since the War distressing economic conditions have been attributed broadly to world-wide causes over which no individual country had control. That excuse alone cannot be advanced for the situation confronting Canadian agriculture.

The problem of markets is acute in Canada to-day for the reason that this country has not done what other countries have done. The products of Canadian agriculture are without profitable markets because while other countries have taken measures for their own protection, this country has not done so. While the markets of countries competing with Canada in agricultural production have been closed against the Canadian farmer, the market of Canada has been opened still wider to those same competitors. SHUT OUT OF FOREIGN MARKETS THE CANADIAN FARMER HAS NOT EVEN ADVANTAGE OF HIS HOME MARKET.

That is why Right Hon. Arthur Meighen declares that "the farmer in this country to-day is competing with his fellow-farmer in other countries under conditions of absolute unfairness." That is why he says that the first tariffs that should be increased are the tariffs on farm products.

UNITED STATES MARKET CLOSED

The worst blow that has fallen on Canadian agriculture in recent years was administered by the adoption of the Fordney Tariff in the United States. It practically shut Canadian farm and dairy products out of the United States market. The Fordney tariff was the great achievement of the organized farmers of the United States. Controlling the balance power in Congress, they insisted that their home market should be reserved for themselves. That was the method by which the farmers of the United States determined to meet post-war competition, and it is the method almost every other country in the world except Canada has taken in face of the keenest economic competition the world has seen.

The Fordney tariff was aimed especially at Canada, the most important competitor of the United States in agricultural production. Canada has no legitimate grievance on that account. The United States has every right to protect herself. Canada's grievance is against herself. THIS COUNTRY TOOK THE BLOW LYING DOWN. IT DID NOT HAVE TO STAND UNDER THE DISABILITY IMPOSED BY THE RAISING OF THE UNITED STATES TARIFF. THE GOVERNMENT OF THE DAY DECREED THAT WE SHOULD DO SO.

The adoption of the Fordney tariff made it imperative for Canada to act. With the United States market closed to the products of Canada no other course was open in this country but to fortify and enlarge her own market in behalf of her own producers. Canada could ignore the action of the United States only at cost to herself. Under the King Government it was ignored. Immediately upon the adoption of the Fordney tariff in 1922, Canada began to feel the effect, and the King Government did nothing to meet the situation. Instead it has continued to harp about the cost of living, and the only efforts it has made to relieve the cost of living have been at the expense of the farmer—and from the sacrifices made no results have been achieved.

THE FARMER'S COMPETITION

What is the position of the Canadian farmer in consequence? On what terms is he competing with the farmer of the United States? They are terms that not only forbid the sale of his products in the United States but compel him at the same time to witness United States products replacing his own in the home market of Canada. Let us examine some of these terms.

The United States market is reserved exclusively to the United States wheat grower by a prohibitive duty against foreign wheat. Not a bushel of wheat from Canada or any other country can enter the United States except over a tariff duty of 42 cents a bushel. Wheat from the United States or anywhere else can come into Canada at a duty of 12 cents a bushel.

The Canadian farmer cannot sell his corn in the United States without its paying a duty of 15 cents a bushel. United States corn enters this country to compete with the Canadian grain absolutely free of duty.

Canadian wheat flour is shut out of the United States by a duty of $2.04 a barrel. American flour is allowed to compete with the Canadian product in this country at a duty of 50 cents a barrel.

The Canadian farmer cannot sell his hay in the United States except by paying a duty of $4 a ton. The United States farmer can send hay into Canada at $2 a ton.

The United States taxes Canadian potatoes 50 cents a hundred pounds. Potatoes from the United States are replacing the home grown product on the Canadian market because they are let in at 35 cents a hundred pounds.

The butter industry in Canada is constantly treated to much word-of-mouth concern. But although a tariff duty of 8 cents a pound is maintained against Canadian butter by the United States, United States butter can and does come into Canada to compete with the product of the Canadian farmer and dairyman at just half that duty.

American cheese is let in at a duty of 3 cents a pound but Canadian cheese must pay 5 cents a pound to get into the United States.

The American farmer is protected by a duty of 8 cents a dozen on eggs. Competition with the Canadian farmer is invited by a tariff of 3 cents.

The Fordney tariff greatly increased protection on cattle in the interest of the farmer and American stockman.

The struggling fruit growing industry of Canada is allowed a tariff protection of 25 per cent. against a 35 per cent. tariff maintained by the United States for the benefit of the well-established and highly organized industry of that country.

CREAM OF THE MARKET

In addition to the above tariff conditions enjoyed by the American producer, he has some very important natural advantages over his Canadian competitor in the markets of Canada. Climatic conditions enable him to produce more cheaply than the Canadian, and also to send his products into Canada before the products of this country are ready for market. In the poultry branch of the industry, for example, while the Canadian is producing eggs at the high peak of midwinter cost and we are importing large quantities of American eggs, the poultryman in California and other southern states are operating under Spring conditions and their products are turned out at the lowest cost of the year. The Canadian's disadvantage is to some extent even more pronounced in the case of vegetables and fruits. When the Canadian products come on the market the appetite of the consumer has already been appeased by imported fruits and vegetables, the American rival having had the benefit of the most profitable part of the trade—the early demand for fresh products. At the same time the Canadian is under the necessity of producing his early vegetables under the expense of hot house conditions in a climate where this equipment in order to be efficient is necessarily costly. Competing products are grown in the open air, coming first from Mexico and later from the southern states.

What consideration has the Canadian producer had from the present Government in these circumstances? The record of the last four years will be searched in vain for any evidence of concern on the part of the Administration. The cause of the home producer has been pleaded often enough in Parliament to have disturbed the indifference of the Government, but its attitude appears to be calculated. When in the House of Commons the Minister was being besought to consider the unfair competition suffered by the Canadian in his own home market, the response from a member of the Cabinet, Hon. J. H. King, was a pious regret that anyone should suggest that the people of Canada should not have every opportunity to import early fruits and vegetables. "I hope," he declared, "that the people of Canada will always be in a position to import these things and other delicacies that they may like to have in their homes." Surely a plain enough intimation to the Canadian producer that he was wasting his breath by voicing his troubles to the Government.

"The schedule which is the most unjust of the whole of the tariff schedules of Canada is that relating to farm products. The first tariff schedule that should be raised in this country is the farm products schedule." The farmer in this country to-day is competing with his fellow farmer in other countries under conditions of absolute unfairness. The goods that he produces are brought into this country under a relative-low tariff or none at all, while he is forbidden access to other countries save over a tariff that he simply cannot escape."

When the Meighen Government was in power, Americans could not dump surplus stocks of fruits and vegetables into Canada at prices less than the cost of production and thereby kill the market for Canadian products. Canadian growers were protected against that most unjust of all forms of competition by an adequate and efficient dumping regulation. But even that degree of protection was not allowed to remain by the present Government. It was upon protests from the fruit growing industry against the dumping into Canada of fruit from the United States below the cost of production that the Meighen Government in 1921 amended the Customs Act to end this evil. The amendment provided that the value set for the purpose of assessing customs duty on imported goods "shall in no case be less than the actual cost of production of similar goods at date of shipment direct to Canada plus a reasonable profit thereon, and the Minister of Customs and Excise shall be the sole judge of what shall constitute a reasonable profit in the circumstances."

NEED OF PROTECTION

How can the Canadian farmer be placed upon a fair and equal footing with his competitor except by tariff protection? Progressives in the House of Commons continue to advocate free trade, or failing that, reduced tariffs notwithstanding the fact that 67 other countries have raised their tariffs since the war, but does the farmer who sent them to Parliament seeing the markets of other countries closed to him while his own remains open to outside competition, follow their argument? It seems to be thought by free trade theorists that if this country set an example with their policy, other countries will follow it. A pretty expensive attempt at reforming the fiscal system of the world for this country to make, and a hopeless one on the face of it. Are the markets of the United States to be opened to Canada by such a course? Certainly they are not.

Canada is in no position to make terms with the United States if relief from the American tariff barrier should be sought by this country. The United States enjoys all the advantages of the Canadian market now and has no need to make concession. We have nothing with which to bargain. If our own market were protected as is the American market we would have something with which to deal, something the Americans didn't get for nothing.

OUR SELF-RESPECT

Our generosity to our competitors is entirely gratuitous. We do not receive even sentimental advantages from it. On the contrary it reflects on our self-respect. The United States and other competing nations are proud of their self-reliance. Canada would lose nothing in their esteem by looking first to her own interests.

The farmer is told by those who refuse him protection to consider the free market of Great Britain. The present Government has made a great display of effort to cultivate the British market in the interests of the farmer. But what has that to do with the situation? CANADIAN FARM PRODUCTS HAVE ACCESS TO THE BRITISH MARKET ON EXACTLY THE SAME TERMS AS THE PRODUCTS OF ANY OTHER COUNTRY. THE BRITISH MARKET IS FREE, BUT IT IS JUST AS FREE TO THE ADEQUATELY PROTECTED FARMER OF THE UNITED STATES AS IT IS TO THE FARMER OF CANADA.

STILL MORE COMPETITION

Now, as if conditions were not already bad enough, the Canadian door has been thrown still further open to outside agricultural products. Additional competition for the mixed farmer of Canada has been invited. Under the treaty made by the King Government with Australia, the Canadian farmer is to bear the entire cost of the concessions secured from Australia in the tariff on Canadian paper and automobile parts and canned fish. Putting it bluntly the Canadian farmer has been sold for the benefit of these other lines of industry. A treaty could and should have been made with Australia that would have secured advantages to this country without injury to the farmer. By raising the general tariff on agricultural products, the Government could have given Australia substantial preferences and protected the farmer by restricting the competition from the United States. Instead, it wiped out entirely or reduced to a useless figure the duties on such commodities as Australia is best able to send into Canada at low cost to compete with the products of the Canadian farmer and dairyman. But the Government appears to have been actuated by a special desire to sacrifice the mixed farmer for the supposed benefit of the grain grower.

The first treaty negotiated by the Government representative and actually adopted by the Australian Government provided for a general increase in our duties on farm produce and then made a reduction in favor of the Australian producer in our markets. This would have been of benefit to our farming industry as the tariff on American produce now flooding our markets would have been increased—but this would not have been in the interests of Uncle Sam. It would have been too grave a departure from the pro United States policy of the King Government and so the interests of the Canadian farmer are again sacrificed and the treaty is changed—put through without increases, but with the same proportional decreases in favor of the Australian farmer. No Canadian farmer with an intelligent interest in, and knowledge of, his industry can vote for the King Government. Australia, like the United States, recognizes the need of protection. The following table shows how the Australian farmer is protected in his home market and the situation of the Canadian farmer in comparison. The figures on the left are the duties imposed by Australia against Canada and all other countries, while those on the right are the terms on which the same products from Australia are allowed into Canada under the new trade treaty:

CAN UNDERSELL THE CANADIAN

The significance of this disparity is realized when the cost of production in Australia of many of the articles that are free or next to free enter into Canada is considered. Meats and wool are produced in Australia for a fraction of the cost of production in Canada.

Climatic conditions which permit of the grazing of stock throughout the entire year place the cost of production at a minimum. Dressed cattle sold at $2.90 a hundred weight. No such prices have obtained in Canada for thirty years or more. Cattle cannot be produced in this country at anything near those figures. But under the Australian Treaty the Canadian cattle raiser is to be forced to compete with Australian beef entering this country at a duty of ½ cent a pound. And the Australian has the further advantage of a bonus from his Government of $2.40 for every beef carcass he exports.

It was recognized by Parliament long ago that the sheep raising industry in Canada was in need of encouragement, and a law was placed on the statute books enabling the Government to apply a tariff on combed wool as a measure of assistance to the industry. In 1923 when the depressed conditions in agriculture were apparent to everybody, the Government was reminded from the floor of the House of Commons of this provision, but no action has been taken although the situation has been growing worse. It is not without significance that since the advent of the Liberal Government to office the sheep population of Canada has shrunk by 750,000.

Sheepmen acknowledge that nothing will stabilize the industry like a stable market for wool, but the Government goes on spending millions to teach the farmer better methods of production and is failing absolutely to meet the crux of the situation by securing the best marketing conditions possible. It is not even sanely attempting to improve marketing conditions. Nothing is so great an incentive to the farmer to produce as the realization that he is assured of a satisfactory market when his products are ready to sell. Marketing, in fact, is vital to success in all agricultural efforts. As an indication of how hopeless it is for the producers of this country to expect improved conditions from this Government we quote two of the most prominent members of the Cabinet. Speaking on the reductions in the tariff in his Budget speech April 24th, 1924, the Honourable Mr. Stewart, Minister of the Interior, said: "I trust that it will be the death knell of protection." The Honourable Mr. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, not so bold as his colleague, but always plausible when speaking, in the same debate, on May 7th, 1924, made the following statement: "We are beginning to do slowly what we had endeavoured to do rapidly on three historic occasions and failed—in 1878 and in 1891 unrestricted reciprocity, and in 1911 reciprocity in natural products. We endeavoured to go rapidly, but we were told we were going too quickly and were defeated in each instance. Now we have been marching out to the same objective by easy stages, so easy the first two years that our action did not meet with very much approval."

LOSS TO THE FARMERS

Part of the enormous loss sustained by the farmers of Canada as a result of our tariff policy is seen in our imports and exports of agricultural products.

Canada imported from the United States in 1924 (official figures from the annual report of the Department of Trade and Commerce) agricultural and vegetable products to the value of $81,368,503 and we sold to the United States only $51,337,733. Moreover, on the $81,368,503 of agricultural products brought in from the United States almost all of which with the exception of some $16,000,000 worth of rubber and oils, came to compete with Canadian products on our home market, we collected in customs duty only $8,390,384.17, so that our tariff averaged about ten per cent. The United States tariff against our agricultural products averages closer to fifty per cent.

Back in 1921, before the Fordney tariff went into effect, we sold the United States in agricultural and vegetable products, not $51,337,733 but $146,539,883. That is what the United States farmers have done for themselves by raising their tariff. What is the lesson for Canada?

This country, whose principal industry is agriculture, is importing agricultural and vegetable products for consumption at the rate of close on two hundred million dollars a year—last year the amount was $186,468,685. Why are not our own farmers supplying this market? Why is all that money going to foreign producers? Our inadequate tariff is the reason. We are buying nearly half as much as we export, our export sales last year amounting to $430,938,159.

These figures are conclusive proof of the wisdom of Mr. Meighen's policy for the agricultural industry of Canada.

THE HOME MARKET

The home market must be the primary concern of Canadian industry, agricultural or any other. Everybody appreciates that. And with the home market protected, Canada will have something with which to bargain for increased access to other markets. The entire plan of protection of the Conservative Party affects the farmer, not merely the direct protection to farm products. The protection policy of the Conservative Party proposes to conserve and enlarge all industries that this country can operate successfully. By the manufacture of Canadian raw materials in the country instead of in other countries, hundreds of thousands of consumers will be added to the market for the Canadian farmer's products. The policy enunciated by Mr. Meighen in the House of Commons during the recent sessions proposes to end a situation in which for $1,000,000 derived by this country, for a given quantity of raw material, the United States Manufacturer received $10,000,000 for the same material in finished form. The Canadian farmer, shut out of the markets of the United States, does not require a lightning calculator in order to realize whether or not he stands to benefit by the retention in the country of the ninety per cent. of the ultimate value of the products of the Canadian mines and forests now going into the pockets of America. The Canada-first policy of the party led by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen proposes to bring to this country the benefit of her own resources. By arousing public opinion, the Conservative Party in the House of Commons prevented the wholesale diversion of electric power from this country. It means to prevent the diversion of all other raw materials that can be turned into finished goods within the boundaries of the Dominion.

THE REMEDY OFFERED

AS A RESULT OF THE FAILURE OF THE KING GOVERNMENT TO MEET THE SITUATION FORCED UPON THE COUNTRY BY THE ACTION TAKEN BY OTHER COUNTRIES, IT IS ESTIMATED THAT THE FARMERS OF CANADA ARE LOSING MANY MILLIONS OF DOLLARS ANNUALLY. IT IS WORTH THE FARMER'S WHILE TO COMPARE THIS FAILURE OF THE GOVERNMENT TO MOVE FOR THE PROTECTION OF AGRICULTURE IN CONDITIONS THAT HAVE ARISEN SINCE IT TOOK OFFICE WITH THE PURPOSE OF PRACTICAL POLICY OF MR. MEIGHEN INDICATED IN THE CLEAN CUT, UNEQUIVOCAL STATEMENT FROM WHICH QUOTATION IS MADE ON THE COVER OF THIS PRINT.

THE KING GOVERNMENT HAS FAILED THE FARMER. THE GROUP IN PARLIAMENT THAT SHOULD SPECIALLY REPRESENT HIS INTERESTS, THE PROGRESSIVES HAVE FAILED HIM. THE ONLY RELIEF OFFERED TO THE FARMING INDUSTRY OF CANADA TODAY IS THAT CONTAINED IN THE POLICY AND PLATFORM OF THE CONSERVATIVE PARTY—THE DETERMINED PROTECTION AND DEVELOPMENT OF THE HOME MARKET FOR THE CANADIAN PRODUCER.

ALFALFA FOR THE FRUIT GROWER

Alfalfa Works in Well With the Fruit Grower's Program.

BY HERBERT NAFZIGER.

To be the possessor of a good alfalfa field gives any farmer a pleasant and soul-satisfying feeling, but for a fruit grower who has work horses and a few cows to feed, it is satisfying to the seventh degree.

Perhaps I feel that way because I am a fruit grower and have in the past experienced the woes and irritations of the man who has to buy all or nearly all, of his hay and other feed.

A man who lives in the midst of a highly intensive fruit country naturally wants to have as much of his farm as possible in fruit. Furthermore, the fruit grower has his farm equipped and geared up to grow fruit. That is the thing which he can do most efficiently and with a minimum of lost motion and expense.

The fruit specialist is not, as a rule, equipped to raise grain, and if he tries to raise some corn or other grain on the side, he will sooner or later find himself between the horns of a dilemma. He finds that he has to hurry over or neglect some part of his fruit growing in order to take care of the grain, or he has to tend strictly to his fruit and let the grain go.

Neither alternative is desirable in these days of high efficiency and small profit margins. The alternative of neglecting his orchard operations is especially undesirable, as sometimes a few days' neglect proves disastrous.

To cite an instance, a neighbor of mine had a nice field of corn started which was at the time badly in need of cultivation. The weather was warm, weeds were growing lustily, and a little more neglect would mean a weedy corn field. On the other hand, it was time to spray his apples. What to do? He finally decided that the apples could wait a few days longer, so he went into the corn.

FALSE ECONOMY.

After the corn was cultivated and he was just getting a good start on the spraying, it began to rain, not an ordinary shower, but a week's rainy spell. As a result, scab obtained a foothold in his orchard, to the detriment of his pack at harvest time.

He told me that his loss from that false move was much more than the entire corn field was worth.

This is an age of specialists. A man must put his hand and brain to some special line if he expects to make good. The Jack of all trades is a back number. Whatever he tackles he finds himself competing with experts who can run rings around him.

There are few lines of business which require such a high degree of vigilance, judgment, knowledge and strict application as does the growing of high-grade fruit. A good motto for a fruit grower is "Hew to the line and let some other fellow pick up the chips."

Considering farm efficiency we found that the only feed crop that we could safely raise on our fruit farm was hay. So we seeded some spare land to clover and timothy. For several reasons this plan did not prove to be ideal. First, the clover and timothy would run out and need renewing. Second, our feed bill remained rather high, because we had to buy grain in considerable amounts to supplement the hay, and also because the hay crop from the land available was not enough to carry us through the season.

ADVANTAGES OF ALFALFA.

Alfalfa, however, comes as near the ideal as possible. It stands many years without renewal. It has high feeding value, thus cutting the grain bill down to a minimum, and finally, it yields a large amount per acre, thus enabling the fruit man to raise enough feed on a small acreage to carry him through.

We cut our alfalfa twice in a season because, if we cut three times, the last cutting interferes with the fall fruit harvest. Incidentally, we found that cutting only twice preserves the vigor and life of the stand, and makes practically as much hay as three cuttings.

In these days of certified and adapted seed, the problem of getting a stand is not nearly as acute as it formerly was. However, on much of our fruit belt land a new seeding still needs considerable coddling for successful results. Several plans have been tried out on our farm, and I will briefly describe the one plan that has for us proved practically infallible.

Most of our seedlings have been made directly following old sod as we wished to obviate the necessity of raising a cultivated crop for a year before sowing alfalfa. The ground is plowed late in the summer after the hay crop is off and is occasionally worked with a spring-tooth harrow until winter sets in. During the winter, or early in the spring, it is given a good coating of marl. Then, as early in spring as possible, it is thoroughly disked and again kept worked to kill weeds and sod until about the fifteenth of June; at that time the ground is given an application of about 250 to 300 pounds of acid-phosphate per acre. This is harrowed in and then the ground is seeded, without a nurse crop, and with the best certified northern-grown seed available.

The seed is lightly covered with a spike-tooth harrow and then rolled down with a land roller. Some time in midsummer, the field is mowed to keep the weeds down. The clippings are left on the field unless heavy enough to cause danger of smothering the young alfalfa. After the first year, a light application of acid-phosphate is given annually. When seeding is made in the above manner the use of the ground is, of course, lost for one year, but a certain and long-lived stand of alfalfa is surely ample compensation.

Hog Types.

Here is how one hog man describes his type of hogs: Perhaps the first thing we should look for in a hog that fits modern requirements is a strong back, uniform in width from front to rear, and uniformly arched. This is where the high-priced cuts are found, and we want it as near perfect as possible. We want to avoid a flatness over the shoulders, or any narrowness across the loin.

Look well to the side; we think more of it now than we used to. It is these deep, straight, smooth sides that cut up into nicely striped bacon. We do not want the value of these savory slices marred by creases or wrinkles. They also cause much extra work in scraping when butchering time comes round, and the deeper you can get this side, the more bacon there is.

The hams and shoulders should also be deep, well let down on the body, and well filled, but not necessarily bulging. They should fit neatly into the body, and so even with the side that a straightedge held along the side would touch the body all the way. Too much bulging inclines to coarseness, and takes the growth that might better be some place else.

As the animal walks off naturally, the underline should be straight all the way. If the sides are deep, the flanks both front and rear are full, the hams and shoulders well let down, and not too much nor too little jowl, the underline will be all right, and likewise the heart girth that we used to talk so much about.

And then the feet and legs: There is not much meat on them, to be sure; but they support and carry the whole works. They are the foundation and you know the importance of the foundation if it is a superstructure you wish to build. So we want the legs and feet of good size, and straight, toes close together, not sprawly; pasterns short and straight and stinky, not slender, long and sloping. Knees that knock toward each other, and hocks set at too great an angle are common faults and should be avoided.

Meat and Bone By-products.

The Dominion Chemist, Dr. F. T. Shutt, and his assistant, Miss S. N. Hamilton, have prepared and the Dominion Dept. of Agriculture has published a fourteen-page bulletin describing what is meant by "Meat and Bone By-products," and designed to furnish that knowledge of their composition and nature that is essential to their economic purchase and use. The feeding stuffs on the market that come under the foregoing heading include meat and blood meals, tankage, bone meal, fish meals and other related materials, mainly the by-products of the packing house, slaughter house and fish canneries, and consist of varying proportions of meat, fatty tissue, blood and bone, according to their source and method of preparation. As a class, states the bulletin, they are highly nitrogenous and phosphatic concentrates that constitute a valuable source of protein and bone-making material and are especially useful in the feeding of swine and poultry. It is essential that they should be prepared from fresh materials and as purchased should be sweet and sound, free from rancidity and mold. As a consequence, continues the bulletin, which can be had on application to the Publications Branch, Ottawa, it is obvious that these feeding stuffs should be purchased always on guaranteed analysis. One object of the investigation, the results of which are recorded in this bulletin, was the establishment of standards, in percentages of protein, fat, and phosphate of lime, for the various classes of products under consideration.

Producing Clean Milk.

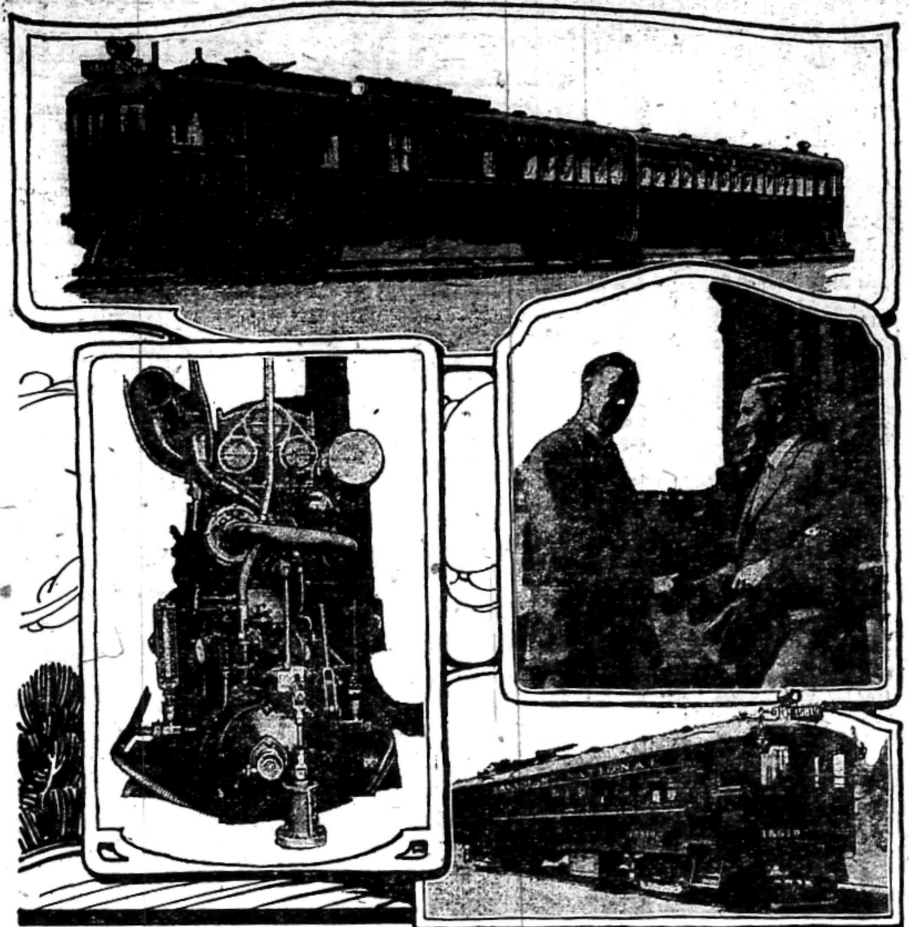

A clean pail, a covered pail and a clean animal are the big things in producing clean milk. All other sources of contamination are of lesser importance, states the Dominion Agricultural Bacteriologist in his report for 1924. To insure clean milk the pails should be washed and scoured, and, if possible, treated with steam, and care taken to have no dirt fall from the cow into the milk. The report, which is distributed free by the Publications Branch, Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa, describes in detail the methods of insuring complete cleanliness. Manure should be moved out of the reach of the animals, the cows should be regularly brushed, the milkers' hands must be carefully washed, and the foremilk should be discarded.

A Halloween Game.

Games are always in high favor for a Halloween frolic and here is one in which all the folks, young and old, may join. The group is instructed to write a word beginning with "Jack" after each statement as it is read by the leader. A given time is allowed to accomplish this and the one having the greatest number correct may receive a Jack-o-lantern for a prize while the consolation may be a lolly-pop or a popcorn ball.

A Jack with a long bushy tail—Jackal.
A Jack who couldn't eat fat—Jack Sprat.
A Jack who is very cold—Jack Frost.
A Jack who is a flower—Jack in the Pulpit.
A Jack a boy carries in his pocket—Jack-knife.
A Jack used on last day of October—Jack-o-lantern.
A Jack who is a garment—Jacket.

Canadian National Oil Electric Cars.

THE Canadian National Railways have put into service an entirely new type of motive power which may go far towards solving two of the most serious problems steam roads are facing, namely, high fuel costs and the competition of motor bus and lorry on the public highways. The oil electric car is the name given to this new method of locomotion and its creation is due to the mechanical genius of the National Railways who conceived the idea and carried it through. Relatively speaking, the principle behind the power which drives the car, is simple. In one end of the car is located a light fuel oil engine operating on the Diesel principle and this engine drives an electric generator which provides the energy to move the car. The engine is started by a small electric motor operated from storage batteries and these batteries are, in turn, recharged by the generator when it begins to function, so that the cycle of performance is a close approach to perpetual motion.

Two sizes of cars have been built, the large or articulated type and a small type. The top photograph shows the large type, consisting of two bodies resting on three four-wheel trucks, the ends of the two bodies being attached to the centre truck in such a way, by a safety locking pin, that the rear car is able to swivel sufficiently to take the curves. This car has a total length of 102 feet and can accommodate 126 passengers. In the lower left hand corner is a photograph of one end of the fuel oil engine, used on these cars. On the right Mayor J. H. Balharrie of Ottawa is seen shaking hands with Mr. C. E. Brooks, Chief Motive Power of the Canadian National Railways, on the completion of the first trial run of the large car from Montreal to Ottawa. Below is a photograph of the small car which has a passenger carrying capacity of 56. Both cars have roomy baggage ends as well.

An idea of the possibilities of these cars is to be had from the performance of the small car during a test trip from Toronto to Montreal. The mileage between those points is 334 miles. The fuel consumption of the small car on the trip cost $3.50 and lubricating oil 48 cents, or a total fuel cost of $3.98. To have operated a steam train of similar passenger carrying capacity, even with the most economical type of locomotive, would have entailed a fuel cost of at least $66.00. The ability of these cars to produce speed when required was demonstrated during the test run of the large car from Montreal to Ottawa. The trip was made in two hours and fifteen minutes actual running time or at an average rate of 52 miles per hour.

Both cars shown in the photograph are now in service. The large car is in local service on Canadian National lines out of the Tunnel Terminal between Montreal and Ottawa. The small car is in local service between Hamilton and Guelph, Ontario.

WHEN THE GUESTS UNMASK AT MIDNIGHT

The first autumn festival is at hand, and the housewife may entertain with an informal frolic and costume dance. The decorations may be carried out in pumpkin yellow and black, and if you can add a few bunches of corn stalks from the field this will give you greater leeway in the decorations and arrangements.

In one corner of the room, or in the hall, a tent may be arranged in a few minutes with the aid of a sheet and some of the pins used to hold pictures on the wall. Place a layer of corn stalks against the sheet, hiding it completely. Everything is now ready for the fortune-telling witch. A cider well can be arranged in the kitchen and will be a spot of real merriment if a fairy is presiding, and dispensing the drink. It is best to get the affair under way by 8 o'clock, for promptly at midnight the guests must unmask and sit down to the supper. Old-fashioned games and dancing will fill the intervening space of time. Well-seasoned substantial menu will form an ideal menu for the midnight Halloween supper, and this meal may be served in platter form if you should desire, or if because of limited table space you find it inconvenient to seat the guests at the table.

Macadaine Salad
Toasted Cheese Sandwiches
Sausage Sandwiches
Nut and Celery Sandwiches
Witches' Punch
Pumpkin Tarts
Mince Tarts
Cullers
Coffee
Apples, Nuts and Raisins

Serve the punch, as you will find that many of the guests will prefer this beverage to the coffee.

WITCHES' PUNCH
Place in a mixing bowl: Three pints of crushed ice, two quarts of water, three bananas (sliced thin), two oranges, (peeled and sliced thin), one cup of cranberries (sliced thin), four apples (cut in paper-thin slices), one quart of grape juice.

Place in large punchbowl or clean wooden bucket and cover the outside with pumpkin-colored crepe paper, tie to keep in place with black two-inch bands of crepe paper, and fasten a whisk broom to the side of the bowl.

MACADONNE SALAD
Place in large mixing bowl: One can of well-drained peas, three cups of finely shredded cabbage, two cups of finely diced cooked beets, three large carrots (diced and cooked until tender), two green peppers (minced fine), three red peppers (minced fine), two stalks of celery (cut in dice), six large potatoes (cooked until tender, pared and cut in dice), one cup of finely chopped onion, three tablespoons of mustard seed, one tablespoon of celery seed, three-quarters cup of finely chopped parsley, one quart of cooked salad dressing (well seasoned).

Toss to blend, and serve in crisp nests of lettuce. Garnish with slice of hard-boiled egg.

SAUSAGE SANDWICHES.
Use the pocketbook or Parker House roll for this sandwich, and have cooked and steaming hot fresh country sausage. I have found it made a decided hit to arrange this sausage sandwich on a tray covered with napkin, and have a young lad act as the sausage man, going among the guests crying hot sausages, take 'em while they're hot, 'ot, 'ot.

TOASTED CHEESE SANDWICHES.
Place in bowl: One pound of store cheese, one grated onion, one teaspoon of paprika, one-quarter cup of cream. Work well to paste, and spread on nicely buttered bread. Place in the broiler of the gas range for two minutes to toast slightly and then place the top slice of the bread in place, cut into triangles and place on paper doilies, and serve from tray like the sausage sandwiches.

NUT AND CELERY SANDWICHES.
Place four large stalks of celery and one pound of shelled nuts through the food chopper, adding one red and one green pepper, four branches of parsley, two medium-size onions. Place in bowl and add seasoning to taste and three-fourths cup of either mayonnaise or cooked dressing. Mix well and make into sandwiches.

CRULLERS.
Place in a mixing bowl: Nine cups of sifted flour, five level tablespoons of baking powder, two teaspoons of salt, one teaspoon of ginger, one teaspoon of nutmeg, two cups of granulated sugar.
Sift twice to blend and then rub into this prepared flour: Five tablespoons of butter. Place in mixing bowl: Three large eggs, one and three-quarters cups of milk.
Beat with the eggbeater to blend and use to form a dough; roll out about one-half inch thick, on well-floured pastry board; cut and fry in smoking hot fat; roll in granulated sugar and cinnamon, just as they come from the fat.

The crullers should be sent in to the supper just as they come from the stove and served smoking hot. If piled on tray and a lad with a white cap to pass and serve, it will add to the occasion.

Light Up Your Faces.

All have Jack-o-Lantern seen From earliest youth, I ween. His face lit up from a light within Showing his teeth in a friendly grin. Very bright his eyes are, too, From the same source shining thru Radiating fun and cheer Thru the darkness far and near.

Light up your face with a smile. Make it worth ev'ry one's while. Only to travel your way Just to pass the time o' day. Let them see your soul shine thru Smiling lips and eyes so true. Such a spirit, by God's grace, Transforms e'en the plainest face.

Light up your face, be very glad, Drive out all the sorry and sad. Be a good sport and play Life's game Every day and just the same. It will cost you no more to smile It will add to your years the while, If you will let love have its way And be happy the livelong day.

Masquerade Sandwiches.

Sandwiches that are just the thing for a Halloween party can be made from brown bread that has been steamed in one pound baking powder cans. Two slices are allowed for each sandwich. Spread the under slice with a liberal covering of peanut butter. Make masques of the top slices. With a sharp thimble cut two small circles for the eyes. Underneath them make with the thimble another circle for the nose and below that cut a slit with a small sharp knife for the mouth.

Press each masque firmly upon the buttered surface of the under slice and then add the final touches that give the sandwiches their humorous appearance. Various expressions can be given by dropping a dried currant in each eye. Ripe olives make amusing noses, of every imaginable shape. Strips of brilliant red, cut from sweet peppers, make lips that curl in "gayety, jest and amusement"—and you may be sure that the sandwiches will arouse plenty of mirth!

Course of Whale Currents.
Deep submarine currents containing whale food flow from the north Atlantic to 2,000 south of the equator.

LITTLE APPLES

Suppose that every manufacturer of automobiles should set aside every car that shows some slight defect, label it "Cull," and send it out into the open market to be sold for whatever it would bring.

The price of perfect automobiles would fall to a point where the maker would no longer realize a profit.

Many of the fruit growers of the country run their marketing on just such an unsound basis as the above hypothetical automobile business.

It may be argued that the manufacturers have few culls and that these few may be revamped and sold as "firsts," whereas the orchardist has many culls that he cannot afford to throw away. To a certain extent this is true, but at the same time it is a fact that every reputable manufacturer of motor cars or any other product has a certain percentage of defective parts that must be disposed of. None of these defective parts ever reach the open market. But too often the grower attempts to sell his unsound merchandise, and as a result injures both himself and his brother fruit growers.

When there is an abundance of small or slightly defective apples the temptation to get rid of them in some way is always a strong one. One season our Yellow Transparents set an unusually heavy crop of fruit. It was a season made unusually busy by the fact that weather conditions kept us from doing our work as promptly as we wished, and we did not have time to thin all the trees.

A SAVING THAT MEANT LOSS.

Consequently at picking time we had a large number of apples that measured one and a half inches and less in diameter. The market that year was flooded with Yellow Transparent apples, and what we should have done was to take the entire lot and plow them under in the orchard for such fertilizing value as they might have. The temptation to "get something out of them" was too strong, however, and we shipped them along with our larger, well-graded fruit.

Many other growers apparently did the same thing, and as a result the Yellow Transparent market was demoralized to such a point that even the good fruit sold slowly and at poor prices. Before the end of the season we realized that we had made a mistake and also that we were not alone in our error.

In a desperate effort to correct the trouble we had a large display card printed with the heading "Jelly Apples." On this card we called attention to the fact that the small apples were well adapted to the making of jelly, and told briefly how it could be done. We followed up a lot of our shipments and by the use of these cards stimulated the sale of fruit that might otherwise never have been sold. One of our customers was "stuck" with seventy-five bushels of these small apples, but after using the cards he cleaned up the entire lot in a few days at a price that cleared expenses. I am satisfied that our experience with the small apples cost us much more than we would have lost by dumping the whole lot.

Amendments to Dairy Product Act and Regulations.

The text of The Dairy Product Act as amended this year and regulations under the Act have been published by the Dept. of Agriculture at Ottawa in uniform style with other Acts relating to agriculture. There is one new amendment to the Act authorizing the Governor-in-Council to make regulations that will enable the Dairy Produce Grader to refuse to grade any dairy produce and to withhold grade certificates. Sections 24 to 28 inclusive have been added to the previous 23 of the regulations. These provide: that any butter cut or moulded into prints or blocks shall be deemed to be not graded and that no person shall brand, mark, describe or advertise for sale as graded, butter which shall have been so cut or moulded; that a grader's certificate covering any such lots shall be deemed cancelled; that no person shall pack butter in a package bearing marks of previous grading; that no person shall sell, offer for sale or have in his possession butter branded, marked, described or advertised contrary to these regulations and that any butter on which mould has appeared, whether on the butter itself or on the parchment lining, even though all trace has been removed, shall be classified as "no grade."

Here and There

All tourists' records, motor and train, are being broken at Banff, Alberta, this year. More than 13,000 cars were registered by the first of August with the big rush yet to come. As many as 2,000 were under canvas at one time in the Government auto camp ground.

Maple sugar and maple syrup production in Canada during the season of 1925 amounted to 9,791,359 pounds and 1,672,093 gallons, respectively, with an aggregate value of $6,825,416. This compares with an output of 9,385,415 pounds of maple sugar and 1,970,696 gallons of maple syrup during 1924. Quebec province accounted for over 90 per cent. of the production of maple sugar and over half of the output of maple syrup.

Production of the four basic industries of British Columbia during 1924 aggregated in value $210,692,793, as compared with $207,984,041 in the previous year, according to a statement issued by the Provincial Government. The 1924 production was made up as follows, with 1923 comparative figures in brackets: Forest products, $80,702,000 ($86,674,400); agriculture, $60,029,224 ($59,139,798); mines, $48,704,604 ($41,304,320); and fisheries, $21,256,965 ($20,795,923).

Canada's ordinary revenue for the four months of the present fiscal year ended July 31 last, shows an increase of $2,932,163 over the same four-month period last year, according to a statement made by the Department of Finance. Ordinary revenue for the four months of 1925 amounted to $141,739,416. Ordinary expenditures during the four-month period show a decrease from $96,548,541 in 1924 to $95,655,692 this year.

George H. Ham, known throughout Canada as the Grand Old Man of the Canadian Pacific, celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday on Sunday, August 23rd, and was the recipient of a deluge of congratulatory messages from all parts of the country. Col. Ham has been with the Canadian Pacific since 1891 and by his social activities and powers as an orator has made for himself and for the company a veritable army of staunch and faithful friends.

Butter exported from Canada during the twelve months ending June, 1925, amounted to 25,096,120 pounds, valued at $8,934,794, a decided increase over the figures of the previous year when exports amounted to 13,668,379 pounds, valued at $5,081,634, according to a report issued by the Federal Department of Agriculture. Shipments were made to the United Kingdom, the United States, South America, South Africa, West Indies, Alaska, China, Japan, Germany, Belgium, Cuba, Holland, New Zealand and many other countries.

James Oliver Curwood, the well-known American novelist, who crossed not long ago to Europe on the "Empress of France" and returned a few weeks later to Canada on the "Empress of Scotland," wirelessly the following message from the "Scotland" to the Canadian Pacific headquarters in Montreal: "Can never fully express my appreciation of the splendid treatment accorded me by Captain Gillies and Captain Griffiths, and the staffs aboard the 'Empress of France' and the 'Empress of Scotland.'"

A party of British journalists is now touring Canada at the invitation of President E. W. Beatty, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, for the purpose of gaining first hand knowledge of economic and industrial conditions in this country. They are John A. Buist, Glasgow Herald; C. J. Jory, London Daily Telegraph; F. R. Peterson, London Times; H. Read, South Wales Daily News; Cardiff; Captain E. Altham, London Morning Post; Hugh Martin, London Daily News; R. A. Colwell, Western Morning News, Plymouth; A. Renton, Daily Chronicle, London; J. F. Chapter, Westminster Gazette, London; John Sayers, Belfast Telegraph.

E. W. Beatty, president and chairman of the Canadian Pacific Railway, accompanied by several of his directors is at present engaged in an annual tour of inspection of the company's system. In an address to directors of the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto Mr. Beatty declared that the "only safe and certain cure for the relief of the Dominion's railway obligations rested upon the country's industrial and agricultural development."

Harvest Home Services will be held at Britannia next Sunday when Rev. Mr. Payne of Huttonville will conduct the morning service at 11 and Rev. Mr. MacKay the evening at 7.30.

The League under the leadership of the Missionary Committee with Miss Lila Wagner in the chair spent a very profitable hour last evening. Missions of the United Church of Canada being the topic. Miss K. Dracass spoke on those in South America; Miss Ruby Turney of Africa and Mr. Cecil Dolby of Asia. Mr. Smart sang "I heard the Voice of Jesus" and Mrs. Lindsay recited, in her usual pleasant way. Next Wednesday the Citizenship Committee will have charge and the topic is "What is Success?"

Notice

Correspondents are requested to send in their copy as early in the week as possible. Don't wait till paper day—get it in Monday or Tuesday, we must have time to set the type. Changes of address must be in our hands by Monday night.

Cooksville Dots and Dashes

Dr. Whyte, veterinary surgeon left this community for Detroit last week, where he has temporarily taken the position as manager of a large animal infirmary.

"Jimmy McCarron," the well-known harness horse and pacer which "Dr. Ed. Hopkins V.S., bred and raised; and sold two years ago to an American dealer, has distinguished himself on the American turf. At Columbus recently, "Jimmy McCarron" took fifth money in the free-for-all, among the best animals on the continent, carrying the mile distance in two minutes and one second. Dr. Hopkins' present horse, "Jack Canuck" is recovering nicely from the recent bad spill at Cleveland and will likely be back on the track next season.

With Mr. Ted McCurry presiding a successful missionary evening was spent by the Young People's Society of the United Church on Monday. Mrs. Thos. Dodds of Dixie gave an admirable missionary address and Mr. Cecil Carr favored with a solo. Next Monday will be devoted to literary topics, Miss Flewelling presiding, and one week later a merry masquerade is booked for the social night of the month.

Mr. Mills, Continuation School Inspector, paid his initial visit to the newly formed Continuation classes in Cooksville school on Monday, and found the work carried on generally satisfactory.

The anniversary services of Dixie Presbyterian Church are being held on Sunday, Nov. 1, and it has been decided not to hold the fowl supper this year.

Cooksville Orange Lodge No. 1181 will not likely proceed with the building of their proposed hall this fall, but are getting things in shape to make a start on the building early in the spring. The annual banquet will be held on Nov. 6.

Mrs. Henriksen and children are leaving this week end for Detroit where they will join Mr. Henriksen and make their home in the future.

Rev. and Mrs. Bellsmith have moved their household effects to Toronto where they will reside this winter. Mr. Bellsmith, it is expected, will preach here but two more Sundays. The new minister, Rev. Mr. Harden, is expected to come here this week.

MANITOBA LETTER

Empire, Oct. 5th, 1925.
I would very much like to tell Review readers we were all through threshing and everything fixed up ready for winter, but the truth will read quite different.

Threshing commenced over a month ago, three whole days and four halves is the most that has been done. A week ago tonight it snowed all night, and into the day; about a foot of snow fell, a regular wet blanket, green feed not cut is flat on the ground. Yesterday, Sunday, it was quite fit to thresh; this morning, another snow storm pretty near as bad as last week. Will be held up for three or four days at least. The weather today looks better than it has been for the last couple of weeks. What grain has been threshed is turning out better than was expected. Wheat is rusted in some places. Mr. Carter has a field of wheat, forty acres, a ravine runs through the centre, on the rise on each side it was rusted pretty bad, but was not frosted, in the ravine it was frosted a little, but no rust, and is a good sample. Perhaps that knowledge might help those scientists who are trying to combat the rust problem, talking of flying over the wheat fields, dropping dope to kill rust. Perhaps if they would get the new plane with flapping wings to sail over the fields some warm, muggy night, might help a whole lot.

Now will be a problem to get men, for every time a rain or damp weather came, a good many men would leave, especially those from the States who had return tickets for a month. Wages have been high, some of them could earn it, but others could not, no baby's job on threshing gangs here.

Potatoes are a good crop, but very few have taken them out of the ground yet, and a lot of garden stuff is still in the ground; all roots are a good crop.

Between election and wheat pool, arguments are quite lively. We are now in Beautiful Plains instead of Marquette. Premier King and the Hon. Meighen are trying their very best to make the West believe, no matter what they have done they will do wonders for us if only elected. They have nothing new under the sun to say. The last time, "Oh yes, Hudson Bay should be built to the line, taxes reduced. War over seven years ago and still we pay war taxes. I wonder why both Liberals and Conservatives did not elect a new man

Wesley Church

Wesley Church, Snider's Corners, held their anniversary services on Sunday last when Rev. F. M. Bell-Smith of Cooksville, and Rev. J. H. McBain of Oakville, were the preachers. The choir sang special music assisted by Mrs. Perry, of Toronto, and Mrs. Sibbald of Streetsville. There were large congregations.

Then on Monday evening the church ladies served their famous fowl supper which has become known as one of the rare treats of calendar year in the district. The long tables in the basement were filled four times and a few remained for the fifth. The audience filled the church to overflowing, and all were singing praises of the fine supper provided by the ladies.

The excellent program given was lengthy and varied, and was contributed to by Mrs. Perry, Mr. Ferguson and Miss Laing, of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Merchant, Mr. Webb and Mr. Sinclair, of Galt, and Miss Gertrude Ross, of Streetsville.

Each number was much appreciated but the bright and clever recitations by Miss Ross were of additional interest because she is well-known in the district, a daughter of J. B. Ross of Streetsville. She certainly bids fair to rank high among elocutionists.

The audience extended their thanks to the talent for the good program and the visitors expressed their appreciation of the supper by hearty applause.

A large number from Oakville were present and A. S. Forster was chairman.—Oakville Star.

TEACHERS CONVENTION

Written for The Review
The annual convention of the Peel Teacher's Institute was held on October first and second.

On Thursday morning the convention opened with devotional exercises led by Rev. A. P. MacDonald. Miss Nell Tate, President of the Association, gave a very delightful talk on a trip to Italy taken during a year spent in England as an exchange teacher. Miss Tate spoke of the benefits to be derived from a year spent in exchange work.

In the afternoon, Mayor Wegenast and Inspector Galbraith addressed the convention. The Inspector urged the teachers to do his or her part to make the meetings a means of inspiration and help. He spoke of the importance of the teacher keeping abreast of the time and asked, "How many teachers read at least one educational magazine and three books of a professional character in a year?"

Many teachers took part in a discussion on "The Course of Study and the New Text Books." The new speller met with especial favour and it was pointed out that this book had been prepared by prominent teachers actively engaged in the teaching of spelling. It was felt that teachers of recognized ability and experience should have some part in the preparation of all text books.

On Friday morning the Devotional exercises were led by Rev. Stanley Elliott, who afterwards delivered a highly inspirational address on "The Teacher as a Nation-Builders."

Miss Galbraith gave a helpful talk on "Health Teaching," especially adapted to the needs of the teacher in the school where there is no supervision.

Mr. W. E. Macpherson of Toronto, University, spoke on "Visual Aids in the Teaching of History." He spoke of the difficulties encountered in making history interesting and intelligible to the average pupil. He used sets of pictures and lantern slides to illustrate his talk. The lantern or moving picture machine has become a valuable piece of modern school equipment.

The report of the Nominating Committee was read by Miss E. Reynolds and was adopted.

In the afternoon, Mr. Macpherson again addressed the Convention, his subject being "Studies in Commercial and Political Geography." Mr. Henry Moore, lecturer in Horticulture, spoke on "Beautifying Home Surroundings." He showed many lantern slides to illustrate the use of shrubs and perennial plants to give the home a beautiful setting.

Mr. Newton gave a concise report of the proceedings of the O.E.A. of last Easter.

A very pleasant feature of the Friday afternoon meeting was the presentation to Inspector Galbraith by the Peel teachers, of an address expressing appreciation of his life and work and a gift of a desk and chair. Mrs. Galbraith was presented with a basket of flowers.

During the sessions of the convention different classes from the Brampton Public Schools delighted the teachers with their singing.

The following officers were elected: Hon. Pres., Inspector Galbraith; Pres., Mr. D. T. Appleton, Brampton; Vice Pres., Miss E. Walker, Lakeside Park; Committee, Mr. Newton, Port Credit; Miss McKenna, Inglewood; Sec.-Treas., Miss C. M. Fallis, Brampton.

Obituary

Following an illness which had extended over some months, Joseph B. Dixon, for the past 25 years Clerk of the Surrogate Court and Registrar of the High Court of Justice of the County of Peel, passed away Tuesday at the Peel Memorial Hospital.

The late Mr. Dixon was born 69 years ago at Sandhill, near Brampton. He was a son of the late Wm. Dixon, who was a pioneer in Chingua County Township. Matriculating from Brampton High School, he went to Victoria College, Toronto, and after his graduation returned to Chingua County, afterward moving to Brampton, of which he was a resident for 40 years. He was appointed Clerk of the Surrogate Court and County Registrar in 1900.

Mr. Dixon was a lifelong Liberal and a Methodist, being a member of Grace United Church at the time of his death. He was an Oddfellow and a keen horseman, being well-known for the trotters he drove about the country up until a few years ago. The late Mr. Dixon remained a bachelor, and is survived by two brothers, Wesley, on the homestead, and Dr. A. F. Dixon of Spokane, Wash., and three sisters, Mrs. J. W. Hall, Vancouver, and Misses Lily and Minnie at home.

Within two days of her 96th birthday, Mary Brown, widow of the late Townley Brocklebank, of Malton, passed away at her home Tuesday evening as the result of a stroke which she suffered on Sunday last.

Mrs. Brocklebank had been in excellent health until a week ago and was daily anticipating a reunion of her family when she took the fatal seizure. She was the daughter of the late Robert Brown, was born in England, and came to Malton district as a child of two years, residing there continuously ever since. She was educated at the fifth line school and had many tales to tell of the early days of the community, the coming of the railroad and the gradual development of the country.

Her husband was one of the first men to bring a binder into the district. She was a lifelong member of the Methodist Church and one of the most esteemed residents of the section.

Her husband died 28 years ago and she is survived by five sons, David of Arthur, Robert and William of Streetsville; John and Henry of Malton; and two daughters, Mrs. Wm. Somerville and Miss Annie, Malton. One half sister, Mrs. Geo. Sinclair, of Port Huron, also survives.

Junior Activities

The County Judging Competition will be held at Brampton, Friday. The girls must register at the Odd Fellows Hall on Queen street before 9:30 a.m. A registration fee of 25 cents will be charged. The boys Stock Judging Competition is Friday too and in the evening a banquet will be given in the Odd Fellows' Hall when the prize winners will be named and the C. S. McDonald Cup and J. A. Carroll Trophy presented.

Last Thursday evening over thirty juniors met at the home of Miss Luella Jamieson and showered Miss Emily Walker, a bride of yesterday. Mr. McMurray spoke suitable words of thanks for the gifts to Miss Walker and himself, saying it was a pleasant surprise to them. Lunch was served by the girls and a happy time passed in games and dancing.

SIX PERSONS KILLED AT CROSSING NEAR TORONTO WHEN FLYER HITS AUTO

Toronto, Oct. 12.—A 4-year-old baby alone escaped alive when a closed car carrying seven persons was struck by the International Limited at a level crossing just west of Scarborough Junction at 5.15 o'clock last night. Four adults and two children were instantly killed when the car was smashed to fragments, remains of the victims and splinters from the auto being hurled for 150 yards along the track from the crossing. The sole living survivor of the accident, Baby Hilda Mould, is in the Hospital for Sick Children, suffering from concussion of the brain.

Those killed are:
Arthur Nichols, 162 Meagher Ave.
Mrs. Arthur Nichols, 162 Meagher Ave.
Baby Shirley Nichols, 162 Meagher Ave.

Alfred Mould, 1170 Queen St. East.
Mrs. Ethel Mould 1170 Queen St. E.
Ruth Mould, 12, 1170 Queen St. E.
There were no eye-witnesses of the tragedy. The automobile was owned by Nichols and was being driven toward the city. According to residents of the neighborhood the driver must have had a full view of the crossing, while track employees of the Canadian National Railways pointed out that the train, unless the circumstances were most unusual, could be seen 200 yards up the road from the crossing. The manner of the tragedy which almost wiped out two families connected by marriage, must remain unexplained.

HEADLIGHTS BLINDED YOUNG DRIVER OF CAR

Girl Meets Instant Death When Automobile Overturned in Ditch.

Woodstock, Ont., Oct. 11.—Ruby L. Flood, sixteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Flood, Deatre street, is dead and Kent Stevens, son of Dr. J. M. Stevens, this city, is suffering from shock as the result of an automobile fatality which occurred on the Norwich road four miles south of Woodstock last night when the car in which they were riding overturned into the ditch, pinning Stevens, who was driving, underneath, and crushing the life from Miss Flood, whose death is believed to have been instantaneous.

According to Stevens, who is believed to be suffering from internal injuries, two cars were coming north while he was driving south and, at the sharp turn in the road where the accident occurred, he was blinded by the headlights of the first of the approaching cars. Under the impression that the car was about to crash into him head-on, Stevens turned the car sharply to the left, with the result that it overturned in the ditch. An inquest will be held on Tuesday, it was stated by Coroner Dr. MacKay this afternoon.

AUTOS IN HEAD-ON SMASH AT BRANTFORD

Two Detroit Men in Hospital as Result With Their Car Held in Charge.

A despatch from Brantford, Ont., says:—Two cars, one small, driven by John Ludlow, rural mail carrier on the Hamilton Road and the other a larger one, driven by Roy Benwell of Detroit, meeting head on, sent two men to the hospital Thursday afternoon. The two are Roy Benwell, Detroit, and Albert Boisseau, also of Detroit, both of whom were in the big car.

The larger car was proceeding east and turned out to pass a load of hay. The other car, driven by the mail carrier was coming west, and they met head on with a crash that threw Ludlow through the windshield onto the road. That he escaped serious injury is considered a miracle. Benwell was held in his car by the steering wheel and was severely injured in the abdomen. Mrs. C. Martin, in Ludlow's car, escaped injury. The Detroit men were held by the police and their car is in charge.

GERMANY DROPS DEMAND FOR PRIVILEGES AS MEMBER OF LEAGUE

A despatch from Locarno says:—Important progress toward the completion of the Rhineland compact was made on Thursday when, as a result of private conversations, the German delegation agreed to proceed to negotiate on a basis of dropping the Reich's demand for special conditions for Germany's entry into the League of Nations, while the League members represented here agreed to support favorably certain proposals which Germany might make as a League member.

This means that Germany has at last seen the impossibility of getting any prior special dispensation for entering the League, and Thursday's development marks the elimination from the Locarno negotiations of an issue which threatened many complications.

Late in the afternoon Nichols telephoned Mould, inviting him and his family to his home for dinner and suggesting an automobile ride. The Mould family accepted. The party went down the Kingston road and crossed over the countryside toward Danforth Ave., when they were struck by the crack train of the C. N. R. The engine was in charge of Thomas Gorman, veteran engineer.

Gorman's fireman observed the automobile as the engine reached the crossing. He shouted to Gorman, who jammed on the brakes. The train was brought to a standstill within its length. Two rear coaches had not passed the crossing when Gorman and members of the crew, along with passengers, rushed to the assistance of the victims. Hon. W. F. Nickle and Dr. Dennis Jordan, Danforth Ave., who were returning from the U. of T. Queen's football game, were among the passengers.

The automobile, shattered beyond recognition, was lying fifty yards from the crossing. The remains of the victims were scattered along the tracks for 150 yards. Baby Shirley Nichols was lying in its mother's arms. It was badly injured. A short distance off was Hilda Mould. They were treated by Dr. Jordan, Mr. Nickle assisting him. Baby Nichols was handed over to a railway surgeon, but died while on the way to the Hospital for Sick Children. Hilda Mould was brought to the city on the train.

NUTTING EXPEDITION LOST IN FROZEN NORTH

Canadian Police on S.S. Arctic Report Fruitless Search in Baffin Land.

A despatch from Montreal says:—"No trace has been found in either Baffin Land or Greenland of the Nutting expedition." This is the message that came over the air from Inspector Wilcox of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, on board the C.G.S. Arctic, which passed Father Point Thursday morning, returning from its voyage to the Arctic Circle to relieve police posts in that part of the Dominion.

Messages sent out from the broadcasting stations KDKA and WBZ started last Christmas Eve, and the appeal was broadcast every other day for a couple of weeks, giving a description of the Nutting ship, its course, and the places where it was last seen, in the hope that some trace might be found of the ship and its crew. The Nutting expedition sailed on the American yacht Lief Ericson, and was under the command of William Nutting, the other members of the crew being Arthur Hildesbrand, John Todahl and Mr. Fiescher, the latter a Norwegian.

The boat sailed from Norway, and was last heard of on Sept. 8, 1924, when it left Julianhaab, on the southern shore of Greenland, and headed west.

Watford Pioneer Dies at Age of One Hundred

A despatch from Watford says:—Watford's centenarian, Mary Jane Land, widow of the late John Stapleford and mother of ex-Reeve Sanford Stapleford, died at the residence of her son on Ontario Street at the age of 100 years, 1 month and 20 days. Mrs. Stapleford was born in the Township of Saltfleet, near Hamilton, on Aug. 18, 1825, and was a great-niece of Robert Land, the pioneer founder of the City of Hamilton.

Picture Canada's Industries for Use in British Press

A despatch from London says:—Arrangements have been made with the Canadian Government Motion Picture Bureau for the supply of photographs illustrating the industries—fruit-growing, fishing, manufacturing, mining, etc.—of the Dominion. These prints are now being prepared, and will be available in about six weeks. They will be distributed to the press of Great Britain.

difficulties for Dr. Luther and Dr. Stresemann because of the opinions of the Nationalists in Germany. As Dr. Luther put it this morning to one of the other delegates: "What is necessary now is to find a formula which will be acceptable to the German people."

It is, of course, impossible to say now what will be the League projects which the Germans will ask the Allies to support as League members. One knows what prior conditions the Germans wish—exemption from the duty of giving military aid to the League, and a special regime concerning the right of forces of the League members to cross her territory to protect a member in danger.

Certainly Germany will not get full satisfaction. But since her strongest argument is that a disarmed nation surrounded by armed nations is in a special situation, it may be guessed that disarmament will be linked up with the effort to satisfy the Germans.

LONG SEARCH ENDS IN MURDERER'S ARREST

Officer of R.C.M.P. Captures Pashton in North Country After 18-Month Hunt.

A despatch from Cobalt says:—Nick Pashton, sought by the police for 18 months in connection with a fatal shooting at Island Falls, 43 miles north of Cobalt, has been captured in the country between the end of the Timiskaming & Northern Ontario steele and James Bay, according to a report reaching here from the far North. An officer of the R.C.M.P. is said to have made the arrest.

Pashton was named by a Coroner's jury as the slayer of Joseph Lasalle, about 1.30 p.m., Monday, April 21, 1924. The shooting followed a quarrel the previous day, in which both men and Bert Racicot took part. After the alleged murder Pashton disappeared, and he has not been seen by the police since. He is an expert trapper and well acquainted with the district beyond Island Falls.

Largest Turbines in World to be Installed in Quebec

Quebec, Oct. 11.—Ten of the largest turbines in the world, with a capacity of 80,000 horsepower each, are to be installed at Chapsaw, Que., near Chute a Caron, where the new Aluminum Corporation of America plants will be completed by the end of 1926, according to an official statement made at Chute a Caron by E. S. Fiske, Vice-President of the corporation. Some 8,000 men will be employed when the new plants are in operation.

Original Copy of "Maria Chapelaine" Destroyed

A despatch from Paris says:—The original copy of Maria Chapelaine, Louis Hemon's masterpiece, has been destroyed by a mistake, according to a rumor in circulation here. The priceless manuscript had been laid away in the archives of a local library. Some time ago renovation of the building was started and the book was thrown into the furnace by mistake.

Neck Broken When His Car Plunged Down Bank

A despatch from Orangeville, Ont., says:—While returning from Creemore Tuesday evening, Nelson Lawrence, a well-known cattle buyer of Honeywood, met death when the car he was driving left the road and catapulted down a steep twenty-foot embankment on the River Road near Creemore. His body was found Wednesday morning, his neck was broken. He is survived by his wife and one daughter.

ELECTRIC FLAMES OUT FROM VICTIM'S FEET

Wallaceburg Man May Re- cover From Burns Caused by Contact With Live Wire.

A despatch from Wallaceburg, Ont., says:—John T. Rankin, a local carpenter, had a miraculous escape from death Thursday afternoon while working on the demolition of the old town hall, upon which site will be erected the new Hydro building. He was in the act of throwing over a steel cable to attach it to a chimney, when the cable became entangled in a high voltage Hydro cable, the severe shock knocking Rankin to the ground and rendering him unconscious.

The accident was witnessed by a little girl, who called for assistance, and Provincial Officer W. C. Oliver, who lives close by, was early on the scene and rendered first aid to the victim, from whose feet he found electric flames shooting out.

Several of the injured man's toes, one arm and both hands were very badly burned, and although his condition is serious, it is believed that he will recover. It was some time after the accident that he recovered consciousness.

Regina's First White Settler Dies of Sleeping Sickness

Regina, Oct. 11.—Succumbing to sleeping sickness at the age of 67, Regina's first white settler, F. M. Crapper, died at the Regina General Hospital this morning, following an illness of one week.

Mr. Crapper arrived in Regina forty-three years ago with the first party of settlers, and camped in a tent on the site of the present city. There were only four in the party. They left Brandon early in the spring of 1882, before the snow had gone, and trekked to the West with ox teams.

B.C. Sea Serpents Are Gigantic Eels, Say Indians

Victoria, Oct. 11.—Indians of the Queen Charlotte Islands, off the coast of Northern British Columbia, where "sea serpents" have been reported seen several times this year, have classified the monsters as gigantic eels, according to a report received here by John P. Babcock, Deputy Commissioner of Fisheries.

The eels, according to the Indians, inhabit a slimy, submarine cave at a point on one of the most northerly of the group of islands.

The aborigines say that several years ago they killed one of the fish, which was more than 40 feet long.

CHICAGO STEAL SHOWN IN LOWERING LEVELS

Figures of Lake Depths Officially Recorded Demonstrate the Danger.

A despatch from Ottawa says:—How serious is the effect of the illegal diversion of Great Lakes water by the Chicago Drainage Canal is shown in the computations by hourly readings from the automatic gauge records of the Canadian Hydrographic Office of the Dept. of Marine and Fisheries for the month of September this year.

For Lake Ontario the readings show the water levels to have been .33 foot lower than in August, 1.07 feet lower than September last year, and 1.44 feet lower than the average stage of September for the last ten years. For Lake Erie the level was 16 foot lower than in August, 1.12 feet lower than September last year, and 1.54 feet lower than the average of September for the last ten years.

The level of Lake Huron was most seriously affected, the September level being .21 foot lower than in August, 1.42 feet lower than in September last year, and 2.39 feet lower than the average of September for the last ten years.

EXPLORATION SHIP ARRIVES AT QUEBEC

Captain Bernier Reports the Most Adventurous Trip the "Arctic" Has Experienced.

Quebec, Que., Oct. 11.—The Canadian Government exploration ship Arctic, commanded by Captain J. E. Bernier, arrived here Saturday after one of the most adventurous trips the vessel has ever experienced.

Delayed on her departure from the ancient capital for several days through an accident to the ship's machinery, and then having her radio outfit go back on her when she was under way to the Arctic after she had completed the early stages of her voyage, and had relieved Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers at various stations, was caught in the main pack of the Baffin Bay ice and held there for 14 days, during which she tried desperately to nose her way through the packed floes.

One of the incidents of the outward trip was an accident to Captain Bernier, who was knocked down by a swinging boom during a storm off Greenland, but fortunately he did not suffer any ill-effects, although he is still suffering from bruised ribs. He will, however, go under the X-ray for examination. Latitude 78.46 north was the furthest point reached by the expedition.

British Hope Prince Will be Pied Piper of Trade

A despatch from London says:—Big business in Great Britain is hoping that the Prince of Wales will prove to be a sort of Pied Piper, with commercial orders instead of children following in his homeward wake across the ocean.

Even before he went to South America there were criticisms in the House of Commons about his being used as a glorified commercial drummer, as well as an ambassador of the empire, and now that he is homeward bound there is a great deal being written and said about the prospects of British trade in Argentina being given a fillip by his visit.

The correspondents who accompanied him there kept their eyes open for trade news and sent home reports as to how and where and why the Germans, Americans, Italians and others were getting more and more export business from South American customers than they might if the British houses tried a little harder to please potential buyers.

United States Tourists Bring Canada Increased Revenue

A despatch from Ottawa says:—Tourists from the United States brought $150,000,000 in revenue to Canada in 1925, according to estimates of government officials. This sum is equal to a quarter of the value of the Dominion's wheat crop and approximates the values of the annual mining output of Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia combined.

More than 2,000,000 American automobiles, it is estimated, have crossed into Canada already this year. They carried approximately 9,000,000 tourists, or one tourist for every man, woman and child in the Dominion. Every province shared in the tourist business. Ontario received the largest traffic. Last year 1,376,988 cars from the United States entered Ontario, 163,878 of which stayed from two to thirty days, 1,645 from one to six months, and the remainder shorter periods.

60,000 Pilgrims to Lourdes Shrine in Single Day

A despatch from Paris says:—Twenty-seven special trains were required recently to carry the pilgrims of one day to Lourdes, the "miracle town" of France, where the Virgin Mary is said to have appeared to a child in 1858, and where a magnificent church now stands on the supposed site of that apparition. Pilgrims flock thither, hoping for miraculous cures through the intercession of the Virgin.

The day was that of the Nativity of the Virgin, and the number of visitors was estimated at 60,000. The largest group was one of 6,000 from Cambrai, and others were: 3,500 from Rouen; 2,500 from Coutances, which has a population of only 7,000, and 1,100 from Grenoble.

From abroad came 120 pilgrims from England, including fifteen cripples, several of these being Protestants; 1,200 pilgrims from Italy, including 400 sick, and 600 from Portugal, thirty of whom were seeking cures. Each of the French parties brought groups of lame and sick, varying from four hundred to forty.

Serious Floods Feared in Quebec from Heavy Rainfall

A despatch from Quebec says:—The heavy rain that has been general throughout the Province of Quebec in the past month has given rise to fears of floods in the northern sections. Heavy rain in the Laurentian Mountains report that the water in lakes and rivers is very high.

WOMEN'S HANDICAPS

Headaches and Backaches Often Make Life Miserable.

A woman's health handicaps her almost always. She has pains and disabilities which do not afflict men. Nature does not give her a fair chance. Her blood is more often thin and poor than a man's, and she often neglects the first beginnings of ill-health. Many women who seemed destined to a life of frequent suffering have been freed entirely from their suffering through the wonderful blood-making qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Many a woman toils all day with a pain in her back and side, a burning headache, and a sense of having no spine left.

What a pity women will not listen to their friends whom Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have saved from their misery. Whenever a woman suffers they will help her—in youth, middle-age and afterlife. Mrs. John Mitchell, of Middleville, Ont., gives her experience for the benefit of other women sufferers. She says:—"Some years ago I was so badly run down I could hardly walk around the house. I tried to do a few chores but was able to do very little. My boys and husband had to do the rest. If I started up stairs I had to go very slow or I would fall, and I was just played out when I got at the top of the stairs. My head ached terribly, and my heart would beat violently. In this deplorable condition I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When I had finished six boxes I felt much better. Then I got a further supply, and by the time I had taken these I could walk anywhere without being exhausted, the headaches had disappeared and I am now perfectly well. Any woman who is run down should not hesitate to begin Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at once, as I am sure from my own experience they will build her up."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cts. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Was Suspicious.

After reading about starved lives and the soul hunger of wives for a kind word, Mr. Tenspot became contrite and resolved to do better. So on reaching home he hailed his better half after this fashion:

"Well, here she is, the best little wife in the world."

"John," interposed his wife, sharply, "have you been drinking?"

"Of course not."

NURSES

The Toronto Hospital for Incurables, in addition with Battered and Ailing Hospital, New York City, offers a three years' Course of Training to young women, having the required education, and desiring of becoming nurses. This Hospital has adopted the eight-hour system. The nurse receives salaries of the School, a monthly allowance and traveling expenses to and from New York. For further information apply to the Superintendent.

A Sidelight on History.

An interesting piece of secret history, which explains how the German naval signal codes came into the hands of the British Admiralty, has just been revealed.

When the German cruiser Magdeburg struck a mine near the island of Odenholm, off the Estonian coast, the crew abandoned the ship and surrendered. But it was noticed by some Russians that one of the German officers jumped overboard.

This aroused the Russians' curiosity, the spot was noted, and a diver was sent down. He recovered the body of the officer, and it was then found that the latter had secured to his person a number of secret German naval codes.

A copy of these codes was supplied to the British Admiralty, but the Germans, unaware that they had fallen into hostile hands, continued to use them. It is stated that the possession of these German codes was of considerable value to the British fleet during the battle of Jutland.

FILMORE

Variations—Filmur, Fulmer, Fulmer.

Racial Origin—English.

Source—A locality.

More anciently this family name had the variations "Fymere" and "Fimour," but these spellings apparently have disappeared completely in recent generations.

A quite plausible argument that this name is of Celtic origin and that it was developed from the words "flea," meaning a bard, and "mor," meaning great, has been advanced from time to time, the argument that some ancient ancestor of the Filmores was a "famous bard."

But the theory does not stand up in the light of research, which shows first, no evidence of Celtic origin, and, second, that there were so many "famous" bards among the Celts of England, Wales, Scotland and Ireland that it would have meant little for a man to refer to his ancestry in such vague terms.

But in the speech of the Saxons, "fille" meant fertility as applied to the land and "mere" meant either a lake or a moist section of ground. It is easy to see, therefore, that the combination of these two words might easily have been applied by the Saxons to many spots in England as local names, and indeed there are records to be found of several places so named. Quite naturally the surname arose as indicating residence at or near such a spot.

MacNIDER.

Variations—MacNiter, Weaver.

Racial Origin—Scottish.

Source—An occupation.

Here is a family name which comes from Scotland, and though purely Gaelic, traces back to an occupational origin. Family names of this description were extremely unusual among the Gaels of Ireland. But in Scotland, though they are by no means general, they are occasionally met with.

Spelled in the Gaelic fashion, this family name is "Mac-an-fhigheadair." At least, that's the nearest you can come to the Gaelic spelling with the English alphabet, and the Gaelic-speaking Scot would pronounce it so that to your English-trained ears it would sound something like "Mac-an-fidder" with the accent on the "na." Take a pronunciation something like this and put it on careless English tongues, and it does not take long to make it MacNider or MacNiter.

The meaning of the name is "Son-of-the-weaver," and it appears to be found only among those who claim descent from the famous old Clan MacFarlane, one of those clans descended from the first Irish settlers of Scotland, a century or two before Christianity spread among the Gaels. It is a name that came into being as a substitute, evidently, at the time the MacFarlanes were "outlawed" and became, like the MacGregors, a "broken clan." It has in a great many cases been changed to its virtual equivalent in English, Weaver.

A LITTLE BOOKLET MOTHERS SHOULD HAVE

It Tells What a Mother Ought to Know for Baby's Sake.

Above all things every mother wishes that her child, or children, whatever their age, may be bright, healthy, good-natured, rosy boys and girls; clear eyed, clear skinned babies; good sleepers, bright wakers. Every mother's wish for her little folks is that they may be well.

It is natural for little folks to be well. No wise mother thinks that her child at any age is in a natural state unless it is well and happy. No mother can expect, though, that her child will escape all the ills to which babyhood and childhood are subject, but she can do much to make baby's battles for health easily won.

A valuable little booklet entitled "Care of the Baby in Health and Sickness" has been prepared and as it is something every mother should have, a copy will be sent free to any mother on request who will mention this paper by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Commercial Mind.

A country minister was talking to one of his flock, who ventured the opinion that ministers should be better paid.

"I am glad to hear you say that," the minister said. "I am pleased that you think so much of the clergy. And so you think that we should have better stipends?"

"Yes," said the man. "Ye see, we'd get a better class of men."

Not Really Afraid.

"Bang!" went the rifles at the manoeuvres.

"Oo—o!" screamed the pretty girl—a nice, decorous surprised little scream, as she stepped backward into the arms of a young man.

"Oh!" she said, blushing. "I was frightened by the rifles; I beg your pardon."

"Not at all," said the young man. "Let's go over and watch the artillery."

Father's Fault.

"I am sorry to say it, Henry," said the teacher, "but your composition is not worthy of you. The grammar is faulty, the logic weak, the statements are based upon misinformation, and the style is lamentably crude."

"My word!" Henry replied. "Won't dad be angry when I tell him that?"

"But you can tell him you'll do better next time."

"Do better? Why, dad wrote the whole of it himself!"

PAINS ACROSS THE BACK

Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mitchell, Ontario.—"I have taken your medicine for a number of years. I do not take it steady all the time, but I am never without it. I always keep it in the house. I took it first for pains in the abdomen and bearing-down pains, headaches and pains across the back. I have my home to look after and many a day I could not get up at all. I saw the advertisement in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and Mrs. John Miller told me about it, too. Every time I take it, it makes me feel better and I always recommend it to my friends. I am willing to answer letters from women asking about this medicine and you may use this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. F.J. WASSMANN, Mitchell, Ontario.

The merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is told by women to each other. Many women know by experience what this medicine will do and they are anxious for others to know. Such testimony should cause any woman suffering from the troubles so common to her sex to give this well-known medicine a fair trial.

Do you know that in a recent canvass among women users of the Vegetable Compound over 220,000 replies were received. To the question, "Have you received benefit by taking this medicine?" 98 per cent. replied "Yes." This means that 98 out of every 100 women are in better health because they have given this medicine a fair trial.

OBITUARY

Thomas Goddard—Mt. Dennis.
The sudden death after a few days illness of Mr. Thomas Goddard, J.P., came as a shock to the whole community. Deceased suffered a slight stroke a few months ago, from which he seemed to have pretty fully recovered. After the death of his wife in 1911, who prior to her marriage was Miss Maggie Beamish of Erin-dale, Mr. Goddard gave up farming near Weston, and moved to Mt. Dennis, where he engaged in the real estate and building business. He leaves two sons, Adam Bruce, aged 17 years and James Henry Gordon, 14 years. The late Mr. Goddard took an active interest in all matters pertaining to the public welfare. For two years he held the office of Deputy Reeve of York Township, was on the executive of the local Conservative Association, was chief of the Volunteer Fire Brigade, an Orangeman and a Methodist. In 1882 his parents and a family of three boys and three girls emigrated from Yorkshire, England. Two years later his father died, and Tom, the eldest of the family, took his father's place as mainstay, and succeeded so well that to the time of his death his brothers and sisters looked to him for advice in business matters. The funeral to Riverside Cemetery, Weston was one of the largest in years and was under the direction of L.O.L. 602. The service at the house was conducted by Revs. Wallace and Rogers. Floral tributes were sent by York Township Council, who attended in body, East York Township, Mt. Dennis Fire Brigade, Staff of Bala Ave. School, West Toronto Bowling Club, Mt. Dennis Conservative Association, Ladies' Conservative Association, London Fire Ins. Co., Mt. Dennis United Church, Mt. Dennis Baptist S. S. and from a host of friends and relatives.

Mrs. L. Rogers of Manvers, Ont. and Mrs. Stainby of Toronto are sisters of deceased, and Mr. Levi Goddard of Maple, Ont., and Mr. Aaron Goddard of Woodbridge are brothers. The boys have the deepest sympathy of a wide circle of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Walker, of Streetsville, announce the engagement of their elder daughter, Emily Belle, to Gordon McMurray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert McMurray, of Oakville. The marriage is to take place the middle of October.

Duncan McDougall, of Acton, has unearthed a potato which has broken the record for large "spuds" in Halton County. This potato, a Cobbler, weighs 3 pounds 1 ounce, beating J. Randall's Cobbler in Milton by one ounce.

Bed-bug Stampedes Whole Family.

If it is true that one bed-bug can stampede a human family then what must a sheep feel like if her owner permits a thousand ticks to worry her all winter. Since every living thing must eat to live, the question arises, who feeds the tick. Assuredly the owner of the sheep and this is one of the big leaks from the profit side of the account.

Plan to dip your flock on a bright day in mid-October and don't fail to make a good job of it when you are at it; time thus spent will pay you well.

Probably one of the best products for this purpose on the market is Cooper's Sheep Dip. This preparation will kill both ticks, lice, prevent scab and materially result in an improved fleece. The above mentioned material may be secured either locally or from the Canadian Co-Operative Wool Growers, Ltd., of Toronto.

AIRCRAFT FOR FAMILY USE

Henry Ford Has Experts Working on Design for Suitable Engine

There is positive belief that before many years air craft will be used generally for tripping about our country, and experts are working on an easily controlled engine and plane that will carry the maximum of safety.

In order to assist in its development Henry Ford, of motor fame, has men in his laboratory already developing a motor for this type of aeroplane. It will be an eight cylinder, air cooled X type motor, developing 200 horse power and weighing about two pounds to the horsepower. It will have, he said, all of the economical characteristics of automobile motors.

The motor as designed and now in process of construction will have accessible and interchangeable parts and no adjustments, he continued. If a part wears out it can be thrown away and another one put in.

The manufacturer said the new motor would be tested out in a plane within a short time.

H. P. Moore, P.M. who went to Toronto General Hospital for operation and treatment on the 25th of August, returned home on Tuesday. His recovery appears to be complete, but it will require a week or so for convalescence. Mr. Moore speaks very highly of the skill of the physicians who treated him, of the experienced care of his nurses, and in general the comfort and courtesy of the staff and administration of the hospital. Acton Free Press.

The churches of Mt. Pleasant and Cheltenham extended a call this week to Rev. Stewart Ferguson, of Baltimore, to become their pastor, offering a stipend of $1,500, free manse and three weeks vacation. Mr. Ferguson asked for a week in which to consider the offer. Both churches are United Churches, Mt. Pleasant voting to go into Union and Cheltenham going in automatically.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Featherstone, of Hamilton, and formerly of Oakville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Eva Irene, to John Thomas Armstrong, son of Mrs. K. Armstrong, of Toronto, wedding to take place in the middle of October.

PORT CREDIT

Harry Fleuty and James Martin, both of Oakville, were severely injured at 3.15 Sunday morning when the Ford sedan in which they were riding smashed into a freight train at the level crossing on the Centre road. The sedan was thrown into the ditch and entirely wrecked.

The two men were proceeding south on the Centre Road, Fleuty driving and Martin sitting in the adjoining front seat. The freight train, which was travelling east at a moderate rate of speed, was halfway across the level crossing when the sedan crashed into the side of one of the cars. The engineer did not know of the accident until he was notified at Mimico by F. Collins, the Port Credit night operator.

The two men were thrown clear of the car, and Martin, his face streaming with blood, was found wandering along the highway in a dazed condition by Highway Constable Jerry Jerome. He was picked up by the constable, and taken to the offices of Dr. Brayley. He had no idea of what had occurred when questioned about the accident. After he had been examined by the doctor, it was found that he had suffered head and internal injuries, and he was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Fleuty, in the meantime, attempted to phone for a doctor, who had him taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. He has a fractured rib.

For three-quarters of an hour traffic was blocked, and it was unable to proceed until the train crew arrived and cleared away the debris. Both men are unmarried. Fleuty, who is 26 years of age, is not in a serious condition. It is feared that Martin, who is 25 years old, has a fractured skull.

BRAMPTON

Warden Pallett, Peel; Warden McIntyre, Halton; Reeve T. H. Elliott, Chingacousy; and Reeve George Barber, Acton, visited the House of Refuge yesterday, and received a report from Superintendent Richard Partridge, to the effect that there are 61 inmates of the house at the present time, as against 50 at the same time last year. The committee expressed themselves as delighted with the condition of the House, and also with the appearance and standing of the farm connected with the institution.

BRAMPTON

The presentation of the King's colors to the Peel and Dufferin Regiment, which took place at Rosalea Sunday afternoon, was witnessed by nearly 2,000 people who braved raw, cold weather to take part in this historic event. Col. L. Bertram was in command of the regiment, which turned out 200 strong, with a full contingent of officers and the regimental band. Marching from the armories through the town, before which the Peel regiment chapter of the I.O.D.E. formed, escorted by Major A. Fifth and Captain Norman Stewart. After the colors had been dedicated by the chaplain, Capt. H. P. Charters, they were handed to the standard bearer, Mrs. J. S. Beck, by Major J. A. Hughes, M.C., second in command, who in turn gave them to the regent, Mrs. W. D. Sharpe, who presented them to Col. Bertram on behalf of the Order. Col. Bertram made a suitable reply on behalf of the regiment, after which the regiment saluted the colors.

In reporting Mr. Percy Parker's meeting at Brampton last Wednesday, the Daily Star has the following:— Leslie Pallett, formerly chairman of the county Conservative association, said he came there not as a Liberal, not as a Conservative, but as a citizen of Peel. Peel had been neglected in the past, but he believed Mr. Parker was a man who was for Peel first, last and all the time, and who would see that Peel's natural development was not hampered by government neglect. He said he had heard but one criticism of Mr. Parker among the Conservatives, and they wished he was their candidate.

Mr. McCaugherty, Mr. Maxwell and Mr. Johnson, in their speeches, pledged their hearty support to Mr. Parker, and stated that they were in the campaign to the exclusion of everything else until the last ballot, had been polled.

They all declared they had been out working among members of the Progressive party since the convention held last Saturday, and they had yet to find one Progressive who was supporting the Conservative candidate.

CHURCHVILLE

Churchville United Church will continue its weekly evening services this winter, each organization in the church being responsible for one night in the month. The Sunday School took charge last week, Allan Andrews presiding, and Leslie Pugh reading a paper on the lesson. Plans have been made to study the Book of Ephesians in common with other United congregations, and Rev. Ernest Payne will direct the study.

John Sheppard of Georgetown, was fined $50 and costs for having liquor in an illegal place.

Jas. T. Andrew, formerly of Oakville, died suddenly with heart disease at his home in Toronto. He was buried at Oakville.

Rev. Malcolm McArthur of the Church, Brampton, has accepted a call to the Knox United Church, London.

Edith Howell of Oakville, was instantly killed when she fell from her bicycle to the pavement. She was hanging onto a motor car.

Fire originating in the plant house of Perkins & Sons, florists, destroyed it and part of the greenhouse, at an early hour this morning. Prompt action on the part of the firemen confined the blaze to one end of the main building.

"Start a great big immigration movement into Canada, of people not only willing to work but for whom profitable work can be found, and all the pressing problems that now beset our country will be well on the way to solution."

—What Everybody Says.

Fine—let us do so! But to be sure we're on the straight and sure road to our goal, let us begin by doing some clear thinking—some hard thinking—on these two important questions:

1. What class of immigrants do we want?
2. How are we going to attract them?

Valuable Lessons to be Learned from Past Failures.

Heretofore we have always taken it for granted without much careful thought, perhaps—that it was farmer immigrants we most wanted,—people who would settle on our vacant land in the West, and produce more from the soil.

And complaints being loud and numerous that farming in Canada was not as profitable as it should be, we have tried to convert an unattractive situation into an attractive one by lowering the tariff on manufactured goods, in the hope of thereby lowering farm production costs, and so increasing the farmer's net.

Has that plan gotten us anywhere?

In 1924, despite tariff reductions made ostensibly to benefit agriculture, there were actually fewer farm immigrants than in 1923! And when, against the total immigration for 1923 and 1924, we offset the total emigration from our towns and cities, we find that the country has suffered a net loss!

So, obviously there is something wrong—somewhere—in the plan we have been following,—either in the assumption that it is farmers we most want, or in our method of attracting them. Perhaps it's a combination of the two.

Population Increases Should be Properly Balanced.

In shaping our policy as above, we have certainly overlooked one very important point. Farmers as a rule don't sell to farmers, but to town and city folk. So when we try to increase farm population by methods that operate to decrease town and city population, we are actually making things worse for the very people we are trying to benefit. We are curtailing a domestic market that our farmers can control, and we are increasing their dependence upon an export market over which they have no control!

An Alternative Plan that Promises Better Success.

Let us now go back to the beginning again, and start from the alternative assumption that it's primarily town and city population we want to attract.

Are 63 Countries Wrong and Only Canada Right?

While Canada has been lowering her tariff, these 63 countries have been raising theirs:—

Algeria	Japan
Argentina	Latvia
Australia	Luxembourg
Austria	Madagascar
Belgium	Malta
Bolivia	Mesopotamia
Brazil	Mexico
British East Africa	Netherland East
Dependencies	Indies
British Guiana	Newfoundland
British Honduras	New Zealand
British West	Nigeria
Indies	Norway
Bulgaria	Paraguay
Chile	Persia
China	Peru
Colombia	Poland
Czecho-Slovakia	Portugal
Ecuador	Roumania
Egypt	Russia
Estonia	Samoa
Finland	San Salvador
France	Sarawak
Repub. of Georgia	Serb-Croat
Germany	Slovene State
Gold Coast	Seychelles
Colony	Sierra Leone
Greece	South Africa
Guatemala	Spain
Holland	Sweden
Honduras	Switzerland
India	Tunis
Irish Free State	United States
Italy	Uruguay

And now even the United Kingdom has begun to protect her home markets.

63 Countries have been making it more difficult for Canada to sell in their markets, while Canada has been making it easier for the whole world to sell in hers!

Have they all blundered? Has Canada alone shown wisdom?

Obviously the way to attract that class is by switching from a policy of lower duties to one of higher duties. The one thing above all others that the immigrant wants is the assurance of a steady job at good wages. Give him that, and he will come in his thousands,—yes, in his tens of thousands! And in a policy of higher tariffs he will have his guarantee that steady work at good wages will be awaiting him.

"Yes," you say, "but what about our farm population? We want it to increase too!" Of course we do! But with town and city population increasing, can farm population do other than increase in proportion? With more customers for farm produce, and with a higher purchasing power per customer due to higher wages, isn't it inevitable that a domestic supply will be forthcoming to meet a domestic demand, particularly if we protect farm products in the same way that we propose to protect manufactured products?

A Precedent That Shows What Can Be Done!

We have tried the plan of lower tariffs, as a means of attracting farmer immigration, and we see that it has signally failed, and we know the reasons why it has failed.

Why not now try the alternative plan of higher tariffs, as a means of attracting urban immigration, when it seems perfectly clear that it must bring farmer immigration in its train?

Even if the latter were mere theory, that would be no valid reason for rejecting it in favor of a policy we have tried, and found to be barren of results.

But we know that it is far beyond the theory stage. The United States offers a practical demonstration of its success! By the plan of higher tariffs, to benefit all classes of population, the United States has managed to attract the biggest and longest sustained immigration movement the world has ever known!

What better example does Canada want?

Smoker and Euchre

The Smoker and Euchre held in the Orange Hall on Wednesday evening by the O.Y.B. of Streetsville was a decided success in every way. The card playing started at nine o'clock and finished at eleven, during which time smokers were passed around and consumed until the committee had to open the windows so the players could see the cards. There was also a basket of apples which were enjoyed by all. After the card playing lunch was served and the winners were announced. Mr. R. Wedgewood was the best player getting the highest score for the first prize, a handsome club bag. Mr. E. E. King was a close second being only two points down and won a set of military brushes. They were asked to step forward and Jack Drennan, W.M., presented them with their prizes. The boys are very much pleased with the success of the euchre and intend holding some more, so watch for posters.

United Church Notes

Rev. W. A. MacKay.
Rev. Mr. MacKay will preach at Britannia in the morning, Meadowvale at 2.30 p.m. and at Streetsville at 7 p.m.
Mr. Smart will preach at Streetsville at 11 a.m. and at Eden at 2.30.
The Prayer meeting last evening was under the leadership of Rev. W. A. MacKay. The subject, 'What is success?' was dealt with by Cecil Dowling and Rev. MacKay. Next Wed. the Literary and Recreational Com. is in charge.
Britannia Harvest Home services were largely attended last Sunday and on Tuesday evening a first class supper and entertainment were held. Mrs. Lindsay and Miss Hazel Ross of Streetsville delighted the audience with their readings and Miss Beck of Brampton and Mr. Tuck of Oakville were the soloists. Rev. Mr. MacKay was the chairman.

STREETSVILLE FAIR

Considering the lateness of the season, Streetsville Fair last Saturday was well attended, there being about 2,500 people on the grounds and the gate receipts were $400.00. There was a good showing of all kinds of live stock, while the competition in the ring and the horse races were a great attraction. The display of ladies' work, fruit, vegetables, domestic work, etc., in the hall was well up to the average and the produce of the field showed that there was a good crop of roots.
There were plenty of side shows to amuse the boys, both old and young, but the 'fakirs' had a chilly time of it on the hillside. Several manufactured articles were on exhibition and the Ford Motor cars showed a full line of new models. Port Credit Brass Band played several selections and led the school children's parade from the school to the grounds. Mr. S. L. Hall, president, and the directors are well satisfied with the success of the day.

JUNIORS DANCE

At the Orange Hall on Fair night, over 100 young people enjoyed a social dance, conducted by the Junior Institute. Excellent music was furnished by Forster's Orchestra of Port Credit, and the dance terminated sharp at 12 o'clock. The dancers came from the village and vicinity and some from great distances.
It was a great success in every way and the management are well satisfied with the results.

ERINDALE

R. Home Smith, who promoted the Humber driveway and other improvements on both banks of the Humber River, has, in company with W. R. P. Parker, Liberal candidate for Peel, and other capitalists, purchased half of the famous Erindale Farm on the east bank of the Credit River. The farm property covers a square mile, and has an area of 640 acres. The Home Smith and Parker syndicate has bought 300 acres, and will hold the land for investment.

The Erindale Farm is on the north side of the Dundas Highway, the entrance being just east of the Credit River. It is one of the beauty spots of the district west of Toronto, and is very well known. It was the farm of S. Price & Sons, dairymen, who a few years ago disposed of their business to the City Dairy Company, but the farm remained in the Price family. Thomas Price last night stated the 300 acres of the farm property had been sold.

DISTRICT NOTES

George Mason of Trafalgar Township, picked a McIntosh red apple today which tipped the scales at 1 pound and 4 ounces. Apples in Halton are an abundant crop.

Stanley Johnston of Trafalgar Township has several snow apple trees in his orchard showing the unusual spectacle of full bloom simultaneously with the ripening of the apples.

Lou Jacobs of Nelson Township, south of Milton, is the champion apple-picker of Halton County, and, perhaps, of the Dominion, he having picked forty-four barrels of apples in nine hours, a record which would be hard to beat.

The mere fact that the rain was pouring down did not dampen the spirits nor the ardor of Caledon Villagers Tories when they turned out in strength to a meeting in the Township Hall in the interests of Sam Charters, the Conservative candidate. In addition to an interesting speech from the candidate, David Wilson, ex-rev. of Albion, A. Grenville Davis and F. R. Marshall of Toronto, gave addresses. The latter stressed the fact that protection was not a matter for the towns alone, but was equally for the benefit of the country as a whole. Homer Hilliard occupied the chair.

Charles Norris, Jr.
There passed away at his home, Lot 9, Con. 2, Trafalgar, last night, Charles Norris Jr., a well-known farmer, whose death is deeply mourned in the whole district. Deceased, who was in his thirty-fourth year, is survived by his widow, two sons and two daughters.

Mrs. F. W. Gillies
Mrs. F. W. Gillies, a highly-esteemed resident of Brampton, passed away last night at her late home, William Street, after a long illness. She had been a resident of this town for many years, and was an active worker in the Presbyterian Church, having held offices in its Mission Circle and Ladies' Aid Society. During the war she was deeply interested in Red Cross work, and of late years was a member of the Victorian Order of Nurses. Previous to her marriage she was Miss Elizabeth Thompson, a daughter of the late Robert Thompson. Mrs. Gillies was born at St. Mary's, and the funeral tomorrow will be held there. A service was held at her late home tonight, and was conducted by Rev. James Wilson. She is survived by her husband, one brother, John, of St. Mary's, and one sister, Mrs. Wylie Clark, of Saskatoon, Sask.

SOLEMN PACT TO INSURE PEACE SIGNED BY GREAT POWERS AT LOCARNO

France and Germany Make Covenant of Boundary Line Forever Inviolable to Invaders—Britain and Italy Promise to Go to Military Assistance of Either Nation Which is Victim of Violation of This Pledge.

A despatch from Locarno, Switzerland, says:—Just as the armistice ended the Great War, so on Thursday, making history, treaties were adopted at Locarno designed to render impossible any reopening of that Great War. Germany and the Allied powers approved the text of a security pact outlawing war.

When word of the agreement spread from mouth to mouth, like some wireless flash, this peaceful spot, nestling at the lakeside beneath towering mountains, seemed to pulsate with the thrill of countless multitudes dwelling throughout the world.

The Rhine pact of security adopted on Thursday and initiated on Friday, pledges its signatories, France, Germany and Belgium, not to attack or invade one another's territory and to abstain from war. Great Britain and Italy stand as guarantors of this engagement and promise to throw their forces away from the parties which violate its terms.

France is allowed to keep certain rights embodied in the Treaty of Versailles, and, notably, take immediate action should Germany commit a hostile act by constructing fortifications either on the left bank of the Rhine or within 50 kilometres (about thirty miles) of its east bank, or keep armed forces within that area.

The pact ceases to hold when combined penalties against any aggressor nation are ordered by the League of Nations, or when by virtue of Article XV, of the League covenant, and by reason of failure of the council to reach unanimity on any dispute, the League members may take such action as they deem necessary for the maintenance of right and justice.

The Permanent Court of International Justice, Boards of Conciliation, and the League Council are all possibilities for arbitration of all disputes under this pact, and arbitration is obligatory.

Besides the Rhine pact, an agreement was reached on collateral arbitration treaties between Germany and France and Germany and Belgium; these interlock with the pact itself. There will be, in addition, arbitration treaties between Germany and her eastern neighbors, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

These are expected to be concluded at once, and will follow the same scope as the western treaties. There will also be separate conventions between France and her eastern allies, guaranteeing France the right to come to the assistance of Poland or Czechoslovakia in case they are subjected to an unprovoked, flagrant attack.

Last comes the gentlemen's agreement, whereby Great Britain, France, Italy and Belgium inform Germany that they interpret the covenant in the sense that no penalty contributions can be expected from members beyond the members' means. By this statement, which will take the form of a letter, Germany is relieved of the fear that the operation of League sanctions might embroil her with Russia.

The various treaties will probably be signed at Locarno within a fortnight and League of Nations officials here for the closing conference, see no reason why, with the treaties ratified by December, Germany cannot enter the League by the end of the year.

A later despatch from Locarno says:—The Locarno Conference has reached a successful conclusion. What it will mean only time will tell. The most experienced statesman of the lot, Briand, said it meant laying the foundations of the United States of Europe. In a common communiqué the statesmen said, the Locarno Conference "must result in restoring the peace and security of Europe."

The following treaties will come out of Locarno: 1, The Rhine and security compact among Germany, Belgium, France, Great Britain and Italy; 2, an arbitration convention between Germany and France; 3, an arbitration convention between Germany and Belgium; 4, an arbitration treaty between Germany and Poland; 5, an arbitration treaty between Germany and Czechoslovakia.

In addition there are two understandings, one between France and Poland, and the other between France and Czechoslovakia, by the terms of which France undertakes to guarantee the arbitration arrangements between Germany and France's two allies.

The Rhine and compact, of itself the most important of the treaties, binds France and Germany never to fight again, but to arbitrate or mediate their differences. Between them is established a demilitarized Rhine-land. Britain and Italy agree to aid either party which is the victim of aggression by the other.

The arbitration treaties between Germany and France and between Germany and Belgium serve to carry out the Rhine-land compact. The conventions between Berlin on the one hand and Prague and Warsaw on the other are intended to complete the assurance against wars between Germany and France and her allies.

But, important as are the treaties in themselves, all the statesmen emphasize that the all-important point is the restoration of equality among the nations of Europe, for henceforth Germany is to be received as an equal in European councils. A special session of the Assembly of the League of Nations probably will be held in December to admit her.

NEW ERA OF PEACE DAWNS IN EUROPE

All Nations Now Are on an Equal Basis, is Official View.

London, Oct. 18.—"European peace again" is the headline under which J. L. Garvin in to-day's issue of the Observer hymns the Locarno agreement. However, there is as yet no certain knowledge in London as to what has been initiated at Locarno.

Despite this ignorance, the general feeling in diplomatic circles is that the steps taken are of paramount importance despite the fact, which is admitted privately, that certain clauses in the western security pact relating to Article XVI of the covenant and the French obligation to eastern allies can be, and are for the present intended to be, interpreted in two ways, one by the Germans and the other by the remaining signatories.

All the Foreign Ministers of the powers concerned are expected here December 1 to sign the concordat of Locarno. But so far as can be learned here, this will be merely an impressive formality. There will be no changes in the documents initiated yesterday at Locarno unless Parliamentary opposition here or elsewhere develops in the meantime.

Premier Baldwin, on behalf of the Cabinet, has sent a telegram of congratulation to Chamberlain, and the entire British press, from the extreme Tory Morning Post to the Labor Daily Herald expresses its congratulations to Chamberlain over his success.

Only Lord Beaverbrook's and Lord Rothermere's newspapers, which are in open revolt against the Government, are expressing a tone which indicates they will open an attack on the pact when the full text is published as committing Great Britain too far.

King George Reads Chapter of Bible Every Day

A despatch from London says:—"King George has let it be known that he reads a chapter of the Bible every day of his life." Rear-Admiral A. R. Emdin said to-day in a speech at a "Bible and Empire" demonstration held at Wembley, under the auspices of the World Evangelical Alliance.

SERIOUS DAMAGE TO QUALITY OF CROP

A despatch from Winnipeg says:—Serious damage to the grade of the Western wheat crop because of delay in threshing operations occasioned by continued bad weather, is indicated in a special report of threshing conditions published by The Manitoba Free Press on Friday.

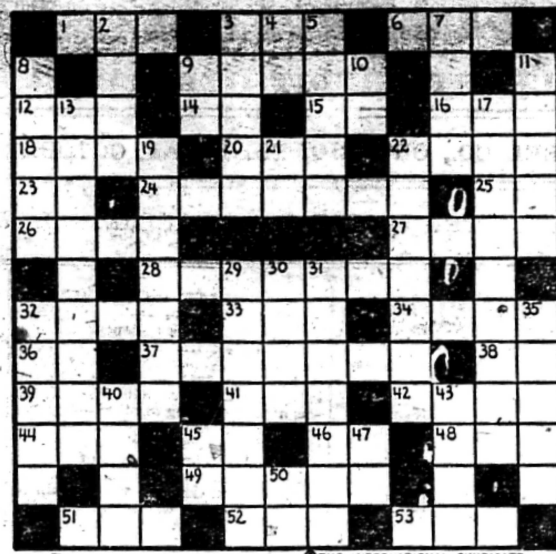

The Province of Alberta has been hardest hit by the bad weather, the report says. Twenty points lying south from Lacombe to Milk River and east practically to the provincial border reported that from 60 to 90 per cent. of the threshing remains to be done. In the Coronation district, the report states, threshing has been resumed and the best grade so far is No. 2 northern tough. At Hanna wheat is reported to have lost two grades. Threshing has been delayed seven weeks at some points, with a delay of three weeks reported from practically every point queried. Conditions in the northern sections of the province were reported better.

In Saskatchewan the report indicated that along the line of the C.P.R. southwest and southeast of that line, 20 to 60 per cent. of the threshing remained to be done. North of the C.P.R. main line and along the North Prince Albert branch of the C.N.R. unthreshed grain was reported to total 45 to 75 per cent. of the crop. The wheat is reported to have lost from one to two grades in the average delay of three weeks.

Four Border Municipalities Approach 100,000 Population

A despatch from Windsor says:—Four border municipalities—Windsor, Ford, Sandwich, and Walkerville—are rapidly nearing the 100,000 mark in population, according to estimates of municipal officials. Mayor Frank J. Mitchell estimates Windsor's population as now approximately 60,000. Ford's increase of more than 2,000 this year brings the town to nearly 11,000, while Sandwich and Walkerville also have had decided increases during the year. Walkerville being estimated at 10,000.

WEMBLEY EXHIBITION GOES TO LIQUIDATORS

Total Deficit May Reach Two Million Pounds—Question of Fate of Buildings.

London, Oct. 18.—The British Empire Exhibition at Wembley is to be finally wound up and trustees are to be appointed forthwith to liquidate the exhibition, in accordance with the regular custom in bringing to an end temporary associations.

The total deficit may reach £2,000,000, but this figure has not yet been definitely ascertained. This means an end to an enterprise which, in spite of its financial loss, has had very considerable effect on recent events in England.

Question of what is to become of the E. inc. buildings is giving the authorities a good deal of trouble.

No course has actually been decided on, and some persons, it is understood, are not yet satisfied that it would be impossible to continue the Empire Exhibition, in a smaller, but permanent form, and it is not unlikely some suggestion of this kind may be brought forward. But, in any case, the present Exhibition is to close Oct. 31, the final ceremony being conducted by the Duke and Duchess of York.

Five-Year-Old Boy Crushed Under Steam Roller

A despatch from Mitchell says:—Crushed by a steam roller while at play, 5-year-old Lorne Ratz of Water street met a tragic death Friday afternoon on St. George Street. The boy was playing with two other children when, it is supposed, he fell under the eight-ton roller, the rear wheel passing over his head and crushing it to a pulp. The boy's mother, who was about to call him to get him ready to go to a supper which was to be held in the Lutheran Church, on hearing the news, collapsed, and is in a critical condition. An inquest will be held.

The steam roller, operated by Ezra Robinson, was doing repair work on St. George Street at the time of the fatality.

One Bicycle for Every Seventh Person in France

A despatch from Paris says:—France can boast of one bicycle for every seventh man, woman and child of its entire population. Official figures for the year 1924 show that 6,370,644 licenses for bicycles were issued, an increase of 532,721 over 1923. Virtually every workman in France owns a "Little Queen," as they call their wheels.

Motorist Pinioned Under Car Burned to Death

Montreal, Oct. 18.—Pinned beneath the burning wreck of an automobile, Rosalie Thibodeau, aged 20, of Shawinigan Falls, Que., was burned to death today on the highway near the bridge at Bout de L'Isle while her three friends looked on, helpless to save him because of the fierceness of the flames.

The accident occurred when the car was ditched in rounding a curve. Thibodeau's three companions, two girls and a man, were thrown from the machine, but he was caught beneath it. Almost instantly a leak in the gasoline tank caused the automobile to catch fire.

His companions vainly attempted to free him, but were driven back by the flames.

Modern Smelting Plant to be Erected at Rouyn Mine

Quebec, Oct. 18.—Marking a tremendous development in the gold-copper mining fields of this province, arrangements have been completed for the immediate erection of a large, modern smelting plant on Lot 156, Rouyn Township. The work will be started without delay.

The announcement followed conferences held Friday and Saturday between Government officials and the Noranda Mines, Ltd. The new smelter will handle the entire output of the mines, and will be ready for operation late next fall in time to supply the National Railways with ample business along the new Rouyn Mines branch line.

Girl Falls from Auto and Drowns in River

Truro, N.S., Oct. 18.—Marion Macrae, 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Macrae, was drowned in North River, five miles from here, late Saturday night, when her father's automobile left the road, rolled down an embankment and landed on its wheels on the river bottom. Marion and her sister Beth fell out when the car door sprang open. They floated down stream, but Beth was able to save herself. Marion floated away in the darkness and all attempts to find her proved fruitless until this morning. None of the other six occupants left their seats or were injured.

Fine Harvesters Who Quit.

A despatch from Winnipeg says:—The first fines to be recorded in Manitoba for refusal to obey employers' instructions were assessed against three harvest hands who abandoned their work during the height of the harvest season. They were fined $5 and costs.

Canada from Coast to Coast

Saint John, N.B.—Potato exports from this port to Cuba since the beginning of the season up to and including 26th of September have amounted to 75,027 bags and 12,950 barrels; as against 10,300 bags in the same period of 1924.

Quebec, Que.—After purchasing $85,000 worth of land from farmers in the parish of Cap Rouge, a short distance from the Dominion Experimental Farm, the St. Regis Paper Co. has decided to start the erection of its pulp and paper mills at that point early in May, 1926. Timber will be obtained from the large limits of the company on the North Shore along the lower St. Lawrence, and also from the Abitibi district.

Toronto, Ont.—Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, has announced that government assistance will be made in the marketing of the apple crop of the province. The government will carry out an extensive publicity campaign urging the citizens to use home-grown fruit, and will aid in securing export markets by purchasing 25,000 barrels of representative apples to be shipped overseas with a view of favorably impressing the buyers there with the quality of the Ontario fruit.

Winnipeg, Man.—Though rain and snow continued to retard threshing operations in the Prairie Provinces last week, threshing generally is now two weeks ahead of last year. Soil is in excellent condition everywhere for fall plowing and a substantial increase of acreage is assured for 1926 over 1925. Recent rains have maintained pastures in good shape and the condition of cattle is reported as excellent.

Regina, Sask.—Corn is steadily gaining in popularity throughout the West as an aid to diversified farming and it is estimated that 100,000 acres were grown in Saskatchewan last year. Although seed was scarce in 1924 and the price rather high, the acreage will probably be slightly higher this year than last.

Edmonton, Alta.—Tar sand deposits at Fort McMurray are being investigated just now by a party of municipal and Dominion engineers. The investigators intend to look over the whole situation with a view to making a full report on development work and prospects for next year.

Victoria, B.C.—Plants for cleaning timothy will be established at Burns Lake and Smithers, Central British Columbia, by the agricultural department of the provincial government. Quite a number of farmers in that part of the country are now engaged in the production of timothy seed for the market. The seed grown there is of an exceptionally fine quality and there is a big demand for it.

AUSTRALIA EXCLUDES UNDESIRABLE BY TEST

Scot Unable to Speak German is Deported from the Commonwealth.

Adelaide, Australia, Oct. 18.—An interesting example of the Commonwealth's wide powers in the exclusion of undesirable immigrants, even British subjects, is shown in the case of Donald Stewart, a young Scotsman, who was sentenced to six months' imprisonment as a prohibited immigrant, and ordered deported. A dictation test was applied in German, which Mr. Stewart failed to pass. He protested that he was a Scotsman, and not a German, and that he did not understand. The officers have the power to apply a test in any European language.

This provides a convenient method of excluding undesirables without making a charge or raising international or color distinctions. It frequently is applied to Asiatics.

Some time ago an international crook who was an accomplished linguist and spoke French, German, Spanish, Italian and Dutch was excluded by administering a test dictation of fifty words of Gaelic.

The test may be applied within a triennium after a person's arrival. The police reported that Mr. Stewart arrived in Australia in 1924 and was since convicted in three States.

Jury Finds Mrs. Janisse Guilty of Manslaughter

A despatch from Windsor says:—Mrs. Ruth Janisse, tried for the slaying of Clayton McMillin, young battery service proprietor, was found guilty of manslaughter, after the jury had deliberated for four hours.

Crying so that she could be heard all over the Court House, Mrs. Janisse was carried into the chamber where the jury announced that they were ready to render their verdict. She heard the pronouncement, became hysterical, collapsed, and was then carried away again. She will probably be sentenced at the conclusion of the other criminal cases.

Mrs. McMillin, widow of the dead man, after hearing the verdict, also collapsed and was borne away by court attendants and friends, through a side door.

James Clark, who for three days has carried the burden of the defence, expressed his satisfaction that the verdict had saved Mrs. Janisse from death, and thanked the jurors as they filed out one by one.

Synod Selecting Names for Bulgarian Children

A despatch from Sofia, Bulgaria, says:—The office of the Holy Synod, the head of the Bulgarian Church, is preparing a list of names for use in baptizing children. The largest number of names thus far selected come from the Holy Scriptures. Next on the list are the names of flowers, and following these the names of persons famed in Bulgarian history.

It is intended to give the new generation, as far as possible, purely Bulgarian names if they are not christened for persons of Scriptural origin.

Tell-Tale Hands.

The work of a booking-clerk at a busy station, where there is a continuous stream of ticket-taking passengers is terribly monotonous. I really think I should have been compelled to change my occupation had not a friend recommended me to try—as a sort of sanity-saving sideline—to get interested in the hands of those who came for tickets. By hands I don't mean the palms, but the finger-tips, fingers, and knuckles.

It saved me. If you came to my "window," and laid your hand on the ledge before you spoke, I could tell your character.

Stubby finger-tips, with the nails very short and red, and the knuckles bunched up like hillocks, are sure tokens of a nasty, cruel, tyrannical character.

When I see a thick, podgy, red-hand on the ledge I know that I shall hear a jovial voice asking for a ticket, and that I have a friendly soul, of cheery manner, to deal with. As likely as not he'll make some humorous remark and laugh at it himself more than I do. His is the happy-go-lucky type, that lives for to-day, and lets to-morrow go hang. If such a man makes a success of life it's more by accident than by effort. Everyone likes him, however, and he has no enemies but himself.

Of long hands there are two types—the delicate and the strong. The fingers of the latter are straight, with the knuckles hardly showing. The nails are square and seem over-large. I call this the "business" hand. It denotes success, self-reliance, initiative, and brain power.

Long, delicate hands indicate a quick temper and no self-reliance. Passengers with those hands always seem bewildered. You may smile at this, but it is a fact that, of those who give themselves but a few seconds to take their tickets and catch their train, nine out of ten have long, delicate hands, with small, slender fingers, and are very generous. But they're no "push."

"Claw" hands I don't like. The backs of these are broad, but the fingers are short, thin, and draw together fan-shape. The nails are long, but very narrow. This is the mean, miserly, selfish type, with a bent towards dishonesty. A man like this would show no loyalty to a friend, and his conscience would be a minus quantity.

An interesting study hands. Faces can be masked and controlled, but hands tell the truth. Put it to the test on anyone whose character you really know.

FIGHTING FOR BABY'S HEALTH

Is the Constant Care of Every Young Mother.

The young mother has a constant care in looking after the welfare of her little ones. Childhood ailments come on so suddenly—sometimes without a minute's warning—the mother may have a very sick baby on her hands before help can be obtained. That is unless she has a remedy in the house which she can safely give the baby for any of the many minor ailments of babyhood and childhood.

Such a remedy is found in Baby's Own Tablets. Thousands of mothers throughout the country always keep a box of the Tablets on hand and they proclaim them to be without an equal for sweetening baby's stomach; regulating his bowels, and thus driving out constipation and indigestion, colds and simple fevers, and making the dreaded teething period easy.

Baby's Own Tablets are an absolutely safe remedy. They are guaranteed to be free from opiates or any other narcotic drug which are so harmful to the future welfare of the baby. Mothers, if you value the life of your little ones give him Baby's Own Tablets when he is ill, or better still, give him an occasional dose of the Tablets to ward off illness. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or will be sent to any address, post paid, at 25 cents a box by addressing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Secrets of the Snows.

This summer has witnessed one of the greatest exploits of mountaineering ever recorded—the conquest of Mount Logan, the highest peak in Canada, which rises to a height of over 19,000 feet.

The Canadian Alpine Club expedition, which triumphed over all obstacles and reached the summit of Mount Logan, originally consisted of eight members, but two of them had to abandon the attempt because of frost-bite and general exhaustion before attaining their goal.

Almost incredible hardships were suffered by the conquerors of Mount Logan, who spent forty-four days entirely on ice in getting to the summit and back again. Each man of the party had to pack about seventy pounds over two hundred miles of ridge and glacier. Dangerous storms were encountered, especially on the return journey, and only the most heroic efforts averted loss of life.

On the last lap of the ascent, when the party reached what they believed to be the highest point of the mountain, they found yet another peak towering above them. To attain this they had to descend a thousand feet, into a valley between the two peaks before again beginning to climb.

This final peak was heart-breaking work, as the party had to make progress up a steep snow and ice slope, terminating in a knife area that led to the summit. The temperature when they gained the top was four degrees below zero.

Surnames and Their Origin

FRASER.

Variations—Fraser, Frasler, Frazier.
Racial Origin—Norman-French.
Source—A locality.

This is another of the new Highland clan names which, though borne by Celtic families, trace back to an origin in Normandy.

All of these clan names were formed in the same way, by knights and nobles from the army of William the Conqueror, or the sons of such followers, who, either to strengthen the foreign relations of the conqueror, or because they were not satisfied with the spoils of war which fell to their lot in conquered England, sought their fortunes in the north at the court of the Scottish king.

They were, as might be expected, men with reputations as mighty fighters, and as they were independent of blood relationship with the factions around the throne, they were, of course, welcome additions always to the royal Scottish organization.

But the Frasers, like the others, quickly formed alliances by marriage, and adapting themselves to the customs of the Gaels upon receiving grants of land in the Highlands, rapidly assumed leadership of existing clans and gathered around them clan organizations which they strove to make more powerful.

The Frasers are found first settled in Tweeddale during the reign of Malcolm III. They got their foothold in the Highlands through marriages into families of the Orkneys and Caithness chieftains.

The original Norman form of the name was "de Frisel" or "Frasell," and simply denoted overlordship of a place of that name in Normandy, being a family name only in the sense that it was hereditary because the

A Ring.

Beneath an ancient tomb I found a ring.
In Trebizond;
And graved in Greek within the slender thing
These words I coned,
Through dent and scar:
"In summer and in winter, Near and Far,
Here and Beyond."

Oh, Grecian maiden, more than hero he,
Who loved thee so,
And slipped upon thy finger delicately,
Long years ago,
This gift of gold,
And bound two souls with words that could withhold Time's ebb and flow.

Bruise Sorrow's heel, and trip sure-footed Death,
And now despond
In answering echo of immortal breath
Unaging bond,
No Doom can mar!
"In Winter, and in Summer, Near and Far,
Here and Beyond."

NERVOUS DEPRESSION

Why People Are Low Spirited and Depressed.

Nearly all women and most men suffer at times from fits of depression and low spirits. Everything seems a burden; then come periods of nervous irritability, headaches and weariness. People who suffer this way lack vitality because their blood is poor and nerves are starved in consequence.

The only way the nerves can be reached is through the blood. By enriching the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the starved nerves are supplied with just the elements they need. This is proved by the experience of Mrs. J. E. Dudson, 12th Ave. East, Vancouver, B.C., who says:—"About three years ago I became very weak and nervous. I had pains in my side and back, and also suffered from frequent pains in the back of my head and neck. I was hardly able to do anything about the house. I would wake with a start in the night and my heart would flutter so that it almost choked me. I tried much doctor's medicine but it did me no permanent good. One day I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to give them a trial. These pills produced such a beneficial change in a short time that I kept taking them until I had used a dozen boxes. By this time there was such an improvement in my condition that friends would ask me what I was taking, and of course I was only too pleased to tell them it was Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I am now feeling like a new person and am doing my own housework. We would not now be without Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the house."

You can get these pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FINLAY.

Variations—Findlay, Findley.
Racial Origin—Scottish (Celtic).
Source—A given name.

Scottish family names, taken as a class, do not parallel those of Ireland in one respect. They are not overwhelmingly Celtic, either in language or in the method of formation. And there are reasons for this.

In the first place, the blood of Scotland is far from being overwhelmingly Celtic. At the time of the Roman domination of Britain the country north of the great wall which marked the northern limits of the empire's government was inhabited by the Picts, a race more similar to the Celtic branch of the Celtic race, like the Welsh, the Cornishmen and the Bretons. About the third and fourth centuries of the Christian era the Gaelic Celts of Ireland came over from Ulster and settled themselves in the Highlands. Then, when the Anglo-Saxons invaded England they cut well north into the lowlands. Norman and then English conquest and occupation followed on a large scale before surnames became true family names. Hence there were influences of many races at work.

The names of Finlay, however, is truly Celtic. Originally its form as a given name was Fionnlaach, a compound of "fionn," meaning "white," and "laach," meaning "fighter," or "soldier." When it first became a family name, of course, it was preceded by "Mac," meaning "descendant of," but in the course of time this has been dropped and the name has developed variously into the modern forms to be found in this country to-day.

Industrial Hygiene in Ontario.

Ontario is the only province in Canada which has a Division of Industrial Hygiene organized in the Department of Health, for the purpose of promoting the health of industrial workers. The main objective of the Division is the prevention of general sickness; the special objective, the prevention of those diseases which, arising out of working conditions, are called "occupational diseases."

Now it is impossible to know how much wastage in Ontario industry is caused by sickness, because there is as yet little health supervision and few adequate records of lost time. But such data as exists shows that in Ontario lost time from sickness amounts to at least double lost time from accidents.

As regards disease traceable to a man's occupation, the records of the Division cover 472 cases followed up during the last 4 years. The rate for lead poisoning in Ontario in 1925 is higher than that which was considered alarming in England 25 years ago. This alone shows the need for a systematic and rigorous attempt to guard the health of our workers. As a basis for this, a few cardinal facts need to be grasped:

There is a close connection between the health of the worker and the economic prosperity of the country. A worker's health is inevitably affected by his working conditions.

Many diseases among workers can be traced to risks, such as poison, dust, etc., associated with their occupation.

On all points of industrial health, information can be obtained, both by employers and employees, from the Department of Health of Ontario, Spadina House, Toronto.

Seize Your Chances.

Can you hear her? Opportunity is knocking at your door.
If you do not rise and greet her, she will go and come no more.
Greet her gladly—she is laden with the chances that you need.
Seize her swiftly—for she'll prove herself a friend to you indeed.
Vacillation, foe to progress, may just whisper in your ear,
"Wait awhile and see what happens—better chances may be near."
Heed it not, the foolish warning; take the good that comes to-day:
Let not worthless fears assail you; seize your chances while you may.

Here's the ladder, try to climb it, do not at the low rung stop;
Other folks may be before you, but "there's room still at the top."
Standing still will not avail you; let your watchword be, "Advance";
If you fail to climb this moment, you may never have the chance.
Life is full of glorious offers you need only reach and take—Perseverance, resolution, all the hard tasks easy make.
If you'd reach the highest summit, you must start at once to climb,
Helped by grit, and faith, and patience; seize your chances every time.

ABLE TO DO HOUSEWORK NOW

Sick a Year. Got Great Benefit from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Bloomington, N. S.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for pains and backache, also for nervousness, sick headaches and sleeplessness. I was troubled in this way for over a year, and a friend told me about the Vegetable Compound and induced me to take it. I must say I have received great benefit from it and am able to do my housework now. I recommend the Vegetable Compound myself and am willing for you to use this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. WILLIAM MORSE, Bloomington, Annapolis County, N. S.

Do you know that in a recent canvass among women users of the Vegetable Compound over 220,000 replies were received. To the question, "Have you received benefit by taking this medicine?" 98 per cent. replied "Yes."

This means that 98 out of every 100 women are in better health because they have given this medicine a fair trial.

Mrs. Morse is simply another case of a woman receiving "great benefit." Women suffering from the troubles so common to their sex should listen to what other women say who have experienced the same sufferings and found relief. Give this dependable medicine a chance—and at once. It is sold at all drug stores.

PRESENTATION

At the regular meeting of Peel Chapter, No. 98, Order Eastern Star, on Monday evening, a very happy event took place, when the Worthy Matron, Miss Ruby Cordingley, bride-to-be, was presented by the chapter with a beautiful silver tea service. The address was read by Bro. F. A. Maas, Worthy Patron, while the service was presented by Mrs. Couse, Immediate Past Worthy Matron.

After the business of the evening was over, a pleasant hour was spent at the banquet table, when toasts were proposed and responded to, and many fine compliments were paid to the Worthy Matron.

The prizes won at the card game were then presented, Mrs. Geo. Bonham winning the lady's prize and Mr. W. G. Cook, the gentleman's.

THE ADDRESS

Worthy Matron: It is with a feeling of regret that I find it necessary to lay a charge against you before the members of this chapter, to-night. I believe that according to the by-laws of our Chapter, a Committee of Investigation is appointed by the Worthy Matron to consider and pass upon all matters of importance. We find that you have taken upon yourself the responsibility of dealing with a question which concerns us all very deeply. On October 29th Canada is called upon to settle a great issue, but we find that you are on that date, without consulting the committee, going to settle a greater issue. You are placing Peel Chapter foremost in establishing a precedent. It has never been known before of a Worthy Matron, while in office, forsaking the state of single blessedness and embarking upon the Sea of Matrimony.

Worthy Matron, you have been a member since the institution of this chapter, and in every sense have fulfilled your obligations in a most competent and able manner. Each chair that you have occupied has been filled to the entire satisfaction of the whole fraternity. It is with deep regret that we learn you are about to leave us, but before you do we ask you to accept this small gift. May it ever serve as a remembrance of your association with Peel Chapter No. 98. May the light of the Eastern Star ever guide you o'er paths of happiness and prosperity and prompt you to perform whatever duties may devolve upon you.

Dated this 19th day of October, on behalf of Peel Chapter.
F. A. MAAS,
Worthy Patron.
MARGARET M. COUSE,
Past Worthy Matron.

THREE WISE MEN

In Streetsville there are wise men th.
Of that I'm sure, you will all agree,
From London east, to Milton Brick
The road is nothing but a bag of tricks.

It is nothing but a rolling sea
With sand and all, quite real you see.
Some say, it is to be a flower bed,
But Jack hawk kicked, and said it was to be an onion bed.

Then the water, it's quite a shame,
On my, the council has a name.
Jack Hawk said, it would be quite a treat
To have some water, to wash the poor cow's feet.

Jim Deane said, it was a disgrace
To have no water to wash his face.
Then the night, its very poor,
And the electrician lays it to poor Charlie's door.

He said it should be No. 6 upon the line;
Others say he should have a No. 9.
Jim Deane said it was not right
To have to read with so poor a light.

Now, there's bachelor Jack, on Shamrock Hill,
With his man Friday, surnamed Bill.
These two one fine night
Started to scrub without a light.

Bill started first for run
Until the pet mice started to run.
Just then a cat appeared at the door,
Bill made a swipe and hit the floor.

Then, the rifle, it went bang,
Bill's heels made an awful bang.
Jack, he bumped his head against a post,
And Bill, he also gave up the ghost.

Jack said, "You are an awful coward, Bill."
But he answered, "Oh my, I am so ill!"
Then they started to scrub away,
But Jack had an awful lot to say.

Bill made a mistake and scrubbed
Jack's nose
Until it was the color of a bright red rose.
Bill says, "Jack, you are not right,"
And that worthy wanted to fight.

Twelve o'clock on Friday night,
Bill, he had a terrible bite.
He woke up in a spasm of fright,
But found it was the soldiers of the night.

Bill, he is a terrible man,
For all he drinks from is an old tin can.
Jack, he is another poor fish,
For all he drinks from is Bill's soap dish.

Bill, you know, is an awful live wire
When he goes to light the fire.
The coal oil he uses, it takes the cake,
Which often makes Jack have an awful of heart-ache.

Then Jack's face for water has pined
So long,
And will be alright if left alone.
So, you see, kind friends, it's an awful plight.
To be without water, also light;
And if the Council takes a pattern from this pair,
Well, if they don't do something,
We'll raise their hair.

Cooksville L.O.B.A. No. 566 held a very interesting meeting on Friday night in the lodge room. The members of the degree team of "No Surrender" lodge of Toronto came out and put on the initiation also the Scarlet Degree. Sister Kennedy, the Most Worshipful Grand Mistress was a visitor. Refreshments were served at the close. There was also a draw for a table runner held, 172 being the lucky number.

Mr. Martin Crofton's Saturday night social functions are becoming popular. The last one attracted a large number of city folks who enjoyed the evening's dance.

Mrs. Burrows is having a hard wood floor laid in her home and purposes giving dancing lessons. She is a skilled instructress in this line.

The Excelsior Bible Class of the United Church held a very pleasant social evening on Friday last.

Owing to work on the new power transmission lines, the hydro was off for some hours on Sunday last. Early Monday afternoon, a tree at Erindale fell on the wires and the power was again off for an hour to allow the linemen make repairs.

The newly purchased 380 acre Price farm at Erindale by a syndicate headed by W. R. P. Parker, with the prospect of great development, will mean a decided boon to Toronto Township, which property owners will greatly appreciate. This is another feather in Mr. Parker's cap, and the liberal candidate is certainly leading lots of color to a lively campaign. Every day, reports come of new converts from tory ranks who realize that Parker is a man who does things.

Motor Constable Davis has been removed from patrolling the Highway hereabouts and two new men are now on the road between Cooksville and Toronto.

The Ladies Aid of the United Church is holding its annual bazaar, for which function a 'shower' is being held at Mrs. L. Sanderson's home this Thursday.

General sorrow is manifest over the death of William T. McKee on Monday at his home on the Centre Road. Deceased who was about 50 years of age and a resident of many years standing, was an industrious, friendly type of citizen, who will be missed by the whole community. His illness from peritonitis was brief, developing first on Friday last. He is survived by his wife, five children, two brothers and five sisters. The funeral was held on Thursday afternoon to Dixie Cemetery.

Every seat in Cooksville Town Hall was filled on Wednesday night for the Parker meeting. Mr. Parker and two associate speakers from Toronto were given a very attentive hearing as they discussed the liberal platform and record from every angle. Mr. Parker made it plain that he is a moderate protectionist and pointed out that the tariff has been subject to but few changes since it was first framed by Sir John Macdonald in 1878. The audience also had the pleasure of hearing Mrs. Parker speak briefly, while motion pictures of local interest were shown at the close. Mr. A. U. Cote, Manager of the Cooksville Shale Brick Co., acted as chairman of the meeting.

COOKSVILLE

Cooksville L.O.L. will hold a special meeting Friday, Oct. 30th, when they will be visited by Parkhill L.O.L. No. 2489, of Islington. The business of the evening will be initiation of candidates and election of officers. The annual supper will be held on Friday, Nov. 6, in the schoolhouse.

OUR LEADER

THE RT. HON. ARTHUR MEIGHEN

Who will address the Electors of Peel at a Monster Rally at the Capitol Theatre, Brampton, on Tuesday afternoon, October 27th, at 2 o'clock.

Don't fail to hear him!

Personal Appeals

To the Electors of Peel:

Dominion wide prosperity on the farm, in the factory and in the home, is the one and only solution of our War and Railway debts, of the exodus of our boys and girls to the United States, of our ruinous taxation and of our other burdens, from which four years of Mr. King's Government have given you no relief.

The Conservative party offers this country five years of aggressive and economical government, and a stable and fair tariff under which we can all achieve prosperity and stimulate immigration, bring back our people from the United States, expand our revenues and reduce our taxation.

I confidently appeal for your support of our Candidate, and with all good wishes for your prosperity,

I am,

Yours very sincerely,
ARTHUR MEIGHEN.

Electors of Peel:

On Thursday next, October 29th, you will elect your representative in the next parliament. For more than thirty-five years I have taken an active part in every movement looking to the welfare of the people of the County of Peel in the county in which I was born and where my life has been spent. For eight years I was your representative in parliament. I am very grateful for your kindness and support. I am appealing to you for re-election in the present contest. The need of Peel at this time is a tariff which will provide employment, restore prosperity, and bring back thousands of Canadians from the United States, a policy under which taxation will be reduced and progress made possible by producers, manufacturers and wage-earners. The Conservative leader and the Conservative party are pledged to such a policy and will enact it when returned to power. On that policy I respectfully solicit your support.

With gratitude for the way in which you have honored and trusted me in the past,
I am yours for a prosperous Peel.

S. CHARTERS.

Exercise your franchise on Thursday, October 29th.

GENUINE EVIDENCES OF ANOTHER BIG CONSERVATIVE VICTORY IN PEEL

There are genuine evidences in every part of the county of another sweeping Conservative victory in Peel. The work of organization has been carried on quietly and systematically by as enthusiastic a band of loyal followers as ever cheered a candidate to victory. From the Lake Shore Road to the Dufferin County line—north and south, east and west—come assurances of support denied in recent contests. Men and women of the Conservative party are active and determined in support of Samuel Charters. They have in every part of the county the heartiest co-operation of far-seeing men and women who are not interested in the success of an individual or of party—men and women who place country first in their political calculations. The record of the administration of the Hon. Mackenzie King is not one to be commended or continued. It has failed in every particular, and many outstanding Liberals and Progressives are working with Conservatives to bring it to an end. The promises of reduction in debt and taxation, the promises of economy have all been cast to the winds. Many millions have been spent to aid the Liberal party at the expense of the country. The independent taxpayer feels the burden. He will vote against the party responsible for it.

But the question that stands out most prominently is that of trade. The policy of the government has injured every occupation in Peel County. Farmers and artisans, fruit growers and poultrymen, vegetable growers and flower producers, woollen manufacturers, shoe manufacturers, brick makers, have all appealed to the King Government for a better tariff. The government has refused redress of any kind. "The death knell of protection" is the cry that influences Mr. King.

Hence the determination of employers and employees to give support to the party that stands by Canada—the party that will provide work and wages for those who are idle—that will bring back to Canada the thousands that have been forced to go to a foreign land in search of employment—the party, too, that stands by the flag.

Mr. Charters has had encouragement and promises of support from many heretofore prominent in the counsels of the Liberal Party in Peel. Thoughtful Liberals, as well as Conservatives, freely concede his election. Honest men and women who supported the Progressive candidate in the former election are again united with their old Conservative friends, and are among Mr. Charters most active supporters. They do not hesitate to pay tribute to his worth as a citizen to his service to the county in many capacities, and to the justice of his claim to support because he has at all times represented honestly the sentiments of the people who have entrusted him with their support.

The County of Peel profits as much by the policy of protection as any other county. With another two weeks of the unselfish work which has been carried on during the past month, the majority for Mr. Charters and the Conservative cause will be larger than that conceded by the Liberals, greater than that looked for by the most enthusiastic Conservative.

Victory is now assured.

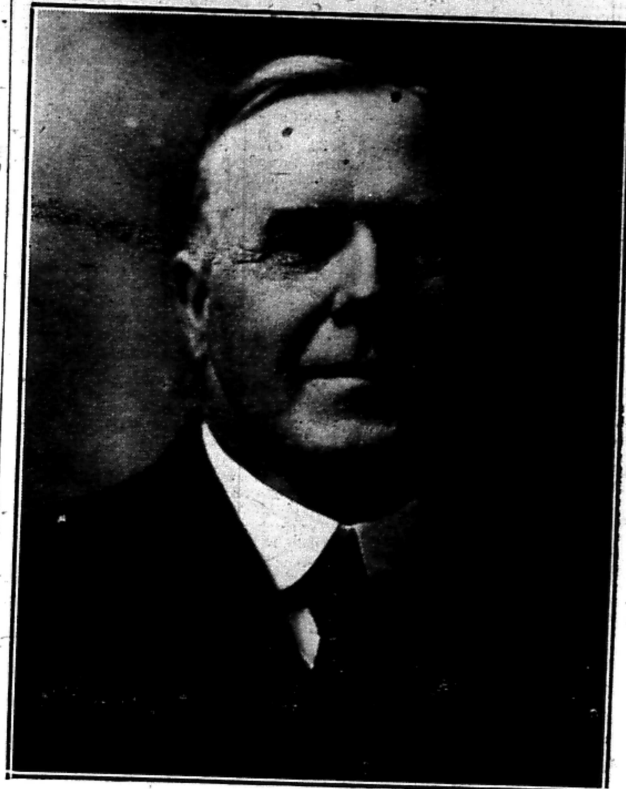

Make it complete by a few more days' effort.

The country needs a policy that will restore confidence, re-establish industry, provide employment, and ensure prosperity.

This is only possible at this time by the return to power of the Conservative party.

Peel needs Protection. Charters is the only candidate supporting that policy. Vote for him.

OUR CANDIDATE

SAMUEL CHARTERS

PARKER AGAINST TARIFF CHANGES PEEL PEOPLE HAVE ASKED FOR

The leaders of both political parties are agreed that the tariff is the issue in the present contest. The Right Hon. Arthur Meighen set forth the views of the Conservative party in a resolution which contains this declaration of policy:

"This Dominion requires an immediate revision of the Canadian tariff on a definitely and consistently protective basis."

The Right Hon. Mackenzie King declared his opposition to that policy in the following words:

"My Right Hon. friend must realize that in accordance with parliamentary practice, the Government will be called upon to resign immediately if his motion should carry, because the House will have pronounced in favor of a policy on which this Government does not look with favor, indeed, a policy to which the Government is opposed."

The issue was then fairly stated by both leaders. But some of the supporters of the King Government did not accept the policy laid down by their leader, and declared themselves in favor of a tariff sufficient to protect the home market. There was some hesitancy on the part of Mr. Parker, the Mackenzie King candidate in Peel, about accepting his leader's policy. But as the campaign progressed he made his decision. Mr. Parker is opposed to the tariff asked for by Peel taxpayers.

The Peel Electors received a letter dated October 5th from the Liberal candidate over his own signature in which Mr. Parker declared:

"I am opposed to a high tariff for the following among other reasons: Shutting out imports would immediately reduce customs revenue to such an extent as to cripple the country's finances."

On October 12th, the Peel Electors received a second letter from Mr. Parker stating more emphatically his agreement with the present tariff. In this letter he says:

"In my judgment the King tariff as it stands today is the best tariff we have ever had in Canada for the people and the whole people."

In so far as the County of Peel is concerned there is no room for doubt. Mr. Charters is supporting the policy of the Conservative leader—a policy in favor of higher protection. Mr. Parker is for the "King tariff."

Farmers, fruit and vegetable growers have asked for a tariff high enough to keep out the millions of dollars worth of American products that are flooding the Toronto and other markets. The woollen manufacturers of Peel, the boot and shoe manufacturers of Peel, the brick makers of Peel, the poultrymen of Peel, the flower growing people of Peel, the Port Credit Starch makers, have made special representation to the government regarding the need for greater protection. They ask for fair play. They ask that importations from foreign countries shall be limited, that the home market shall be restored to Canadian workmen. The government of the Hon. Mackenzie King refused their requests. Mr. Parker, the Liberal candidate in Peel, in letters sent to the electors, as quoted above, declares himself against greater protection for these industries.

Mr. Charters is, and has always been, a supporter of the protective tariff. In parliament and out he has advocated the claims of Canadian producers. He is pledged to support a tariff that will shut out foreign competition and enable Canadians to secure employment and establish homes in their own country.

Mr. Parker says: "Shutting out imports would immediately reduce customs revenue to such an extent as to cripple the country's finances." "The King tariff is the best tariff we have ever had."

Mrs. Burrell
The death of Mrs. W. H. Burrell of Caledon East occurred on Tuesday after a lengthy illness, deceased passing away after a serious operation. Mrs. Burrell, formerly Miss Mary Ann Everett of Beamsville, was a resident of Caledon East for over 27 years. Her husband predeceased her about 12 years ago, and she leaves one daughter, Miss Helen, at home. A brother, William, St. Catharines, and two sisters, Mrs. J. Hammill, Beamsville and Mrs. W. G. Reid, Streetsville, survive. Mrs. Burrell was very actively connected with the Caledon East United Church, and was one of the most interest workers in connection with the Community Memorial Hall.

PORT CREDIT

To W. R. P. Parker, Liberal candidate in Peel, goes the credit for staging the biggest Liberal rally held here for several years. Four hundred people last night flocked to Clarke's Memorial Hall, where the Liberal nominee held forth, and, although the gathering did no more than fill all the seats on the floor, the turnout was taken as a striking tribute to the candidate's popularity.

A crowd that taxed the capacity of Bolton's new hall was present Saturday night at the Liberal rally held in Bolton in the interests of Mr. Parker. Mr. Parker was given a great reception, and every speaker received an excellent hearing. Others who spoke were: Mrs. W. R. P. Parker, A. H. Milner, W. J. Lowe, Warden Leslie Pallett. B. Leavens was Chairman.

ENGAGEMENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. H. Graham, Lauder Avenue, announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Gertrude Alberta May, to Mr. Alexander Thomas of Cooksville, Ont., the marriage to take place early in November.

BRAMPTON

After knocking the accountant unconscious three thugs made a getaway with $500 from the Brampton Motors, Main street, at one o'clock Monday morning.

The accountant, E. A. McDonald, had called at the garage to collect the receipts of Saturday and Sunday to place them in the safe, when he was slugged over the head and knocked to the floor. Although badly dazed McDonald struggled to his feet and fought with his assailants for some time before he was finally knocked unconscious.

Nothing was learned of the crime until workmen opened the garage this morning at 7.30, when they found McDonald and had him rushed to the Brampton Hospital, where he regained consciousness at 11 a.m. and related his story to the police.

The chief of police reports that he had observed the three men during the day and, as they were suspicious looking characters, he warned them to leave town.

McDonald had been employed by the Brampton Motors for 15 months, and is a married man of 32 years of age, and although his condition is serious it is not thought to be critical.

The police, who have a good description of the three thugs, are endeavoring to effect an arrest.

MAKING OUR RAILWAYS PAY

The sure way—the only way—that our perplexing railway problem can ever be solved.

Temporarily our Canadian National Railway system is in a hole. To deny the fact would be rank untruthfulness, to belittle its importance would be sheer folly.

But this huge public ownership enterprise CAN and MUST be pulled out of the hole, and it's up to the men and women voters of Canada to do it!

A Loaf Big Enough for Two

If our foresight had been as good as our hindsight, we would never have built the excessive railway plant we have today. But what is done cannot be undone. There is no use crying over spilt milk. The problem now is to chart for ourselves the course that will most quickly and most surely place the Canadian National Railways on a paying basis.

Thus far the main effort of its management has been to get more business—freight and passenger—for the C.N.R. by taking it away from the C.P.R. By that method, the cost of securing business is greatly increased for both systems, with no real advantage to either. They are merely fighting over the division of a loaf, which isn't large enough to provide sustenance for both.

The only way our railway problem will ever be solved is for the voters of Canada to see to it that our railways are given a bigger loaf to divide—a loaf of freight and passenger traffic that will be large enough for both systems to thrive on.

We Have the Acorn, We Must Grow the Oak

How to increase freight traffic—that is the kernel of our problem! The average Canadian freight train earns $5.00 per mile travelled; the average passenger train earns only $2.00. So it's upon the freight end of the business that we must concentrate.

Of course, some kinds of freight are more profitable than others. There is very little margin of profit in carrying grain, first because the rates applicable to it are lower per ton per mile than the rates on any other commodity, and second because the grain movement is a peakload traffic, calling for an enormous investment in cars that are idle the greater part of the year.

But there is a substantial margin of profit in hauling general merchandise. What can we do to ensure our railways getting more of it?

Higher Tariff the Cure

Increase our population—start a big immigration movement—and the rest will follow as a matter of course! Easier said than done? Not at all! All we have to do to start the tide of immigration flowing through our ports is to hold out to the prospective immigrant the assurance of a steady job at good wages, or the chance to engage profitably in farming or some other form of production or service.

A higher tariff, that will be a real Protective Tariff, will give him a guarantee covering every point. And nothing else under Providence will!

A Lower Tariff is Poison

A Tariff policy that allows the Canadian market to be supplied more and more by outside workers, automatically operates to reduce the freight traffic available for our railways. When for instance, due to insufficient tariff protection, the Libbey-Owens glass factory in Hamilton was forced to surrender the Canadian field to its sister plant in Belgium, Canadian railways lost the hauling of 2,000 carloads of raw material per year!

If Canadian cotton and woollen mills only had the making of the textiles that we import every year, our railways would have the hauling of another 50,000 carloads per year of raw material freight.

Picture to yourself the scores of other things that under a low tariff policy we import, when under a higher tariff policy we would be making them in our own workshops, and you can hardly fail to realize that the sure solution of our railway problem is all ready-made for us, and awaits only our order via the polls to put it into operation. The necessary traffic is there. All we have to do is reach out and get it!

Increasing Imports Mean Bigger Railway Deficits

Every time that low duties take away a portion of the domestic market from a Canadian industry and give it to a foreign industry, our railways suffer in four ways.

1. They lose the hauling of the raw material that such industry would have used.
2. On the finished product, instead of the full local rate, they get only their proportion of the through import rate—a much lower net.
3. When it results in the Western Canadian market being supplied from a U.S. factory, they lose the long East and West haul, and get only the short haul from the international boundary.
4. They lose the hauling of all the merchandise that would have been consumed by the workers who, due to the resultant unemployment, emigrate to the United States.

Lower duties throw people out of work. They just as surely throw railways out of work. We can never save our railways by giving them less work. We must use our brains and our courage to secure them more work—better paid work! Higher tariffs will do it.

It is understood a Scottish syndicate has purchased sixteen acres of land adjoining the best residential section of Vancouver, B.C., and will erect one hundred residences there.

Although only three years old the Oliver district of British Columbia has already become noted for its production of very fine cantaloupes. This year the production is expected to be about 25 to 28 carloads.

The 1,250,000-Bushel Government Terminal grain elevator being built at Prince Rupert, B.C., will be completed by November 1st, when a test shipment of ten carloads of grain will be made through it.

Notification has been received by the Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, that his showing of white Wyandottes at the New York State Fair at Syracuse, had captured the trophy for the best display for the twentieth consecutive year.

By a recent Order-in-Council of the Lieutenant-Governor, premiums for clearing land, which had previously been set at $6 an acre, were increased to $8. The Order also provides that the premium will be paid for a maximum of twenty acres of land and, as a result of it, a settler may obtain a grant of $100 from the Government as a reward for his work.

Considerable progress has been made during the past few years by R. M. Palmer, at Cowichan Bay, B.C., in the cultivation and propagation of new species of gladioli. In his garden, Mr. Palmer has at present growing about 150 different varieties, bulbs having been secured from all parts of the world, even Central Africa contributing its quota to this wonderful collection.

Having completed their tour of Canada as the guests of E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the ten British journalists left Canada early in October for England, to relate there the story of their experiences and to give their readers the impressions they have gained of the Dominion.

During the month of August 1,322 vessels, comprising 131 trans-Atlantic, 85 coasting and 906 inland steamers, entered the port of Montreal, these having a total net registered tonnage of 1,936,945, while in the same period 1,141 vessels went out, these representing 1,932,145 net registered tons. Since the opening of navigation 757 ocean-going vessels, representing 3,468,965 net tons, have entered the port, as compared with only 649, representing 2,280,072 net tons last year; these figures being up to the midnight of September 5th.

F. F. Norcross, a well-known Chicago lawyer, had an amazing experience recently while staying at the Banff Springs Hotel and playing on the golf course there. His approach to the ninth hole was disputed by a huge bull elk which tossed its antlers and stood pawing the ground with evident hostility as the lawyer prepared to play his ball. Mr. Norcross was about to observe the better part of valor when the bull's attention was distracted by the appearance of a cow elk which made an effective substitute for the golfer and both animals disappeared into the neighboring bush.

Travelling in a five-passenger 1926 improved model Ford touring car from Halifax to Vancouver, J. L. S. Scrymgeour and E. Flickinger are performing a feat unique in the annals of motor travel in this country. From Franz, near Sault Ste. Marie, they travelled on the tracks of the Algoma Railroad to Fort William, having been granted the use of the lines by the Canadian Pacific Railway. The whole run of about 4,500 miles took nearly eight weeks, and a series of still and moving pictures were taken en route to commemorate the adventure.

Arrangements have been completed for staging the biggest Indian Pow-wow ever held on the North American Continent at Macleod, Alberta, early in July. Thousands of Indians from the Bloods, Blackfeet, Peigans, Crows, Crees, Stonies, Sioux and representatives from the Six Nations, in the East will take part in the historic and picturesque pageant.

A Canadian Pacific Railway freight train was recently held up near Lemberg, Sask., by a swarm of tent caterpillars which interfered with the functioning of the drive wheels on the greasy rails, where the insects had gathered in millions. All efforts to plow through or remove the swarm were unsuccessful and no progress could be made until half the cars were discharged.

Our High School

The regular meeting of the Literary Society was held on Friday last. The meeting opened by singing "O Canada." After the further business of electing officers which was left over from last meeting, the pupils participated in an old fashioned spelling match, which was enjoyed by both pupils and teachers. The girls were against the boys, and the girls won, naturally. The officers are

Dupre—Plankenhorn

A lovely but quiet wedding took place at St. Paul's R.C. Church, Toronto, Wednesday morning, October 21st, when Mgr. Hand, united in marriage, Mary Irene, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Plankenhorn of Toronto, to Henry Wm., son of Mrs. Dupre of Wagon, Wisconsin. The bride, who was given away by her grandfather, Mr. Victor Giroux, wore a becoming gown of white georgette and valenciennes lace with tulle veil and coronet of orange blossoms and pearls and carried a shower bouquet of sweet-heart roses. The bride was attended by Miss Pansy Holding as maid of honor and her cousin, Miss Helen Giroux, who wore gowns of satin striped voile with black velvet poke bonnets and carried bouquets of Ophelia roses. The groom was supported by Mr. G. V. Plankenhorn, of Streetsville, brother of the bride. Solos were rendered by Mrs. Magann and Mr. James Farley during the ceremony. A delightful wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. D. Giroux. Later Mr. and Mrs. Dupre left for Montreal enroute for Europe, and on their return will reside in Streetsville.

Community Club

The club met at the home Mrs. Harold Beatty, Wed. Oct. 14th, with a good attendance.

After the usual opening exercises the meeting got down to business with its usual vim. The most important business on hand was preparing for the bazaar to be held in the white schoolhouse, No. 10, on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 24th. This is a new venture for the club and the members hope they will be patronized as well as they have been in the past by the public. The object is a worthy one, to help gladden some home with Christmas cheer. Please remember the date, Sat. Oct. 24th. Fancy work, home knit socks and mitts, home baking, candy for sale and refreshments served.

The next meeting will be held at home of Mrs. T. A. Leslie, town line, Wed. Oct. 23. Mrs. Beatty served refreshments at the close of the meeting.

Erindale

The Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. J. Harkess, with a splendid attendance. The subject, 'The value of a good neighbor' was ably given by Misses Draper and Cole. A donation of fruit and jellies was sent to the Sick Children's Hospital. After the close of the meeting a very enjoyable social half hour was spent and a dainty tea served by the members in charge.

The dance held under the auspices of the Women's Institute was greatly enjoyed by all.

The United Church held their Harvest Thanksgiving Services on Sunday last. The Church was beautifully decorated. The Rev. Bellsmith preached in the afternoon and the Rev. Harry Pawson in the evening. Bethesda Choir rendered special music.

Miss Cufflin of New York is visiting Mr. and Mrs. O'Neil prior to returning to England.

Mrs. G. Burke spent a few days in Toronto with friends.

A very successful Conservative meeting was held at the school Tuesday.

The Women's Institute will meet at Mrs. McPhee's on Wed. Nov. 4th.

Erindale

A most enthusiastic meeting in the interest of Mr. Samuel Charters, Conservative Candidate for Peel, was held in the Erindale School on Tuesday evening of this week. The weather was most unfavorable but that did not lessen the attendance—the school was crowded as was the entrance hall and every available space. The meeting was decidedly patriotic and applaud after applaud burst forth when the speakers touched upon our devotion to our beloved Canada. The program was long and varied and interest never lagged. Mr. Thos. Rogers occupied the chair in an able manner and introduced the different speakers.

The first speaker was Mr. L. A. Hamilton of Lorne Park, who is always sure of a hearty welcome from an Erindale audience. Mr. Hamilton in his usual pleasant, practical way told of his farm in Florida; how the fruit grower sells on his own market and then ships his produce to our markets before the Canadian grown fruits and vegetables are ready. We all know this condition only too well, when our strawberries are ready for market the consumers are already "fed up" on those grown in the United States.

Mr. Belford, M.P.P. followed. He certainly was a convincing speaker, a farmer himself from Northumberland Co., he congratulates Peel on her mixed farming and especially upon the man who represents her at Ottawa. Mr. Charters is known in other counties as a man of sterling worth. Space will not permit a full report of Mr. Belford's speech. It was Canadian from start to finish. We want Canada for the Canadians, others after that, but Canadians first. He censured the women for buying United States tomatoes when they had to pay 25c. for one pound. That was all the Canadian grower received for one bushel.

When Mr. Charters was called upon he was received with tremendous enthusiasm and hearty cheers. Is there anyone in the County of Peel who has not heard Mr. Charters speak somewhere or some place during the past 25 years? Mr. Charters is one of Peel's most able speakers and he as usual demonstrated this fact at this meeting. His policy is based on good sound common-sense. Three more highly interesting and entertaining speeches followed, Mrs. Urquhart of Port Credit, Mrs. Fletcher of Clarkson and Mr. J. H. Beamish of Islington. These speakers stressed what had been previously related, Mr. Beamish quoting France as an example of what a high tariff will do in building up a country left desolate by the war, her motto was a job for every Frenchman.

Streetsville added much to the enjoyment of this meeting. Mrs. Church and Mrs. Greig sang in their usual pleasing way Mrs. Arthur Adamson playing their accompaniments. Miss Ruth Greig brought down the house with her numbers. By request she gave The Maple Leaf and the Flag and the audience responded heartily all joining in singing "Britons never shall be slaves."

The concert given in the Oddfellows' Hall last Saturday evening was not very well attended, owing no doubt to there being many other attractions. The program which was put on by the Pemin Concert Company of Toronto, was really good, and deserved a better attendance. The play entitled "Turn Him Out" was well enacted, and all the other numbers in election, character songs and dances were of a high order. The music rendered by the ten-piece orchestra was a great treat to the audience.

Mrs. W. J. Savage of Listowel spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Staley. Mrs. Savage was a large and successful exhibitor at Streetsville Fair winning more than a dozen prizes for fancy work and art.

Among the visitors to our Fair were Messrs. Wallace Cordingley, Harry Barber, J. H. McClintock, of Toronto, J. H. Beamish, of Islington, and John O'Connor, of Vancouver, who hadn't been in the 'Old Town' for 19 years.

Arrangements have been made to give the election returns Thursday night over the radio in Woodruff's Garage, Streetsville. Seats will be provided and all are welcome. No charge. A good place to hear if your candidate has been elected.

Mrs. H. M. Aitken of Beeton gave a very interesting talk on Manual Training at the meeting of the Women's Institute last Thursday. As a result the ladies of the Institute are hoping with the cooperation of the school boards to put on a course in Manual Training for the boys in our town in the near future.

The engagement is announced of Marjorie Beatrice Hutchinson, daughter of Mr. Alfred Hutchinson and the late Mrs. Hutchinson, Ottawa, to Frederick Wilfred Duntun B.A. Sc son of Mr. Peter G. Duntun and the late Mrs. Duntun, Britannia, the wedding to take place quietly in Sherbourne St. United Church, Oct. 28th at 4.30 p.m.

Next Thursday is election day and the contest is at white heat. Both sides are working hard to beat the other fellow and its causing more hard feeling than church union did. We hope the best man will win. The Review has kept neutral in this fight as it always has done, and intends to do. We have reported meetings for both sides, and printed ads. for both Mr. Charters and Mr. Parker, so no one can say we have not been fair. In the last contest the vote was: Charters 4849, Lowe 3702, Taylor 3482. Streetsville vote was 120, 38 and 86 respectively. What will it be on the 29th?

Love Gives Itself

THE STORY OF A BLOOD FEUD

BY ANNIE S. SWAN.

"Love gives itself and is not bought."—Longfellow.

CHAPTER XXXIII.—(Cont'd.)

But there was no trace of anything but pure friendliness in her manner and tone when she entered the library that afternoon to bid him welcome to Stair.

"I have to apologize for this intrusion," he said in his frankest, most winning manner. "I excuse it on two grounds—Miss Rankine has written to tell me you are mistress here, and though it would have been kinder if you had told me yourself at the beginning I believe I am forgiven for my importunity. The second is, I want you to come back. I've got something else. I've brought it with me, and if you will let me stop twenty-four hours at the Ayr Hotel until you've got time to run your eyes over it, I believe you won't send me away empty-handed."

Carlotta slightly shook her head. "You are welcome to Stair, Graham, and if your traps are at the hotel, some of them will fetch them up. I shall be pleased to read the new play, but—but—I don't think I am going back."

Graham Madox looked a trifle disappointed.

"I understand how you must care about this beautiful home," he said, glancing round the room with a slight hesitancy; "but it is not possible nor right that you should give the whole of your life to it when the world needs you so much."

"I must at least wait until my husband comes back," said Carlotta quietly. "I think he is on his way now. After that we can talk it over. But meanwhile do let me send down for your things, and come and talk to Judy. Although she was very angry with you in New York and would not say good-bye to you, she has forgiven you long since."

Madox smiled. He had always liked Judith Rankine and respected her as a type of very high and noble womanhood. Sometimes her Scotch outspokenness had somewhat discomfited his more plausible English nature, which shrinks from calling a spade a spade. Judy had not shrunk from that, and in one rather sharp passage between them in the sitting-room at the Holland House in New York she had reminded him that Carlotta was in her care, and that he had to keep his distance (the very words Judy had used) and confine his attentions strictly to business themes. Carlotta had not heard of this little scene until after Judy's boat had sailed, and then, instead of being amused as Madox had fully expected, she had been deeply moved.

When Madox seemed to hesitate Carlotta went on:

"Papa and mamma will be here not later than Tuesday of next week to stay. We shall love to show you Scotland properly. All you know of it now is a Glasgow hotel in winter! It is different here."

Madox admitted that it was.

"Seeing you in a place like this, my dear," he said with a touch of sadness in his tone, "one might well hesitate to ask you to come back to the world—but there is the future."

He made pause there, for he could hardly put into words what he actually thought—that in all probability the Laird of Stair would never come back any more to the home of his fathers, and that the snows of the Yukon had claimed him.

Carlotta, with her almost uncanny intuition, divined his thoughts.

"I know what is at the back of all that, Graham, but I know that my husband is coming back soon—why, there he is!"

She moved, quite quietly but with radiant face and starry eyes, towards one of the long windows which stood open, and passed out.

Absorbed by their talk, Madox had not heard the sound of distant wheels on the gravel, and when he stepped after Carlotta all he saw was the tall figure of a man, in a grey traveling suit and bare head, take Carlotta in the swift embrace which said all that words could never say.

Graham Madox turned decently away with what bitterness in his soul they would never know.

Making his way in the hall, he found some means of egress which enabled him to leave the house unobserved, and when afterwards they remembered him, and sent down to the hotel to inquire, they found that he had gone—his first and last visit to Stair having lasted exactly five-and-twenty minutes.

Judy, mooning in the sunshine on the terrace steps, amused herself by throwing little pebbles from the path into the round pond where the goldfish disported themselves, watching the eddies rise and spread across the clear surface. She did not hear the wheels, for the very good reason that the whole solid block of the masonry of the house intervened.

Presently she rose with a little sigh and thought she would go in and see how the interview was progressing, when a figure appeared at the far end of the terrace, having come round the gable of the house.

"Oh, Peter!" cried Judy, and ran, her face blanching white in the merciless sunlight, and her eyes pitiful, almost anguished in their depths. "It was no good. You heard nothing? Oh, poor Carlotta, her heart will surely break this time!"

"My dear," said Peter Garvock, "Alan is here. They are—they are somewhere in front. Don't go near them just yet. After what he's been through, this hour wants no shortening or interruption."

"Alan here, Peter?" whispered Judy in a voiceless whisper. "But where—how—when did you find him?"

"It's a very long story and it will keep, Judy. Meanwhile I want to know how you are."

"I? Oh, you can see! I'm a person of no importance. Alan and Carlotta—somewhere in front! And together! Is he—is he well, Peter? Has he changed much? Is there anything to break our hearts about?"

"Nothing. He is well; he is fit; he is handsomer than ever; and he has done what he set out to do, Judy—he has come back a rich man to redeem Stair."

"To redeem Stair!" repeated Judy in a low voice. "But oh, does that matter after all, Peter? When one comes down to the bedrock of things it isn't places that matter—only people! We have set Stair up too high, and we have had to pay the price. Oh, I want to go to them—and yet I daren't."

"Don't go yet," pleaded Peter Garvock with a strange new gentleness and consideration which began to astound Judy, and to push other things into the background of her mind.

Suddenly she looked at him with an odd steadfastness and inquiry, almost as one might look at some object, long familiar, which suddenly presents some new and unfamiliar phase.

"Peter, you are great! There is a lot more behind all this than meets the eye. Tell me this very minute where you found Alan."

"I found him in a shack on the Klondyke River, my dear, in the rear of an old gold-mine. It was what they call in these days the psychological moment, Judy. All I claim to is that I arrived in the nick of time. Alan had got strangely detached from— from all this, and I was able to bring him sharply back. But he has come back with all his might, my dear, you may take it from me. And it is a sure thing that if we had been able to charter one of the new flying machines at Quebec we never should have crossed the Atlantic in the usual way."

"You did that, Peter! You!"

"Yes. It is all I lay claim to do. I talked and talked and better talked until I got Stair into his blood again. The spell of the Yukon is something like the evil spirit of old—it takes exorcising! Now I'm going to my mother, Judy, and you can find Alan. You've no need for me at Stair to-day."

"No need for you at Stair, indeed!" cried Judy indignantly, "when but for you this day would never have dawned for Stair!"

Judy's face was infinitely pathetic, for at the back of her mind was the deep-rooted conviction that she had rendered her last service to Stair, and that the two, now re-united, would henceforth have but little need of her.

Garvock saw these eyes, and with the new intuition of gentleness and consideration for others which had come to him, he fully understood.

But before he could say that which was in his heart Judy went on talking.

"What I want to know is, who is going to recompense you for what you have done, Peter? You needn't shake your head. I know without any of your telling or Alan's that it is you who have done it all. I can see from your face that you haven't spared yourself. Who is going to pay you? That's what I want to know."

Garvock took a step forward until he could look into the kind wells of Judy's speaking eyes.

"What about yourself, Judy?" was all he said.

(The End.)

A Poem You Should Know. Babyland.

The man who wrote "Wynken, Blynken, and Nod" and "Little Boy Blue" conferred a lasting possession on mothers, for these are among the sweetest child-poems in the language. They were written by Eugene Field, himself a man who, like Peter Pan, "Never grew up." The following is another product of his unique genius:

"How many miles to Babyland?"

"Anyone can tell!

Up one flight;

To the right;

Please to ring the bell."

"What can you see in Babyland?"

"Little folks in white—

Downy heads;

Cradle-beds;

Faces pure and bright."

"What do they do in Babyland?"

"Dream and wake and play;

Laugh and cry;

Shout and grow;

Jolly times have they!"

"What do they say in Babyland?"

"Why, the oddest things!

Might as well

Try to tell

What a birdie sings!"

"Who is the Queen of Babyland?"

"Mother, kind and sweet;

And her love,

Born above,

GIRLS' PRACTICAL GYMNASIUM SUIT.

This comfortable gymnasium costume is composed of the regulation middie blouse with long or short sleeves, and all-around plaited or straight gathered bloomers, finishing with a casing at the top and knee for elastic. Many girls will find this an ideal costume for camping, or for long walks into the country where comfort is the main requirement. Pattern No. 1196 is in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 10 years requires 2 1/4 yards of 32-inch, or 1 1/2 yards of 36-inch material for the middie blouse, and 1 1/4 yards for the bloomers. Price 20 cents.

The garments illustrated in our new Fashion Book will keep you "in step with fashion." They are advance styles for the home dressmaker, and the woman or girl who desires to wear garments dependable for taste, simplicity and economy will find her desires fulfilled in our new patterns. Each pattern envelope gives charts showing at a glance how to lay the pattern on material and where the different pieces are joined. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

HOW TO ORDER PATTERNS.

Write your name and address plainly, giving number and size of such patterns as you want. Enclose 20c in stamps or coin (coin preferred; wrap it carefully) for each number, and address your order to Pattern Dept., Wilson Publishing Co., 73 West Adelaide St., Toronto. Patterns sent by return mail.

Royal Dairies.

One of the domestic institutions at Balmoral in which the King and Queen take particular pride is the model home dairy that supplies the Royal table with everything in the way of milk, cream, butter, and cheese.

Run on the most up-to-date lines, the dairy is a miracle of hygiene, and is in the charge of a woman graduate of Aberdeen University.

The King takes a deep interest in all matters connected with agriculture, and the flourishing condition of the Royal farm on the Balmoral estate is largely due to his foresight.

Queen Alexandra also has a miniature dairy at Sandringham, in which at one time she used to spend some of the happiest hours of her life.

Exteriorly designed on the lines of a Swiss cottage, the dairy inside follows exactly the plan of the "Trifolium," the largest dairy in Denmark.

He Forgot Something.

The young plumber had proposed to the girl that evening and had been accepted. Several hours later they parted and he went home.

At three o'clock in the morning a loud ringing of the front-door bell of the girl's abode was heard. Her father, roused from slumber, went to a window and, sticking out his head, inquired who was there.

"It's John," said a voice from below. "I asked Agnes to marry me and she said she would, but I forgot to kiss her."

A NORWEGIAN'S OPINION OF CANADA

Anders Jaarstad, a prominent business man of Stavanger, Norway, the city of sardines, kippers and cheese, has returned home to Norway from an extended business trip to Canada and the United States. In articles contributed to the local press he speaks enthusiastically of the great agricultural opportunities of the Dominion where he hopes thousands of Norwegian Emigrants will find their future homes. Stavanger, Mr. Jaarstad's home city, has played an important part in the history of Norwegian emigration, as it was from its harbor the "Restaurationen" set sail for New York one hundred years ago, in commemoration of which event hundreds of thousands of Norwegians gathered at Minneapolis recently to celebrate the centennial of Norwegian emigration.

Emigration from Norway has, during the last fifty years, averaged about 14,000 annually. Under the new U.S. quota regulations the total emigration to the United States will, as far as Norway is concerned, be restricted to some two thousand, beginning July 1, 1927. "This condition of affairs," Mr. Jaarstad says, "has caused intending emigrants to look to other countries where they may hope to find opportunities equal to those offered in the U.S.A. in previous years."

"Such a country is Canada," says Mr. Jaarstad. "Canada is yet on the threshold of its development. It is a country of great agricultural possibilities and with undeveloped natural resources, which offer rich reward to those who have the will to work."

"Unfortunately, Canada is not as well known in Norway as its great neighbor to the South," says the writer. "During the last few months the press has given publicity to defamatory articles, which our countrymen in Canada brand as deliberate insult to them and the country of their adoption, articles which are misleading and written with the view of frightening intending emigrants."

Advices Countrymen Go to Canada.

For the purpose of setting public opinion right with regard to Canada, Mr. Jaarstad has contributed some excellent articles, containing a wealth of information about the country, its development during the past few years and its possibilities for future emigrants. During a recent business trip to Canada, Mr. Jaarstad had occasion to visit the principal Norwegian communities in Canada, interviewing countrymen who had lived for several years in the country, and the impressions which he received and now relates were very favorable.

Mr. Jaarstad calls attention to the fact that in the five year period preceding the war there was quite a movement of Scandinavian emigrants to Canada. This direct emigration was, however, small in comparison with the emigration of Scandinavians from the States to the Prairie Provinces of Canada. Thousands of Norwegian-Americans, pioneers and their sons, changed their domicile from the States to the Prairie Provinces, where fertile agricultural lands could be had free or at a very low price. The great majority, fully ninety per cent. of these settlers, are farmers, and have prospered beyond their expectations in the Canadian West.

"Canada is not an industrial country," says the writer. "Those who wish for nothing better than to work in shops and factories, had better remain at home. Yet, thousands of artisans and common laborers, who came to Canada a few years ago and found farm employment, are now located on farms of their own, where they are never disturbed by the shrill whistle of the factory. These people do not regret their change of occupation. They consider the soil of Canada the best in the world."

"There is only one country which has been able to produce 40 to 50 bushels of wheat to the acre and No. 1 Hard at that. That country is Canada. The average crop is 18-30 bushels to the acre, a very profitable yield. Of course in a country of such dimensions, both good and inferior land is to be found, but there is such an abundance of excellent land that no settler with eyes to see with, need till inferior soil."

Gives Much Authentic Information.

Mr. Jaarstad devotes considerable space to geographical and statistical information about Canada, its agricultural and commercial progress during the last twenty years. In conclusion he says: "Canada stands on the threshold of its development. Only a fraction of its natural resources are developed. Only the surface has been scratched, as it were. The development of the country has been interfered with by the war and the period of readjustment which followed. From now on the outlook is brightening. Canada maintains an open door policy towards the thousands who wish to emigrate from Northern Europe. To those who are contemplating leaving their native land I have this to say, that for the agricultural classes there is no better country than Canada. Those who wish to engage in agricultural pursuits will there find opportunities that they cannot find elsewhere, and they can start with a comparatively small capital. By perseverance and thrift they may, in a few years, become independent owners of a good 160-acre farm. Canada is a country of opportunities in many branches, and people with some capital can do no better than to go to Canada. There is plenty of room, and for the agricultural classes there is always room, and always a fair chance of success."

Amusing statistics have been issued by two Chicago investigators, who state that after two years old girls cry more frequently than boys, while the five youngest children under watch to use words were all female.

NOW I'M BUILDING A SEPTIC TANK

Or, One of Those Built-in Farm Conveniences.

I went over to Will Jordan's the other day to borrow his wire-stretcher, and found Will out in the orchard digging a hole that he could have used as a grave for a horse.

"What the dickens are you doing down there?" I called. "I look as though you might be putting down a foundation for one of those German siege guns. What's all the sand and cement for?"

"Hello there, Jerry," said Will. "Come on down in the hole and take a shovel. We're going to build a septic tank."

"You're going to build what kind of a tank?" said I.

"A septic tank. A concrete septic tank," said he.

"Going to use it for dipping hogs or sheep?" I asked.

"Neither one," said Will. "Going to use it to hold the sewage and waste water from the bathroom and kitchen at the house."

"That's a new one on me," I admitted. "Go ahead and tell me about it. I'm always looking for new ideas. Maybe I can understand this one if you'll explain it a bit."

"Well, it's just this way," Will said, as he came up the ladder and sat down on a bag of cement. "I've been hearing about these new-fangled septic tanks for some time. One day last week there was a fellow here selling subscriptions to a farm paper, and while he was showing me some of the stories they run in that paper, he came across a story about a septic tank. He told me about the work that the agricultural representative over in the next county was doing along the lines of farm sanitation. They've been holding a lot of septic tank demonstrations over there this year and I guess they've got a lot of folks all stirred up about it. Anyway, they're falling all over themselves to get their septic tanks built."

"This representative went on to say that they'd been having a lot of typhoid fever over there and that they'd traced it to a farm where there'd been a bad case of the fever, and as near as they could find, the disease had been carried all over the township."

"Now that set me to thinking. You know, my wife had a pretty bad case of typhoid fever last year. We always thought that she picked it up over at the fair. Well, you recall how we just about gave her up for lost several days, and then how, just about the time she began to mend a little, Will, Jr., came down with the same thing, and almost died. I began to think about that, so I asked this representative what they had learned over in the next county about the way the fever spread over a township."

"He told me that they traced the first case of the fever and then they went all over that farm and found that the folks had a sewer that drained into an open drain in a pasture. They noticed that there were always a lot of flies and insects hanging around the outlet of that sewer. The crows and blackbirds used to hang around there, too, and wade around in the sewer outlet, and darned if he didn't figure out that the flies and bugs and chickens and other critters that did their loafing around that sewer outlet had carried some of these typhoid germs over to the neighbor's. They were the next ones to have the fever, and it passed along the line until half the farmers over in that section had it."

"I put two and two together and figured that maybe, after my wife came down with it last year, some flies probably brought the germs up to the house and scattered them on a milk pail, or maybe on some of the food on the table and that's how Will, Jr. got it."

"This representative told me that they were going to have another demonstration over near Podunk in two days. That was last Thursday, so I just took a day off and drove over there."

"They had quite a crowd of folks out at this farm where they put in the tank. There was an engineer from the agricultural college, and a doctor. They both gave talks on sanitation and explained a lot about this epidemic that had made the rounds. Their stories were about the same as what that representative had told me."

"The fellow who owned the farm had dug the hole according to the plans in a bulletin. Here it is. They handed one to everybody at the meeting. I'm following the same plans right now. They had some lumber there and a couple of fellows sawed it up and hammered a wooden form together. You see, this wooden form that I've built here goes inside the hole in the ground and you pour the concrete between the form and the wall. When it sets, you've got a tank."

"What's that little offset part of the hole for?" I asked him. The hole was in one place and then at one end it was more shallow. It looked as though Will figured on making two tanks."

"Why, that's the second chamber. The dosing chamber, they call it at the meeting," said Will. "You see, the sewage comes through this tile from the house and runs into this big chamber. It stays there until it is all changed to liquid and this liquid gradually overflows into this second chamber. That fills up to just a certain point, when it is siphoned out through this jigger here. That's the automatic siphon. They make them up at the college and sell them to you at cost. I ordered mine from this fellow from the college last week and he shipped it right down to me. I got it Tuesday. I suppose I could have made it, but I thought they could make it exactly right up there, and it didn't cost any more, so I let them make it."

"Well, what becomes of this water when the siphon dumps it all out?" "I'm going to lay a few hundred feet of common drain tile in several directions from the tank and that water will flow from the tank onto those tiles and filter away into the soil. That's what they call an absorption system," said Will.

"Don't you have to add any chemicals to kill the germs?" I asked.

"No, you don't add a thing. The bacteria within the sewage convert the solids to liquid and this liquid is absorbed by the soil."

"Well, does this tank kill the germs?"

"Now that's something I asked this engineering fellow and he explained it in this way: He said that if disease germs entered the tank, they would not be destroyed at all inside the tank; they'd pass right through. But he said that there are certain bacteria in the upper layers of the soil which would destroy these disease germs as soon as the water gets into the soil. These bacteria are only in the upper layers. That's why you lay the tile pretty shallow."

"How much is this thing going to cost you?" I asked next.

"Oh, I can't say exactly what it will cost. They figure on the cost of the tank they built over there the other day. That one cost less than $50 when they figured in the labor for digging the hole and mixing the concrete. I'm not figuring that in. The stuff alone cost me about $30 all told. You've got a gravel bank over on your farm and it wouldn't cost you as much as it did me, because I had to buy sand and gravel."

"There's just this about it. That peck of sickness and trouble cost me over $150 in doctor bills. I had to pay that trained nurse $45 a week for three weeks all told, and I don't know how much the medicine cost me. Will, Jr., was laid up just when I needed him on the farm, and I had to hire an extra man, and if my sister hadn't come out to do the cooking and housework I don't know what that would have cost me. I figure that I had better spend $30 on this tank and take no more chances. I'll feel a lot safer."

"By golly, I wouldn't wonder but what you're about right," I said. "You let me take that bulletin when you're through with it, or else tell me where I can write to get one like it. I believe I'll look into it myself."

With that I started for home, and darned if I didn't clean forget to ask Will for that wire-stretcher. But I went back the next day for it and Will was pouring his concrete and setting the siphon. I got some good pointers on how to build a tank, and I guess I'll start digging a hole in the morning.—J. D. Z.

Make Your Bees Safe for Winter.

Do you know that your 1926 honey crop is largely dependent on what you do with the bees this fall? If your colonies are too weak in bees or have old failing queens, you cannot possibly secure a profitable crop next summer. If you have good queens and strong colonies to go into winter quarters, you may still lose many colonies this winter and fail to secure a maximum surplus of honey next season, so says Prof. Eric Millen, of the O.A.C.

You can almost entirely avoid the possibility of a poor crop in 1926, if weather is at all favorable, by practicing the following management this fall:

Unite all colonies which, when examined on a cool morning, do not cover more than two frames on both sides. The simplest and best plan to unite is to place one brood chamber directly on another, with a single sheet of newspaper between. Leave this way for one week and then shake all bees into one brood chamber. The two queens will fight and the stronger one invariably survives, so no notice need be taken of the queen when uniting.

Colonies must not be united if American foulbrood is present, otherwise the disease will be spread.

Besides strong colonies and good queens, an abundance of food is necessary for winter and spring brood rearing. It is in this connection that many beekeepers fail to put their colonies away for winter and so avoid heavy loss and secure maximum crop next spring.

Too Tight Stove-Pipe Joints.

If joints fit too tight when putting up sheet-iron stove or heater pipe, and you find a length will not readily slip over another, heat the too-small piece. The heat will expand it sufficiently so that it can then be slipped onto the end of an unheated length. Do not make the mistake of heating both pieces, as this would enlarge both and nothing would be gained. The pipe can be heated by putting in an oven or standing on end on a hot stove. Do not apply a flame directly, as this may warp it or burn and roughen the metal.

FROCKS THAT HAVE MADE THEMSELVES VERY POPULAR

Simple enough for street wear—and charming enough for bridge or dance! Fashion still smiles upon these simple frocks, both of which were fashioned from one pattern. The little frock of flowered material has two side panels trimmed with narrow lace, and then shirred onto the one-piece foundation at the raised waistline. The round neck and short kimono sleeves are finished with the narrow lace, and a ribbon of pastel color ties in long ends at the back. A bordered material was used with charming effect for the plain frock, which opens at the neck with flat revers and has long sleeves gathered into a narrow band. No. 1166 is in Novel bird town in a tree on the Canadian-United States border. It has several compartments, representing an office, garage and a seven storey apartment house, and is strictly "catproof."

BREADS FOR THE SCHOOL LUNCH BOX

BY NELL B. NICHOLS.

I used to depend entirely on different fillings to vary the sandwiches made in my home. That was before I appreciated how many kinds of bread could be manufactured in the kitchen. Now the staff of life on our table may be light or dark in color. Sometimes I add raisins, dates, nuts or figs to the dough to provide a change.

After many experiments, conducted as a pupil in a country school and carried on later when I was a rural school teacher, I have decided that the foundation for the ideal lunch-box meal is the sandwich. This may be accompanied by a hot beverage or soup, fruit and cookies. I have a small vacuum bottle which I use to hold the soup or drink when packing lunches.

Oatmeal, graham, bran, rye, Boston brown and breakfast cereal breads are some of the favorites with my family. Then there is a steamed bread which I make from stale bread crumbs. We think it is delicious. Some of the recipes for these choice loaves are as follows:

WHEAT CEREAL BREAD.

Mix two cups hot-cooked wheat cereal with one-half cup light brown sugar, one teaspoon salt and one and one-fourth cups each of stoned and chopped dates and broken pecan-nut meats. Stir in two tablespoons melted butter. When this mixture is lukewarm, stir in one cake yeast which has been dissolved in one-half cup lukewarm water. Add sufficient flour to make a dough that may be kneaded. Knead as with white bread. Shape in two loaves and let rise again. Bake from forty-five minutes to an hour in a moderate oven.

STEAMED BROWN BREAD.

Use one cup each of rye flour, cornmeal and graham flour. Mix with one teaspoon salt and add three-fourths cup dark molasses, two cups clabbered sour milk and one teaspoon soda dissolved first in one tablespoon hot water. Beat thoroughly. Let stand fifteen or twenty minutes. Stir in one-half pound raisins, pour into greased molds or cans, filling three-fourths full, and steam for three and one-half or four hours. Set in the oven to dry a few minutes when the steaming is completed.

BRAN BREAD.

Mix three cups graham flour with one cup bran. Sift in one and one-half cups whole-wheat flour and one-half teaspoon salt. Dissolve one-fourth teaspoon soda in one tablespoon hot water and add to two cups sour milk or buttermilk. Melt two and one-half tablespoons butter and add to one-half cup molasses. Stir all ingredients together and add one-half cake yeast which has been dissolved in one-fourth cup lukewarm water. Beat the batter. It should be very stiff; if it isn't, add more flour. Place in greased pans, kneading slightly. Let rise. When light, bake in a moderate oven.

FRUIT BREAD.

Scald two cups milk and pour into mixing bowl containing two cups rolled oats, two teaspoons salt and four tablespoons sugar. Stir in two tablespoons shortening. When lukewarm, stir in one cake yeast which has been dissolved in one-fourth cup tepid water. Add sufficient flour to make a dough that may be kneaded. Usually four cups are required, but the amount varies with different flours. Knead until the dough is smooth and elastic. Divide in two loaves, place in greased pans and let rise. When doubled in bulk, bake from forty-five minutes to an hour in a moderate oven. If fruit bread is desired, add one and one-fourth cups chopped raisins, dates or figs with the flour.

NUT BREAD.

Substitute nuts for the raisins or other fruit in the recipe for Fruit Bread. Use one cup nuts.

RAISIN BREAD WITH CORN SYRUP.

Put one-half cup dark corn syrup into a mixing bowl and add one tablespoon melted shortening and one teaspoon salt. Add three-fourths cup boiling water, and stir. When lukewarm, stir in one cake yeast first dissolved in one-fourth cup tepid water. Add two cups graham flour, one cup white flour and three-fourths cup chopped raisins. Let double in bulk. Beat thoroughly. Turn into a greased pan, cover and let rise again. When light, bake in a moderate oven one hour.

BREAD-CRUMB LOAF.

Break up very hard and stale bread in small pieces. To two and one-half quarts of crumbs add one quart of boiling water. Let stand, stirring occasionally, until the bread is soft. Mash until smooth and stir in two cups cornmeal, one-half cup flour and two teaspoons soda dissolved in two tablespoons hot water. Stir in from one-half to three-fourths cup molasses, or enough to make a thick batter. Add one teaspoon salt. Beat thoroughly, pour into greased molds, filling three-fourths full, and steam from four to five and one-half hours.

BEGINNING STORE IN A WATER PAIL

BY EDWARD A. RAND.

"And what have you here, Fred?" Fred held up his mother's yellow water-pail, filled with brown packages.

"Goods for my store, Granny!"

"So you begin store in a water-pail?"

"That is what it amounts to."

Fred had stopped at old Mrs. Ackerman's gate for a little chat. Everybody called her "Granny," but Joe Ackerman, who was lolling over the gate, was really her grandson. He was a smart young man, that felt equal to the ruling of a nation, but his ambition far exceeded his industry; and his place in the nation was very likely to be a mean one.

"Fred!" said Joe, patronizingly, "swing out. Get trusted for a big stock of goods, and go it."

Fred's only answer was a flourish of the water-pail, and then he passed on.

"If it is small," he thought, "my stock is paid for."

He had earned three dollars hilling the parson's potatoes, and then smashing his Colorado bugs.

Fred was seventeen. It occurred to him that he might pick up a few pennies by trading. So he borrowed his mother's small kitchen table, paraded his goods on it, and drove quite a thrifty trade with the small, but ready buyers of candy and molasses gingerbread. He found that his three dollars had brought him four in return.

"Mother, lend me another water-pail!" he asked, the next day.

"What for, Fred?"

"Oh, something!" snapping his bright eyes till they twinkled like fireflies on a July night.

He went to Squire Emery's store and filled his pails with more substantial goods, adding a few articles for the toilet from the squire's showcase.

He did not forget that some of his buyers had a perverse appetite for sweet things, and he made a modest inroad upon the squire's stock of red peppermints and white sugar hearts.

"Mother, lend me that shelf in the old pantry which you don't use?"

"A shelf! What next, Fred? Yes, give me my pails and take the shelf."

Fred nailed it up outside the kitchen window, arranged his goods there, and when farm work was over, would trade with his neighbors in the evening.

So he went on. One shelf increased to three shelves, and the "store" was transferred to the inside and kept open all day, his mother managing while he was at work in the cornfield.

Fred's money grew as a snowball rolled over and over in the drifts after a January thaw.

Squire Emery leaned over his counter one day, set back his old felt hat on his head, and gave Fred a friendly look through his specs.

"Fred, I have heard about your store, and how it started in a water-pail. Let me encourage you. I will let you have a thousand dollars' worth of goods and set you up. You can pay me by-and-by."

"Thank you, squire, but I guess not. Too risky!"

"All right—all right, Fred. Glad to see your spirit. What will you have, ma'am?"

And the squire stood up to wait on an old woman, just arrived.

"Look here, squire!" said Fred, the next day, "you made a kind offer yesterday, and I will tell you what I would like. I will go round and get orders, buy my goods of you as I need them, and you can favor me all you can."

"Agreed!" said the squire.

Each day, then, Fred made two trips to various houses. The first time, he went with an order book. The second time, he went with a wheelbarrow of goods.

So the snowball kept turning over and over, growing every day. At last, there was a new store in town, small and unpretending, but its goods were all paid for. Over the door, was the sign of a water-pail.

"That Fred Barker," said Mrs. Ackerman, "is bound to make money."

"Yes," said Squire Emery, "for he goes sure, and he is willing to be small that he may become big."

Another store was opened about that time. You would have thought that the circus had come to town. Yellow circulars went flying into every house as if a swarm of butterflies were out on a raid. All day, a fancy wagon went flashing about town. It was as gay with bold and red as the latest new China tea store.

"What's that rattlin' 'round so smart and lively?" said Squire Emery.

"Grocery!" he read on the side of the wagon. "Pooh! that nippy, Joe Ackerman, is settin' up in business. I'll give him three months to set down again. He borrowed a thousand, I hear, and has started. Far better if he had borrowed Fred Barker's water-pail."

It would have been much better. In three months there was a failure. The wagon was sold to a fish peddler. He put out the red and gold lights and painted it a sea-green.

The goods in the store were auctioned off to satisfy creditors.

Everything was sold excepting a damaged water-pail. It was Joe's only possession. It is better to start than to end in a water-pail.

PEEL COUNTY JUNIORS HAVE BIG DAY

With a record of the best work done since the competitions were inaugurated, the junior farmers and the junior institutes of Peel put in a very successful day Friday, the girls judging in eight classes in the Oddfellows' Hall, Brampton, and the boys ranging the district judging stock belonging to leading stock farmers.

The day closed with a banquet in the Oddfellows' Hall at which Oliver Raine, president of the Peel Junior Farmers, was chairman.

Miss Lillian Rutherford, Bolton, wins the $60 trip to Chicago International Show and Miss Pearl Church, Streetsville, the $45 trip. Miss Ila Strangways, Brampton, was awarded the A. J. H. Eckhardt silver tea service.

The C. S. McDonald silver trophy for the institute sending the three girls with the highest standing was won by Brampton Institute, of which Miss Doris Defreest is president.

H. Parkinson, Malton, won the $50 trip to Chicago, and A. McKinney, Brampton, the $45 trip, while R. J. Rutherford received the woollen rug donated by the Co-operative Wool Growers' Association for third place.

For winning the highest number of points and not having been a member of any team representing Peel County at an Inter-County Competition, Melvin Shaw, won the J. A. Carroll silver trophy.

Jack Fraser won the silver cup for the highest standing.

John Pawley, Eddie Simpson and Emerson Boucher won the silver medals awarded to the best judging team, and Harry Laidlaw won the silver trophy for best coach.

Assisting the district representative, J. E. Whitelock, were W. G. Marritt, Wentworth; D. E. Smith, Brampton; J. E. Brown, Waterdown; J. R. Rogers, York. Assisting Miss McIntosh, home demonstrator, were Miss Ethel Chapman, Toronto; Miss Esther Slicker, Kitchener; Miss Edith Elliott, Weston; Miss Iva Langton, Waterdown; Miss Margaret Reid, McDonald Institute, Guelph.

Guests of honor at the banquet were Mrs. W. E. Harris, Cooksville, county president of the Women's Institute; Mrs. E. G. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. A. Hewson, W. J. Lowe, Mrs. W. R. P. Parker.

IN HONOR OF A GREAT EVENT

Birthdays are always important occasions, especially if one is very young or very old. Before long The Youth's Companion will be a hundred years old, and the event is going to be made a memorable one for The Companion's many friends. So, although the date is not until April 16, 1927, preparations will begin with 1926.

In honor of its birthday The Companion will come to you next year at the new low price of $2. Here and There

Sport conditions are very good in New Brunswick this year. Harold Chadwick operating hunting camps in the province reports that at the end of September catches of speckled trout weighing 18½ lbs. were taken one day while a hunter took out a big game licence September 23rd and three days later had his deer and bear.

The world's most northerly police post, also the most remote of any human habitation, is to be constructed next year for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at the far end of Ellesmere Island. Building materials and two years' supplies will be cached within easy freighting distance of the point where men will be detailed for patrol duty on the lonely shores of Riel straits.

Appointments recently made through the office of the Comptroller Canadian Pacific Railway headquarters are W. J. Cherry who becomes Freight Claims Auditor in place of J. R. Steele retired under pension rules, and W. L. Moran appointed Assistant Freight Claims Auditor. Both these gentlemen have been connected with the Freight Claims department for many years past.

Because the prospects for hunting and fishing in northern regions of Quebec are more attractive this autumn than they have been for several seasons, the number of residents of the United States applying to the Quebec association for the protection of fish and game for guides and licences is much greater than it has been for some time, according to the secretary of the association.

A very pleasing incident occurred during the visit to Montreal of Madame Maria Jeritza, world-famous operatic star. Col. George H. Ham, "Grand Young Man" of the Canadian Pacific Railway who had met the singer before, sent his felicitations in the form of a bouquet, and Madame Jeritza replied with a bouquet of roses made of sugar with the hope that his days also would be sugar-coated. She gave a one-night recital in Montreal, leaving for Toronto the following day.

Isaac Gouverneur Ogden, vice-president in charge of finance, Canadian Pacific Railway, attained his 81st birthday October 10. Mr. Ogden is as active as ever although he has spent 54 years in railway work. He joined the C.P.R. as auditor of the western division with headquarters at Winnipeg in 1881 and has been vice-president of the system since 1901. Mr. Ogden was the recipient of flowers and congratulations from his colleagues on the occasion of his birthday.

Carelessness and lack of forethought on the part of some unknown motorist at Belleville might have led to serious accidents if it had not been soon discovered that the wig-wag signal protecting the C.P.R. level crossing on the Kingston Road was out of order. Investigation showed that an automobile had driven out of its course and broken the relay case thereby cutting the electrical contact. A watchman was immediately placed at the signal until necessary repairs had been made.

The Montreal Windsor street station police team are the champions of the Quebec district in the First Aid contests held at the Place Viger hotel in that city under the auspices of the Canadian Pacific Railway. They won the contest against teams from Ottawa and Quebec and are now holders of the Gutelius Challenge Cup, emblematic of the C.P.R. First Aid championship of the province. The championship of the New Brunswick district was won by the McAdam team who competed against Saint John and Woodstock.

Between 300,000 and 400,000 Canadians and Americans of Norwegian origin will gather at Minneapolis and St. Paul in June next to celebrate by a great national gathering the hundredth anniversary of the landing of the first organized party of Norwegian settlers on this continent. President Coolidge, Haakon of Norway and Lord Byng, Governor-General of Canada, have been invited to attend a Meeting of some forty Norwegian organizations, divine service by the Bishop of Oslo (formerly Christiania), field sports, musical contests and historic pageants will make up the programme.

The Unfair Deal Canadian Farmers are Getting

Back in 1921 we sold the United States agricultural products to the value of $146,539,883. After the Fordney U.S. Tariff of 1922 went into effect in the United States we sold them only $51,337,733 worth.

By raising their tariffs the United States farmers have put about $100,000,000 per annum more into their pockets and the Canadian farmers have lost it.

What is the lesson to the Canadian farmer?

On what terms is the Canadian farmer competing with the farmer of the United States? They are terms that not only forbid the sale of his products in the United States but compel him at the same time to witness United States farm products replacing his own in the home markets of Canada. Let us examine some of these terms.

PRODUCTS	For Entrance into Canada the Americans pay:	For Entrance into the United States the Canadians pay:
Potatoes.....	35 cts. per 100 lbs.	50 cts. per 100 lbs.
Eggs.....	3 cts. per doz.	8 cts. per doz.
Butter.....	4 cts. per lb.	8 cts. per lb.
Cheese.....	3 cts. per lb.	5 cts. per lb.
Cattle.....	25%	40%
Hay.....	$2.00 per ton	$4.00 per ton
Wheat Flour.....	50 cts. per barrel	$2.04 per barrel
Wheat.....	12 cts. per bushel	42 cts. per bushel
Corn.....	Free	15 cts. per bushel
Certain Fruits.....	25%	35%

The United States raised their tariff, in order to protect the American Farmers, and the purchasing of foreign farm products was reduced. It was, therefore, to the American Farmer's benefit.

And we prove it. In the next column we list a few Canadian products imported by the United States under the 1921 tariff and under the raised tariff of September 21st, 1922. These figures are quoted from the "Commercial Intelligence Journal" published by Ottawa Government (26th September, 1925, page 324).

Canadian Farm Exports to the United States, 11 months ending August 1921 and 11 months ending August 1925

Articles	U.S. Tariff	Quantity or Value 1921	U.S. Tariff	Quantity or Value 1925
Horned cattle.....	Free	$14,970,944	1½ to 2c. per lb. plus $2 per head	$2,897,753
Poultry.....	1c. per lb.	769,060	3c. per lb.	611,529
Sheep.....	Free	1,184,950	$2 per head	219,878
Oats (bushel).....	6c. per bus.	2,822,129	15c. per 32 lbs.	389,280
Wheat (bushel).....	Free	47,735,082	42c. per 60 lbs.	3,408,152
Fresh Beef—chilled or frozen (quintals).....	Free	237,782	3c. per lb.	63,408
Potatoes (bushel).....	Free	2,581,037	50c. per qtl.	566,115
Eggs (doz.).....	Free	264,676	8c. per doz.	52,887

And now a great reduction has been made by the Canadian-Australian Treaty which just went into effect on October 1st, 1925. Under this treaty Australian (and New Zealand) farm products will enter Canada at the following tariffs.

PRODUCTS	For Entrance into Canada the Australians pay:	For Entrance into Australia the Canadians pay:
Eggs, per doz.....	Free	18 cts.
Cheese.....	Free	6 cts. per lb.
Butter.....	1 ct. per lb.	6 cts. per lb.
Honey.....	1 ct. per lb.	4 cts. per lb.
Bees Wax.....	Free	3 cts. per lb.
Fresh Meats.....	½ ct.	5 cts. per lb.
Canned Meats.....	15%	40%
Canned Poultry.....	15%	40%
Lard.....	Free	4 cts. per lb.
Tallow.....	10%	1 ct. per lb.
Canned Vegetables.....	Free	30 cts. to $2.10 per doz. cans of ¼ to 4 pints
Apples and other Dried Fruits.....	10%	8 cts. per lb.
Quinces, Pears & Apricots.....	25 cts. per 100 lbs.	$1.50 per 100 lbs.
Canned Fruits.....	½ ct. per lb.	30 cts. to $2.10 per doz. cans, according to size

Canada will be flooded with farm products from other countries at these low rates, but Canadian farm products are shut out of other countries by high tariffs. Meanwhile half a million Canadians have moved to the United States because of the tariff reductions that have closed up or slowed down hundreds of factories. That is, half a million buyers of Canadian farm products have been lost. The farmers are hit twice.

DISTRICT NOTES

Brampton High School defeated
Scarboro in a rugby game at Brampton by a score of 12-2.

Wesley Cardinel, of Milton, took two crops of potatoes off the same piece of ground this year.

The Presbyterian Churches at Boston, Hornby and Omagh have united, and their minister will reside at Hornby.

Mrs. James Hillis, a native of Huttonville, died at Grand Valley in her 93rd year. She was formerly Janet McClure.

Robert McClelland, of Bolton, was fined $50 and costs of $10 in police court on a charge of having liquor in an unlawful place, to which he pleaded guilty.

Dr. Peter Stuart, formerly of Milton, left five thousand dollars and all his surgical instruments to the Guelph Hospital.

Charles Norris, Jr., a young farmer of the Nelson-Trafalgar town line, near Milton, passed away suddenly on Oct. 18th. He leaves a widow and four children.

Lou Jacobs, of Nelson Township, regarded as the champion apple picker of Halton, and perhaps of Ontario, picked forty-four barrels of apples in nine hours on Saturday.

Mrs. George Cunningham, of Palermo, was removed to the Hamilton
General Hospital on Monday, suffering from injuries to her back, as she result of being pinned between an automobile driven by C. Smith and the rear of a truck driven by Mike Onoreta, Palermo.

Tindale Rutherford, of Bolton, one of the foremost junior farmers of Peel, won the $50 cup presented by John G. Kent, president of the C.N.
E., for best amateur sod plowing, and came second in the open class in stubble. He was within a few points of winning the Delco Cup, valued at $150, for the championship ridge.

A get-together rally of all Odd Fellows from New Toronto to Port Credit was held in Memorial Hall, Long Branch, and about 150 Odd Fellows turned out. The evening was taken up by games, dancing and selections by various local artists under the direction of Brothers Galloway, C. Linden and W. A. White.

Robert Livingstone, of Clairville, who on October 13 drove into some cattle being taken home from a sale, was charged in police court with being intoxicated while in charge of a car. He was sentenced to 30 days on suspended sentence, will pay the costs of $17.50, and will not be allowed to drive his car for 30 days.

Halton County Council considered a suggestion of the Ontario Motor League, requesting that a by-law be passed, requiring all vehicles to carry lights at night. The members all approved of the passing of such a by-law, and laid the matter over for information as to the council's powers and its jurisdiction over roads not included in the county system.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ostrander, Huttonville, narrowly escaped destruction by fire when a spark from a kitchen pipe set fire to the roof. Giving the alarm by phone, a neighbor summoned the mill hand and neighbors, who assisted in fighting the fire, which was extinguished after a hard fight. Water had to be brought by truck to the workers.
Damage to the amount of $200 was done to the building and contents.

MARRIED

Kingshott—Brown
A very pretty autumn wedding took place yesterday at the home of the bride's father, Mr. A. W. Brown, when Miss Barbara Brown was married to Arthur J. Kingshott by Rev.
A. P. McDonald. Mr. and Mrs. King-shott will reside in Brampton.

Bostock—Emack
Dr. James Wilson, pastor of the Brampton Presbyterian Church, solemnized this week the marriage of Florence Maggie Bostock, of Cumberland, Eng., and George Rayburn Emack, of Caledon, son of the late John Emack, of Orangeville.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John S. Bake
Mrs. John S. Bake, a resident of Brampton for over 50 years, but living in Toronto for the past seven years, passed away at her late home in Toronto yesterday, aged 78 years.
Mrs. Bake was born in Port Credit.
Her husband predeceased her 35 years ago. In religion Mrs. Bake was an Anglican. Three daughters, Mrs.
Richard Smith, Misses Rena and Etta, all of Toronto, and one sister, Mrs.
John Greig, Toronto, survive. Mrs.
Bake was, previous to her marriage,
Miss Martha Crawford.

George Campbell
The funeral of the late George Campbell, of Toronto, was held here to-day to Brampton Cemetery, and was under the auspices of the Ionic Lodge, A.F. & A.M. Mr. Campbell had been a resident of Toronto for the past 15 years, but previously had lived in this town for many years and had been employed with the Williams Shoe Co. In Toronto he was employed in Premier Ferguson's office in the Parliament Buildings. He was in his fifty-third year. In religion he was a Presbyterian. Mr.
Campbell was born in Richmond Hill.
His widow, three sons and one daughter survive; also one half-brother, W.
E. Hunter, of this town. Many beautiful floral wreaths were received, including one from the Premier personally and three from Masonic lodges in Toronto, of which he was a member.

CRAWFORD—At his late residence,
39 Thornhill Ave., Toronto, on Thursday, October 22, 1925, William Crawford, beloved husband of Isabella Eakins, aged 77 years.

HALTON COUNTY

A fatal accident occurred on the C.P.R. tracks, three miles west of Milton, Saturday evening, in which two Italians lost their lives. Pascuale Gar-dini, aged 29 years, who has a wife and family, and his brother, Gindo Gardini, aged 26 years, were the victims. They were returning from visiting a brother at Guelph, and, after leaving the train, started to walk east on the railway track to their home. They were apparently walking on the westbound track, but had not gone far before they met a westbound freight, and in getting out of its way stepped directly in front of an eastbound freight. Both men were instantly killed.

Pascuale Gardini was carrying his little three-year-old son in his arms, and seeing the engine almost upon him, and no chance of escaping death, threw his little son down the embankment, saving the child's life. The child sustained slight injuries about the face and head.

COOKSVILLE

man, organist.

BRAMPTON

The Peel County Plowmen's Association plowing match, held on the farm of J. C. Silverthorne, Chinguacousy, was a complete success. Over 1,000 spectators were present, and, according to James McLean, Richmond Hill, it was the best opening match of an association that he had ever seen. Class five, open to Peel County for plowmen who have not taken a prize in any match, was the best class on the program, with seven entries.

The winners were: Open, in sod,
W. Timbers, Stouffville; W. Clark,
Stouffville. Special for best crown and special for best finish, open to Peel County, sod, D. Morrison,
Brampton; Wilfred Ellis, Brampton;
C. Storrey, Caledon. Best crown, W.
Ellis. Best finish, C. Storrey.

The Winners

ford. Best team and equipment on the grounds, Andrew Lowe. B. H.
Bull & Sons Challenge Trophy, best ridge in class, T. Rutherford. W. R.
Parker Challenge Trophy, best ridge in match by Peel County plow-men, D. Craig.

Following the match supper was served by the Ladies' Aid of Mount Pleasant Church, at which the prizes were given out by the president, John Speers. The judges were James Mc-Lean, Richmond Hill; James Cameron, Weston; Ed. Smiley, Norval; Wm.
Hostrawser, Malton; D. H. McCaughey, Streetsville; J. Mothersill,
Brampton.

The funeral took place Saturday afternoon to Brampton Cemetery of the late William Crawford, son of the late Robert Crawford and Margaret McConnell. He was born 77 years ago on the third line east, near Nortonville, his parents being among the first settlers of East Chingacousy.
He farmed for over 30 years on lot 5, 4th line east, retiring to Toronto about 25 years ago. He had been ill for about three years, succumbing finally to an injury to his foot when he fell from his couch a short time ago.

Deceased was a Methodist, a member for many years of Salem Church, and was a Conservative in politics.
He is survived by his widow, formerly Miss Isabella Aikens, daughter of a former clerk of Toronto township, and one son, Floyd, Toronto. He also leaves five brothers, Robert, Dr.
Eli M., Jhn, Brampton; Joseph and
J. C. Chingacousy, and five sisters, Mrs. E. Norval, Mrs. J. H. Mc-Clelland, Mrs. James Johnson, Mrs.
I. Kee, Brampton, and Mrs. D. Simpson, Toronto. The services were conducted by Rev. C. A. Simpson, a former pastor, and the bearers were the brothers and brother-in-law of deceased.

WILD DASH TO BEAT TRAIN

Residents of Cooksville and Toronto motorists who were on the Dundas Highway near that village at 4.30 Saturday afternoon have a clear idea this morning how level crossing accidents occur, and also have a vivid impression of the "hair-brained" type of youth who usually figures promi-nently in such accidents.

With the pavement in a greasy condition from the heavy rain, a string of cars approached with care the level crossing east of Cooksville.
When the first car reached the track the "wig-wag" warning signal commenced to operate and the bell to ring. The first car was immediately stopped, while cars from the east did likewise, with the result that some thirty or forty cars were lined up on each side of the track waiting for the train to pass.

In spite of the signals, one or two drivers "took a chance" and crossed in front of the train that could be seen down the track about 110 yards off. Then, when the freight, having two engines, was within 60 feet of the crossing, motorists were amazed to see a youth and a girl in a light coupe make a wild dash across the track. They made it about 15 feet ahead of the engine.

Passing the standing motorists in a burst of speed, with a grin on his face, the youth stepped on the gas and disappeared up the highway.

TEACHER

BY EDITH BARNARD DELANO.

In the little district school that weathered the winter storms beyond the crest of the hill, she had always stood head of her class. The teacher said she was bright; other people said she was smart. Her facility with her studies gave her distinction in school, and the folks at home were proud of her.

She was the youngest of the family, but she passed her next older sister by two grades and was in the same class with her brother, who was smart too. She adored Henry, and it was he who said at supper, before the whole family, the day they graduated from the district school:

"I'm going to work. But Addie's got to be a teacher. She's got to go to high school, pa, and be a teacher."

For in the opinion of such people at that time, teaching was not work, but a calling, ranking only below the minister's in dignity. So to Addie that pronouncement of Henry's seemed as momentous, as magnificent as the announcement in the dawn of a British Prime Minister to the young Victoria. A kingdom was being offered her.

All the family stopped eating and looked at her. Then after a moment her father said, "Why, yes. I guess maybe that's so."

She worked for her board during the four years of high school, but at their end she was given a little school some twenty miles down the valley.

"My brother Henry says I'm real good at training all sorts of critters," she told him. "There's nothing I like any better than training a colt. And all our hens follow me around, all over the place. I'm real fond of young things."

Young things. John Moore looked sideways down at her. She was so young herself, and so pretty. He could see her with the colts and the hens, and children. He was only a few years older than she was, and already she was becoming desirable in his eyes.

He was working and saving toward a farm of his own; some day . . . But not yet. He felt himself unworthy of her; but before the second year was over his sense of unworthiness was borne down by a stronger feeling. Before she went home for the second summer they were openly "going together."

In that time and place, that fixed them in a definite relationship. That summer her sister, Ellen, was married. Almira had married while Addie was in high school, and lived with her husband's family in the nearest town. Two children had come, and Almira had settled into a state of disheartened, querulous ill health.

The preparations for Ellen's wedding meant more to Addie than Almira's had. For one thing, she helped Ellen sew; and while she sewed her thoughts would themselves into dreams.

Before the next summer came John Moore told her that he had almost enough to buy his farm. He had settled on the one he wanted; there were many for sale in those days. He took her one day to see the house. It needed a bit of new roof, and paint and much furniture at first. If his first year's crops were good, they could be married the following year. She was calmly happy; but in April got the letter calling her home. Her mother had had a stroke, and there was no other woman in the family to take care of her.

Mrs. Hurd never recovered her power of speech, never again could do more than make her wants known by sounds of which Addie alone knew the meaning.

After a year or so, she could be dressed and set in a chair by the stove or the window. Addie had never a moment of impatience. As the toll-some months wore on, her mother came to seem like a baby to her. Sometimes she would kiss her mother's hair after she had brushed and knotted it. Sometimes she would put her cheek against that nerveless one. Sometimes she would say, when her mother whimpered, "There now, my baby, you be good and let Addie get on with her work."

She and John Moore wrote to each other, and sometimes he came to see her. He was working hard, and at last, on a Sunday, when Addie had cleared away the midday dinner, he asked her to go for a drive with him. Her mother, from her place by the window, made strange inarticulate sounds.

"She don't want me to go," Addie interpreted. "We'll just sit on the porch steps, John."

He told her about the house. He had it ready. His planting was done, and in the pause before haying time he wanted to be married. Addie turned very white.

"You see how ma is, John. There's nobody else but me to take care of her. She's so pitiful, too, having to sit there like that. It must be so awful for her."

At last she was a teacher, conscious of the aura of consecration that surrounded her profession in the eyes of her old neighbors and the new ones near her school. Before the first half year was over she was conscious of something else far more invigorating. She had a gift for teaching. She could make things plain to her pupils, by her gentle persistence urge even the most reluctant of them along the path of study. And notwithstanding her gentleness, or perhaps because of her patience—that was never ruffled or hurried, even the big boys became submissive to her discipline. It may have been that her mere personality kept them in order.

"Even the toughest of those big boys mind you, don't they?" asked John Moore, one day.

He had come in a buggy to drive her home over the muddy roads of April, for she boarded with his sister a mile or more from the school. He had sat in his buggy and silently observed the small final scene of the school day. Some of the older boys were making a mud slide from the schoolhouse steps to the road. Addie, from the doorway, said quietly:

"Maybe you'd better go home, boys." Of course they appeared not to hear, and covered their departure with sundry cuffs and scramblings. Addie picked her way around the slide to the buggy. She laughed a little at John Moore's remark.

"My brother Henry says I'm real good at training all sorts of critters," she told him. "There's nothing I like any better than training a colt. And all our hens follow me around, all over the place. I'm real fond of young things."

Young things. John Moore looked sideways down at her. She was so young herself, and so pretty. He could see her with the colts and the hens, and children. He was only a few years older than she was, and already she was becoming desirable in his eyes.

He was working and saving toward a farm of his own; some day . . . But not yet. He felt himself unworthy of her; but before the second year was over his sense of unworthiness was borne down by a stronger feeling. Before she went home for the second summer they were openly "going together."

In that time and place, that fixed them in a definite relationship. That summer her sister, Ellen, was married. Almira had married while Addie was in high school, and lived with her husband's family in the nearest town. Two children had come, and Almira had settled into a state of disheartened, querulous ill health.

The preparations for Ellen's wedding meant more to Addie than Almira's had. For one thing, she helped Ellen sew; and while she sewed her thoughts would themselves into dreams.

Before the next summer came John Moore told her that he had almost enough to buy his farm. He had settled on the one he wanted; there were many for sale in those days. He took her one day to see the house. It needed a bit of new roof, and paint and much furniture at first. If his first year's crops were good, they could be married the following year. She was calmly happy; but in April got the letter calling her home. Her mother had had a stroke, and there was no other woman in the family to take care of her.

Mrs. Hurd never recovered her power of speech, never again could do more than make her wants known by sounds of which Addie alone knew the meaning.

After a year or so, she could be dressed and set in a chair by the stove or the window. Addie had never a moment of impatience. As the toll-some months wore on, her mother came to seem like a baby to her. Sometimes she would kiss her mother's hair after she had brushed and knotted it. Sometimes she would put her cheek against that nerveless one. Sometimes she would say, when her mother whimpered, "There now, my baby, you be good and let Addie get on with her work."

She and John Moore wrote to each other, and sometimes he came to see her. He was working hard, and at last, on a Sunday, when Addie had cleared away the midday dinner, he asked her to go for a drive with him. Her mother, from her place by the window, made strange inarticulate sounds.

"She don't want me to go," Addie interpreted. "We'll just sit on the porch steps, John."

He told her about the house. He had it ready. His planting was done, and in the pause before haying time he wanted to be married. Addie turned very white.

"You see how ma is, John. There's nobody else but me to take care of her. She's so pitiful, too, having to sit there like that. It must be so awful for her."

"It's awful for me, without you," said John. Addie trembled toward him. "I know. Oh, I know. But she's just like a child, John. How could I leave her?"

John laid his hand over hers. "We would have children, too," he said, and Addie began to cry.

"It's awful for me, without you," said John. Addie trembled toward him. "I know. Oh, I know. But she's just like a child, John. How could I leave her?"

John laid his hand over hers. "We would have children, too," he said, and Addie began to cry.

John came again and again. The last time he said, "You don't love me enough, that's why." They were standing beside his buggy in the late twilight. She covered her face with her hands, then ran away into the house.

Their letters ceased after that. The following spring, when Almira came guess maybe you heard about John Moore's getting married. Folks thought he was going to pick you, one time."

Her mother lived on for nine years before she died; their father became ill with cancer and Henry had come home to carry on the farm. Looking back, it seemed that her mother's illness was easier to bear than her father's; he never lost the use of his tongue.

When things got to going well, Henry married. He was forty by the time, Addie a few years younger. He married a nice girl. It was right that a man should marry.

"I'm going to get me a school again," Addie told them one day a month or so after the wedding.

"Sho!" said Henry. "Why, you'll always have your home here with us." It was not that Addie doubted her welcome, not that she wanted to leave them. Only, to be a teacher again.

So she did what she could to find a way, but there were young girls' things—and finding it.

In the end she went to work for old Mrs. Stoddard in town. It was a big house, with lots of fine things in it. Mrs. Stoddard liked her carpets swept and the rugs taken out and beaten. Addie grew thinner. After some years Mrs. Stoddard died, and left all her money to the missionary society, except twenty-five dollars to Addie.

Just at that time Henry's four children came down with scarlet fever, so Addie went back to the farm.

As it happened, it never did seem the right time for her to leave until Henry's family had increased to seven. After a time the older children were big enough to help, and Addie began to think about finding a school again. She tried every way she knew. Once the school board let her substitute for a week.

Then Almira fell down and broke her hip. Both her daughters were married. So of course they sent for Addie. Almira's husband gave her a nice pocketbook for Christmas.

For a winter she went to keep house for a widow with four children. She saved, she must have something laid by for her old age. She stayed in that place until the widower married again.

She went back to the farm for a good rest, and because she wanted to see them all, especially the baby. All the children loved her. They minded her better than they did their own mother.

She would not have stayed there as long as she did, though, except for the fact that there were measles and whooping cough in the school that year, and one after another of the children came down with them. It took the measles, but Addie herself did seem foolish, too, and made herself ashamed, too, and made herself become rather deaf.

She became increasingly aware that wasn't that they did not want her. But it seemed better to find work somewhere.

She went to keep house for a very old lady who was even dearer than she was. It seemed—well, queer, to be in a house so quiet, without any children.

But she stayed in that place four years, until Henry's wife died. His oldest daughter was married, the next one was teaching school, another was off in the normal school, studying.

Sometimes she helped the baby with his lessons. His name was Frank, and him as the baby. But that was the way she felt about him.

After a time there were only two boys left at home. Then the older one, Addie, and Frank went off to college. He worked his way through and two he brought his bride to see them. Addie loved her at once. Before they

$100.00 IN PRIZES FOR BEST LETTERS

The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. Offer Twenty-Eight Prizes in a Letter Writing Competition.

Some years ago the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont., offered a series of prizes to residents of Ontario and Quebec for the best letters describing benefits obtained through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Hundreds of letters were submitted in this competition, and yet there must have been thousands of other users of the pills who did not avail themselves of the opportunity to win a prize. To all these another letter-writing competition is offered. Thousands have benefited through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills whose cases have not been reported. These will furnish the material for letters to be written in this contest. There is no demand upon the imagination; every letter must deal with facts and facts only.

The Prizes. The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont., will award a prize of $25.00 for the best letter received on or before the 21st day of November, 1925, from the residents of these provinces on the subject: "Why I Recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." A prize of $15.00 will be awarded for the second best letter received; a prize of $10.00 for the third best letter, and twenty-five prizes of $2.00 each for the next best twenty-five letters.

The Conditions. The benefit derived from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills described in the letter may be in the writer's own case, or that of some one in the writer's home.

More than one case may be described in the letter, but every statement must be literally and absolutely true.

Every letter must be signed by the full name and correct address of the person sending it. If it describes the case of some person other than the writer of the letter, it must also be signed by the person whose case is described, as a guarantee of the truth of the statements made.

The writer of each letter must give the name of the paper in which he or she saw this announcement.

Fine writing will not win the prize unless you have a good case to describe. The strength of the recommendation and not the style of the letter will be the basis of the award.

The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. shall have the right to publish any letter entered in the contest, if they desire to do so, whether it wins a prize or not.

The contest will close November 21st, 1925, and the prizes will be awarded as soon as possible thereafter. Do not delay. If you know of a good case write your letter NOW. Observe the above conditions carefully or your letter may be thrown out. Address all letters as follows:

went back to the city Moly put her arms about Addie's neck and kissed her.

"You're so wonderful, auntie," she said.

"Sho!" said Addie, because she did not know what else to say.

It seemed stranger than ever, after they left, with only herself and Henry at home. Still and all, she thought, one and Henry always liked being together. Even now they had their jokes, for Henry never minded her being a little deaf. Fortunately, her deafness had never increased; sometimes she caught things quite well.

That was what happened the day of Henry's funeral. Most of the children came home for it; two lived too far away. Addie knew they had talked about her a good deal, during those days.

On the afternoon after the burial they were sitting in the parlor. They did not think she could hear.

"There isn't a spare inch in my house," said one of Almira's daughters.

"I'd take her," said Henry's eldest, "but when your children are as old as mine are there's always young company. I never know how many I'll have."

Frank was out of the room, but Moly was there. As far as Addie could see, she was taking no part in the discussion; she was smiling a little, aloof from them all.

The wife of the oldest boy was speaking. "It's awful," she said, "to think of an old person's not being wanted. Why, she's only seventy-four. She can do a good day's work yet. I think it's the duty of one of the nieces to take her."

CLIPSE FASHIONS

Exclusive Patterns by David Byrne

1209 TAILORED CLOTH FROCK.

Molded in the new silhouette, on tailored lines, this frock will be indispensable for general wear, to the smart and carefully dressed miss and small woman. The long sleeves with cuffs, the trig little collar and the novel-shaped pockets give a decided tailored feeling. With the aid of two kick-plaits in the front, the skirt swings away, adding a subtle touch of femininity. The back is plain and a narrow belt is placed at the low waistline. Heather mixtures in the new blues, greens, buffs, wine-reds and copper, combined with a plain color for trimmings, would make one of the season's smartest frocks. No. 1209 is in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years (or 34, 36 and 38 inches bust). Size 18 years (or 36 bust) requires 3 3/4 yards of 36-inch, or 2 3/4 yards of 54-inch material. Price 20 cents.

Many styles of smart apparel may be found in our Fashion Book. Our designers originate their patterns in the heart of the style centres, and their creations are those of tested popularity, brought within the means of the average woman. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

Write your name and address plainly, giving number and size of such patterns as you want. Enclose 20c in stamps or coin (coin preferred; wrap it carefully) for each number, and address your order to Pattern Dept., Wilson Publishing Co., 73 West Adelaide St., Toronto. Patterns sent by return mail.

Canada from Coast to Coast

Summerside, P.E.I.—During 1924, 10,000 silver-black foxes were inspected and registered in the offices of the Canadian National Live Stock records. This brings the number on record to date up to more than 20,000, the industry having doubled in one year. The Province of Prince Edward Island leads in the production of silver foxes, more than 4,000 having been shipped out last year, these animals going to all parts of Canada and the United States, as well as Europe.

Halifax, N.S.—In its last report covering the agricultural situation in the province, the Provincial Dept. of Agriculture states that hay was an abundant crop this year. Pastures are excellent. The Annapolis Valley apple crop is disappointing, the yield being about 1,000,000 barrels, as against 1,600,000 last year. Other fruits are only fair and prices low.

Saint John, New Brunswick—A reduction in stumpage on softwood to $2.50 per thousand feet, to operate for a period of one year, is announced by J. M. B. Baxter, Premier of New Brunswick. This concession is expected to greatly help the provincial operators in marketing their cut on a profitable basis, and will also probably result in a larger cut of timber this winter.

Montreal, Que.—The deepening of the channel between Montreal and Quebec to 35 feet, will be continued next summer it is announced, and at the same time work will commence on the dredging of the north channel, below Quebec, thus assuring to this port the probability of bigger boats establishing services to this Atlantic terminal.

Fort William, Ont.—The record for the unloading of grain cars at the Port of Fort William-Port Arthur, was twice broken in the week ended Oct. 3, first on the 29th Sept., when the highest record hitherto made, which was on Nov. 6, 1923, was eclipsed by 61 cars, and on Oct. 2nd was beaten by 63 cars. The number of cars unloaded on the latter day was 2,484—3,492,247 bushels being unloaded.

Winnipeg, Man.—It is conservatively estimated that at least $3,000,000 was left in Winnipeg by American tourists during the past season. One well-informed business man places the amount spent by motor tourists alone at $2,000,000. Contributions by tourists coming by train amounted to at least another $1,000,000. The visit of the American Legionaries alone brought 7,000 people to the city.

Edmonton, Alta.—Howard Stutchbury, Alberta's trade commissioner, states that the matter of making paper from cereal straw is perfectly feasible and that it will only be a short time until a plant is in operation. There never need be any fear of pulp shortage, he declares as long as grain is grown on the prairies.

Penticton, B.C.—Penticton, Naramata and Summerland are this year gathering the heaviest crops of apples that the orchards have ever produced. The crop is of excellent quality and is being handled expeditiously through the packing houses. One grower reported that he picked 51 boxes of McIntosh Reds off one tree. Another said he gathered 64 boxes, and still another picked 54 boxes.

W. B. Northrup, Former Clerk of Commons, Dies at Ottawa

A despatch from Ottawa says: One of the best-known figures in Parliamentary circles was removed with the death here, early Thursday morning, of William Barton Northrup, K. C., M. A., a former clerk of the House of Commons, and, prior to that, Member of Parliament for the constituency of East Hastings. Mr. Northrup was 69 years old last Monday.

A barrister, and for many years head of the firm of Northrup and Roberts, Belleville, where he resided. Mr. Northrup contested East Hastings at a bye-election in 1892. He was successful and represented that constituency in the House of Commons until 1896, when he was defeated. Again in 1900 he was returned, when he held the seat until the general election of 1917. In the following year he was appointed Clerk of the House of Commons, a position which he held until 1922, when he retired and was succeeded by Arthur Beauchesne, K. C., then Deputy Clerk.

School Nurse Killed When Train Hits Auto

A despatch from Bridgeburg says: When an automobile driven by Helen Ellsworth, aged 23, of Ridgeway, was struck by a fast Wabash passenger train at Shiller's Crossing, five miles west of Bridgeburg, late this afternoon, Margaret Sharpe, aged 28, school nurse, of Bridgeburg, was instantly killed, and Ruth Ellsworth, aged 21, injured. Both Ellsworth girls are school teachers in Bertie Township. Helen Ellsworth, driver of the machine, is seriously injured, her sister escaping with bruises. Miss Sharpe came here from Niagara-on-the-Lake. Dr. Roy Stackhouse, Associate Coroner, held an inquest, which was adjourned for one week.

THREATS BANNED AT LOCARNO CONFERENCE

Germany, Europe's Bad Boy, Back in Family Circle, Misdemeanors Forgiven.

A despatch from Locarno says: The circumstances in which the European pact was negotiated in Locarno are not paralleled in the history of Europe, and certainly not in post-war diplomacy. No doubt, the soothing influences of the weather and scenery of Southern Switzerland had much to do with this, as did the utter necessity of the situation; but it was still another factor that made possible the agreement of Western Powers to outlaw war in Western Europe.

This was the neutral attitude of the Allied representatives toward their former enemy, Germany. Europe's bad boy is now back in the family circle, with past misdemeanors forgiven, in the diplomatic sense. Some observers here have analyzed Germany's position as that of being flattered into agreeing to almost everything placed before it. There is no question but that Luther, Stresemann and their delegation have been intoxicated to some degree by the friendly attention of their Allied colleagues.

Mention of ultimatum, and threats of pressure were rigorously avoided here. Conditions were different from those of every other post-war conference at which Germans were present. Fine manners, friendly gestures and strict observance of social etiquette replaced the old-style system, and with the heavenly weather, plus the absolute knowledge of every Allied statesman present that it was peace, "now or never," the Locarno conference proved a complete success.

Perhaps, under the foggy October skies of London or Paris, this conference would have failed to produce the same result.

There is small chance of parliamentary ratification proving lacking in any capital.

GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE ENTER COMPACT TO AVOID BALKAN CONFLICT

A despatch from Paris says: France and Britain have agreed to notify both Greece and Bulgaria that neither Balkan conflict will not be tolerated. A continuance of hostilities on the Macedonia frontier, they fear, would soon result in drawing in other nations.

While the Foreign Ministers in Athens were making heroic efforts to prevent the border skirmishes that began on Monday developing into an actual state of war, news came from Belgrade that Jugo Slavia was concentrating troops on her frontiers.

Information from Sofia is that the Council of Ministers was seriously considering a declaration of war against Greece. Another report was that the Bulgarian Government would ask the Allies for permission to mobilize the army. The report from Vienna that Bulgaria had appealed for intervention by the League of Nations was not confirmed in diplomatic channels, but such an appeal was expected.

It is reported the Greek forces have entered Petrich, after bombarding it most of the day, and that the town was in flames.

A Greek army consisting of two divisions is said to have invaded Bulgaria, the Sixth Division coming from

INCREASE IS SHOWN IN RADIO LICENSES

Nearly 10,000 More Are Issued Already This Year.

A despatch from Ottawa says: An increase of 7,823 in the number of radio receiving licenses issued for the nine months of the present year, ended Sept. 30, as compared with a corresponding period in 1924, is shown by the records of the Radio Branch of the Dept. of Marine and Fisheries.

The number of yearly radio receiving licenses issued up to the end of September this year totals 64,682, as against 56,859 granted during the same period in 1924.

Ontario heads the list with a total at the end of September of 32,833. Quebec ranks second with 9,062, while Saskatchewan is third with 7,729. Manitoba, British Columbia, Alberta, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Yukon and the Northwest Territories follow in the order named.

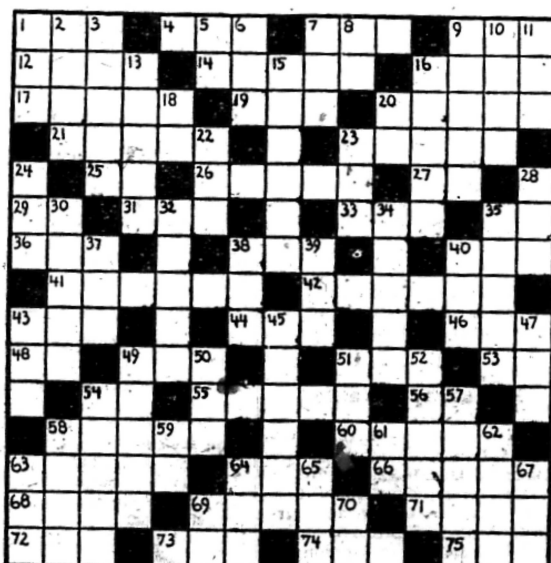

Rutolek and the Eleventh from Mantzark.

A despatch from London says: In both diplomatic and League of Nations circles here there is considerable anxiety over the possibility of grave developments which might arise from the Bulgarian-Greek frontier clash. The fear here is founded not only on the instability of the situation as regards Greece and Bulgaria themselves but also on the possibility of complications arising through secretly exerted influence of outside powers.

In League quarters here it is said the Geneva secretariat is expecting to receive an appeal for intervention at any moment.

Jugo-Slavia (Serbia), of course, has at least a legal interest in the developments of the dispute, because, though she denounced her treaty of alliance with Greece, it remains in force until next summer. On that account it was suggested that the Bulgar-Greek conflict might result—were Jugo-Slavia to refuse to go to Greece's aid—in an increase of the Serbo-Greek estrangement over the Macedonian railway and a Salonica free zone, disputes which through the recent intervention of Anglo-French diplomacy had been brought to the eve of a settlement. Such a settlement would lead to a new Serbo-Greek entente.

DESIRE FOR PEACE NOW RULES IN EUROPE

This is the Miracle of Locarno, Declares Premier Baldwin.

A despatch from Colchester, Eng., says: "The miracle of Locarno is that a will for peace has been created in Europe for the first time since the world war," declared Premier Baldwin in a speech here on Thursday.

"We have therefore been able," he continued, "to build a solid foundation which will bear any superstructure erected upon it, and if the promise of Locarno is fulfilled, as I have every hope it will be, the peace of Europe will be built up in Western Europe as a prelude to peace throughout the whole of Europe."

"For the first time in Europe we have before us a treaty, which of its nature is inclusive, not exclusive. In other words, all such arrangements in the past have been arrangements which were designed in essence against a third party."

"At Locarno there was nothing of the kind. These new agreements, wholly pacific from beginning to end, are mutual guarantees between all the contracting parties, with no direction against any third or any other party."

Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who followed Premier Baldwin at the oyster feast in Colchester Guildhall, threatened to increase the income tax next year, without actually naming it, unless the Cabinet's new economy committee succeeded in effecting considerable savings.

The Chancellor otherwise was optimistic. Although he had not been able to decide whether the nation was actually beginning to live on its capital, the British people, though not getting rich as rapidly as they were before the war, were still getting richer, and certainly not poorer as a nation. There were evidences of greater consuming power in all parts of the country, and he concluded: "We may look to the future, if not with buoyant hope, at any rate with solid confidence."

Bliss Carman to Lecture on English at McGill

A despatch from Montreal says: Bliss Carman, noted Canadian poet, will join the staff of the Dept. of English, McGill University, for the month of November, it is announced at the university.

KILLED WHEN PLANE CRASHED TO GROUND

Flight Officer Matthews Was Making Test at Camp Borden.

A despatch from Barrie, Ont., says: Flight Officer T. C. Matthews was instantly killed at Camp Borden. He was a pupil learning to fly, and when making a test crashed to the ground.

Mr. Matthews, who was undergoing a course on flying instruction, was flying solo in an Avro training airplane. He was trying a landing test, during the course of his qualification for pilot, and when approaching the ground the machine appeared to lose flying speed, stalled and fell. The machine was too close to the ground to allow the pilot to regain control. Pilot Matthews, it is reported, was instantly killed.

The late pilot officer was born at MacLeod, Alberta, on July 17, 1902, and graduated from the Royal Military College in June, 1924.

England Seeks to Solve Frayed Collar Mystery

A despatch from London says: The mystery of why collars are frayed and buttons broken when the laundry comes home has claimed the attention of the British government. This became known through the announcement by the Department for Scientific and Industrial Research that for a four-year period it has contributed to the British Launderers' Association the sum of £12,605 (about $63,000) to further the attempt to find means for preventing fraying of collars and the destruction of buttons. Nevertheless, collars still come home with saw-tooth edges and shirts return buttonless.

Answer to last week's puzzle:

Bazaar

The bazaar held in the White Schoolhouse, Tenth Line, Trafalgar Saturday afternoon last under the auspices of the Community Club, was a decided success. The afternoon promised fair and everything offered for sale was first class. The busy farmers wives who organized the affair are to be congratulated.

Bidding and buying was brisk—but early in the afternoon rain began to fall which was a signal for lady motorists to leave for home.

The members of the Club wish to thank the ladies of Streetsville and surrounding country for their kind patronage.

The receipts were $137

Social Evening

The Community club held a social evening at the home of Mr. Henry May on Monday evening Oct 26th. Despite the bad roads and storm there was a good number present. A pleasant feature of the evening was a presentation of a cut glass sugar bowl, spoon holder and cream jug to the bride to be, Miss Ruby Cordingley, who made a touching reply, expressing her regret at leaving the neighborhood. Mr. Cavell was also present and addressed the meeting on behalf of Miss Cordingley. The address was read by Miss Lily Leslie and the presentation was made by Misses M. Cook and Ella Fullerton.

The prize winners in the euchre contest were Miss Irene McCarron and brother, W. McCarron.

Star At Home

The Officers and Members of Peel Chapter No. 96 Order Eastern Star are very pleased with the "At Home" held last Friday evening, when nearly 200 enjoyed the euchre and dance. Upstairs the card players had their fun, the prize winners being Miss Montgomery, towels; Mrs. Stanley Hall, marmalade jar; Mrs. King, the Mystery Prize, Cluny lace, centre-piece; Miss Mabel Graydon, Bridge score set; Mr. McHardy, leather billfold. In the auditorium, recently redecorated, and with the new stage scenery, curtains and footlights, the addition of autumn leaves and greens made it festive indeed. Stevenson's Orchestra of Toronto made enchanting music for the dancers. In the birthday dance Miss Gladys Stewart was the recipient of a box of chocolates. A splendid lunch was served midnight.

Ralph Brown

Mr. Ralph Brown, one of the oldest residents of Chinguacousy, and for more than 70 years a continuous resident of Huttonville, passed away Monday. He was in his 92nd year and was born in Tyrone, Ireland, coming to Canada when a boy of seven. Mr. Brown was a successful farmer, but of late years his nephew, Norman Copeland, had conducted the farm. He was a staunch Conservative and expressed a wish a few days before his death that he would be spared to vote on election day. He was at one time a member of L.O.L. No. 263, Streetsville. In religion he was a Methodist, a member of Huttonville Church. His wife who was Miss Lavina Copeland, predeceased him seven years ago. The remains were placed in Churchville Cemetery yesterday.

PORT CREDIT

Before a capacity audience at Clarke's Memorial Hall, the combined choirs of St. George's Church, Islington; St. John's, at Dixie, and Trinity, at Port Credit, presented Gault's "Holy City." Under the direction of Frederick Plant, of Toronto, the presentation was exceptionally well sung, and received round after round of applause from the audience.

STREETSVILLE FAIR

We thought we'd go to Streetsville Fair, Miranda Jane and me, so we toggled up in our Sunday best and started off with glee. Old Dobbin trotted briskly, too, just like he felt the same; you'd never thought that his last week he had been walking lame. Well, after driving miles and miles the old bug came in sight. We driv' along through several streets then gee'd off to the right, which took us straight into the park. My stars and garters, my! I thought the hull of Peel County'd gathered there that day. And now, thinks I, I wonder if in all this crowd there'll be a face that looks familiar to Miranda Jane and me. When all to once we wuz hikin' over towards the hall, I heard an old familiar voice givin' a loud shrill call. I nudged Miranda's elbow quick. Says I, that's our old bird Joe! The bird we sold to Peter Hicks, I recognize his crow. "Why, sure enough it is," says she. "Now, Ezzy, ain't that great? To hev' an old friend call to us before we'd passed the gate." The buzzin' and the talkin' in the hall jes' reminded me of an old-fashioned church tea meetin', I could almost smell the tea. Miranda Jane hiked over to where the bread and cake showed what appetizing eatin' stuff the women folks can make. The pickles and preserves came next. It's funny what a change jes' sticking stuff in jars can make. It's somethin' rather strange. Fowl all fixed up, both raw and cooked, an' pies so tempting, say 'twould make a feller hungry jes' ter see all that display. When we'd seen the vegetables an' fruit an' flowers galore, Miranda hauled me up the steps onto the second floor. I could scarcely keep from laughin', though my smiles I tried ter hide, for "Ain't that pretty? Oh, how sweet!" was heard on every side. "Now, ain't that just too beautiful?" was heard 'bout every minute, and when I'd look ter see what 'twas I couldn't see nothin' in it. Miranda Jane wuz jes' as bad. She'd say, "Well, I declare! Jes' look at all the stitches in that cushion top up there." Well, after spendin' hours admiring all their fold-erols, we heard old Joe givin' three tremendous calls. Says I, "I guess old Joe thinks we're treatin' him real mean, not lettin' on we know his voice when he's so friendly bein'. So out we hiked and spoke ter him. He flapped his wings real glad, and cocked his eye as if ter say, "This old fair ain't so bad." Then all to once upon the air came strains of music grand. Next thing came proudly marchin' in Port Credit Citizens' Band. They sailed right on amid the crowd with drum-sticks twirlin' neat, while from their funny instruments came music wild and sweet. And next we met Miranda Jane's sister's husband's cousin. Seemed like when we'd meet one old friend we met them by the dozen. We follered up ahint the crowd; bought tickets for the stand and heard some stirrin' music played by Port Credit Citizens' Band. 'Twas funny jes' to sit and watch the people as they'd come. Some wuz eatin' sassaiges and some wuz chewin' gum. An' some wuz carry toy balloons, and some eat candy bars, an' some jes' stood and hollered at the races from their cars. Oh, there wuz lots and lots of things too numerous to mention, as auction sale bills allus say, attractin' our attention. An' as we driv' along toward home, a tired but happy pair, we each felt we had got our money's worth at Toronto Township Fair.

Cooksville Dots and Dashes

To day, Thursday, is polling day. In Peel County two good men have their names on the ballot paper. Whichever is the victor the constituency will be worthily represented at Ottawa.

Inspector Galbraith made his official visit to the school this week. Owing to his approaching retirement, it will probably be his last visit as well. Many residents of the county will kindly remember the veteran inspector and will wish him well in the years to come.

Mr. George May has added two new steeds to his horse stable, bringing his equine string up to six.

On the sick list at present are Mrs. R.M. Pickett, who is quarantined in her home with diphtheria, and Mr. R. Robertson, who is under going an operation in a Toronto hospital.

The United Church congregation is holding its annual bazaar this Saturday and the members hope to duplicate the wonderful success achieved a year ago.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Sanderson and family are moving to the city on Saturday for winter residence.

The semi-annual traffic census on Dundas and Brampton highways began on Friday last and continues until this Friday.

Dixie Presbyterians are holding anniversary services on Sunday next. Morning and evening services are being held, the Rev. Mr. McClean of Georgetown preaching.

The masquerade social in the United Church on Monday was a successful function. About 40 of the young people were in costume and there was some striking turn-outs. The prize-winners were Miss Myrtle Tipping, who dressed as an Indian maid, Arthur Dellow, as a negro, and Donald Porter, as a boy scout. Games and refreshments closed a very enjoyable evening.

Mr. Fred Tolman is conductor of the augmented choir which sings at the anniversary services to be held in Dixie Presbyterian Church on Sunday.

Mr. Jack Dennison of Detroit has been visiting his mother and brother here and other relatives in the city.

McMurray-Walker

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, Oct. 1, at Bloor St. United Church by the Rev. Dr. Wright when Emily Belle eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Walker of Streetsville was united in marriage to Gordon McMurray of Oakville. The bride looked charming in a brick colored gown beautifully hand painted with large picture hat. Her corsage bouquet was of Premier roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by Miss Luella Jamieson who was attired in a pretty dress of wine trimmed with fur. Her corsage bouquet was of Ophelia roses.

Mr. John Walker, brother of the bride, was best man. After hearty congratulations the happy couple left on an extended trip to Sarnia, Windsor and Detroit. On their return they will reside at the McMurray homestead, Snider's Corners.

Cooksville

Much sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Jamieson of Cooksville, whose baby girl is very sick

Mrs. Burrows wishes to announce that she will start giving private lessons in modern and social dancing on Monday, Nov. 2nd in her home at Cooksville. Her studio will be known as 'The Roslyn'. A splendid new floor has been laid and it looks swell. Mrs. Burrows is a pupil of Gordon Reece, Toronto, and is now giving lessons in the city. She teaches all the very latest steps, including the new College Strut and the Charleston. The fees will be the same as in Toronto. Take your lessons in Cooksville and save the time and expense of going to the city.

Induction Service

St. Andrews' Presbyterian Church, Streetsville

The Induction service on Thursday, October 22nd, was a red letter day in the history of St. Andrews', when, after a vacancy lasting over a period of eight months, the Rev. Walter T. McCree, M.A., having been duly called and having accepted the call, was inducted as minister of St. Andrews' congregation. The beautiful and impressive ceremony of the Presbyterian Church lost nothing at the hands of Rev. D. T. McKerrill, moderator of Toronto Presbytery, who presided.

The following members of Toronto Presbytery were present: Revs. D. T. McKerrill, G. M. Dunn, James Wilson, D.D.; J. A. Mustard, T. H. Rogers, Samuel Lundy, Thomas Dodds, Crawford Brown, ministers, and Messrs. Wallace, McClure and Weylie, elders. After devotional exercises, the Rev. G. M. Dunn, Presbytery Clerk, detailed the steps that led up to the induction. The Rev. Samuel Lundy, of Port Credit, then preached most appropriately from I. Corinthians, third chapter, and verses 10 and 11: "According to the grace of God which is given unto me, as a wise masterbuilder, I have laid the foundation and another buildeth thereupon. For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." Theme, temple building. He divided it into four divisions, first, the sure foundation; second, the pattern; third, the material; fourth, the time allowed to build.

The Moderator then put the questions prescribed by the Presbyterian Church to Mr. McCree, and upon his answering in the affirmative and undertaking to teach and defend the same, he was duly inducted as minister of St. Andrews', and received the right hand of fellowship from the Presbytery. Rev. James Wilson, D.D., of Brampton, then gave a very solemn and impressive charge to both minister and people. The chief thought in his charge to Mr. McCree was the shepherding of the people entrusted to his care. While the congregation were reminded of the important work entrusted to them, and that Mr. McCree's success as a minister depended in a large measure upon their faithful performance of that duty. During the service St. Andrews' sextette rendered the following anthem, "I will lift up mine eyes."

After the benediction had been pronounced, the members and visitors were introduced to Mr. and Mrs. McCree by the Rev. J. A. Mustard, interim moderator, and Messrs. Wilson and Weylie, elders.

The ladies had provided a very tasty luncheon in the basement to which all were invited. After the good things had been enjoyed, a few impromptu speeches were made, Mr. McKerrill acting as chairman in a very happy manner. On behalf of the Anglican Church by the rector, Rev. R. J. W. Perry; Rev. Thomas Dodds, Dixie, Rev. J. A. Mustard, Toronto, and Rev. W. T. McCree, and Messrs. C. S. Macdonald, Brampton, and T. Wallace, Cooke's Church, Toronto, and on behalf of the congregation by Messrs. T. McCracken and John Weylie. A very nice incident took place when Mrs. Waddie was introduced to the audience as number one on the communion roll, on rising, Mrs. Waddie received quite an ovation. The chairman made a very kindly reference to another old member of the congregation, Mr. Nathaniel Stein, who was present. Among those in the audience were two more old members of the congregation, Mrs. S. Wolfe and Miss Annie Fulton.

Reference during the evening was made to the fact that twice during its history this congregation has been called upon to make two great decisions. The first one was in 1843, when the congregation voted to join the Free Church, and after a lapse of eighty-two years, they were called upon to make a far more momentous decision because of the issues involved. The congregation by a majority vote decided to remain true to the faith of their fathers, because by so doing they believed that they could make their best contribution towards bringing in the time when the Creator's will shall be done, and when Jesus shall reign, and also not only from the historical association of the past, but because to a great many the lives and loves, and ashes of the men and women who carved St. Andrews' out of the forest and handed it down a priceless heritage. Out of town visitors were present from Toronto, Islington, Dixie, Port Credit, Brampton, Mount Pleasant and Norval.

ST. ANDREW'S NOTES

On Sunday, Mr. McCree preached in the morning from John 14th, 27th verse, theme, "Peace." Peace which the world cannot give, neither take away. Unrest always comes from uncertainty. The peace that Christ gives does not mean that we shall be free from the cares and sorrows incidental to this life, in fact you cannot rightly appreciate the beauty of this life unless you have the shadows. Peace comes from confidence in the Father's care, and love, and wisdom. Christ was absolutely sure, absolutely confident, because he trusted the Father. It was this confidence and the peace that resulted from it, that supported Stephen through his martyrdom, and that great multitude that followed in his steps. In conclusion the speaker cited the concluding verses of the 4th chapter of Romans, and said this is your inheritance left you by your Master.

Miss Steen sang a solo, "The Master has gone away."

Evening Service
In the evening, Mr. McCree preached from Philippians, 3 chap., verses

13 and 14, keyword, "Forgetting."

For 20 years the great apostle had spent his life between Rome and Jerusalem and the cities that lay between. As a result largely due to him there were flourishing churches in all those places. If any man could say "I have attained, I have done enough," he was that person. But Paul forgets all that in the face of the work that is to be done. God never asks us to do work beyond our strength, but there does not come a time when we can fold our arms and say we have done enough.

Present activities keep alive the activities of the past. The present duty is the important thing, we judge a man not so much by his past as by what he is doing now. Before Paul's mind was the mind of the Master's. We are hindering God's purpose for us when we say "I have attained." We are making the future by what we are doing now.

Peel to be Represented in Tournament

The members of the executive of the Provincial Winter Fair, Guelph, are proving themselves to be up-to-date in every way by including in their programme a ladies soft ball tournament. This is to be an inter-county event and is slated for the last day of the fair, Thursday, October 12th.

That Peel will be well represented is an assured fact in as much as Agricultural Representative J. E. White-Rock has been successful in securing the consent of the management of the Bolton ladies' team to enter their team in the competition.

The Bolton young ladies have won an enviable reputation for themselves throughout the central portion of the province and win or lose, will be a credit to the County of Peel.

Judging Teams for Guelph and Royal Show

With the big winter shows only two weeks away Peel's representatives have already commenced training for the inter-county judging competitions which are held both at Guelph and Toronto.

Peel's teams have set a high standard in the past, in fact last year's two teams set up a mark which it will be difficult for all future teams to live up to. At Guelph the team composed of Wylie McKeown, Douglas Danton and Elgin Laughlin stood second in the contest of twenty-five teams while at the Royal the team, composed of Harry Laidlaw, Harvey Parkinson and George Wilkinson, won honour and fame for themselves and their county by bringing back the Jeffrey Bull Memorial Trophy, the symbol of champion team in a contest with teams from thirty-five other counties.

Agricultural representative J. E. Whitlock has already sent out the call for new recruits and it is to be hoped they will avail themselves of the opportunity to become better judges of live stock and at the same time strive to uphold the honour of the county.

Orangeville Sun makes merry of a scene in the history of the Acme Handle Co., of Grand Valley. Village put its guarantee behind $10,000 of bonds. Factory used up cash, shut down. Grand Valley foreclosed Sheriff's sale. And The Sun reports: "Four bids and the coffin rests on the bottom. R. J. Leach, manager of the Royal Bank, gets the remains for $125. A week from next Tuesday all pass books of that institution will be equipped with handles, the ivory handles being for the ladies."

PROPER USE OF MANURE

SPREAD ON LAND FREQUENTLY IS THE BEST PRACTICE.

Neglect Means Waste—Other Points of Interest to Those on the Land—Gains Made by Early Fall Ploughing—Thirteen Egg Clutches.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The waste still goes on. Years ago when soils were new, manure was not valued. Once a year clearing of the barnyard sufficed then. That once a year practice in handling manure became a habit, so much so that many farmers can't get away from it to-day and let the waste go on. It is not only the fertility waste but it is also the maintenance of fith conditions about the premises which is surely enough to condemn the practice of neglect.

The best way to handle manure is to spread it on the land as made. This practice is possible all the year on many farms. For the farms that are not level enough to hold that which may be placed on them piling may be resorted to, until conditions for distribution are right. In piling manure on Ontario farms one notices much carelessness and resulting waste, just dumped anywhere as an eyesore and nursing ground for weeds. Contrast with this condition the practice in Great Britain, where any manure that does not go to the land is carefully corded up in neat mounds, kept tramped and kept moist; forked over to aid in its making and prevent wastage by heating. Watertight bottoms, pits and sheds are also used by the British farmer who knows and appreciates the value of animal manures. The manure from a farm horse or cow for one year fully conserved and returned to the soil has a value in nitrogen, potash and phosphorus equal to $52.00 as spent on commercial fertilizers. If it pays to purchase and apply commercial fertilizers, it surely pays to make proper use of the animal manures. If the commercial fertilizer man thinks enough of the product that he handles to put it up in sacks and protect it by dry storage, surely the farm operator can take a hint from this business man and prevent the manure waste that may be taking place on his farm. Get the manure out on the soil as soon as possible.

Tuberculosis.

There is no difference in the susceptibility of pure bred and scrub cattle to tuberculosis. In the testing of 1,400,000 pure-bred cattle it was found that 4.7 per cent. reacted. In the testing of 500,000 scrub or grade cattle, it was found that 4.8 per cent. reacted.

Efficiency of Dairy Cow.

The efficiency of a dairy cow depends upon a properly developed udder and its continuance in a normal condition. The most serious condition that occurs to the dairy cow is infection of the udder, and streptococci are the most frequent bacterial invading organism. Streptococci infection can be readily transmitted from cow to cow by hand or machine milking and the entire herd may become infected. The disease is difficult to control because of the fact that an occasional cow is a carrier. The most successful treatment consists in increasing the resistance of the animal by the use of bacteria. In badly infected herds a bacteria prepared from cultures isolated from diseased cows is most efficient. With the destruction of the mammary gland profits vanish.

Gain Made by Early Fall Ploughing.

Weeds materially reduce the yields of grain. Early fall ploughing aids very much in holding weeds in check and eradicating them. Ploughing biennial and perennial weeds under early checks their growth; if when they show above ground these parts are destroyed, real progress in eradication may be made during the fall months.

Early fall ploughing will conserve the moisture already in the soil and puts the fields in condition to take up readily any rain that occurs during the autumn. Various insect pests harmful to crops are largely controlled by early fall ploughing, due to disturbance in their more or less dormant stages or to actual exposure above ground.

In preparation for the seeding of fall grains, early ploughing has the advantage over ploughing just before seeding in that it provides a firm seed bed in which the seed should germinate immediately and the plants make a steady growth from the start.

The Lucky 18 Egg Clutches.

We hatch a good many chicks in incubators, but we also use hens. Eggs of the larger breeds do not hatch so well in incubators as they do under hens; so we hatch a good many chicks of these breeds under hens, and use incubators for hatching Leghorns. We have found by many tests that we can put 18 eggs under one lot of hens and 15 under another, and, as a rule, get more chicks from the 18-egg clutches than we can from those where 15 eggs were used. There is probably a reason for this, but I have never felt any need of wasting my time trying to discover it so we now use 18 eggs for a setting.

A good liniment for all kinds of swellings on dairy cows, as well as on all other farm animals, is made by mixing equal parts of turpentine, sweet oil and spirits of camphor. Apply liberally and frequently to the swollen parts.

Corn stover only partially takes the place of legumes. It is good filling material, but it requires nearly 200 pounds of shredded corn to supply a cow with as much protein as contained in twenty pounds of alfalfa hay.

BARTLETT & SON

Main St. Brampton

MARRIED

Cavell—Cordingley—At the family residence, Trafalgar Twp., Miss Florence Rubena, daughter of Mr. David Cordingley, to Mr. Hartley Wm. Cavell, Barrister, of Toronto. The ceremony took place at 12 o'clock noon on Thursday 29th inst, the Rev. S. J. T. Fortner of Streetsville officiating.

St. Andrew's Notes

This Sunday 10 a.m.—Sunday School 10.15—Bible Class Services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. will be taken by Rev. W. T. McCree.

Erindale

There passed away at his home Dundas St. West, Erindale, on Monday, Alex. McNeil, at the age of 35 years. He was a sailor and belonged to the Naval Volunteer Reserve, serving on a mine sweeper in the North Sea during the Great War. His death was the result of injuries received while thus engaged. Besides his widow four children survive and they have the heartfelt sympathy of the community in their sad bereavement.

The funeral took place Wednesday to the Erindale Cemetery, and was largely attended. The Rev. H. V. Thompson conducted the services and a Naval bugler sounded the Last Post at the grave.

Col. Tom Kennedy, M.P.P. of the G.G.B.G., Capt. G. B. Jackson, and a number of men of the Toronto squadron of the Naval Reserve were present. No hearse was used, but two sets of pallbearers carried the remains from the home to the grave. This is the way they do in England, where deceased came from.

Deceased played football with the Streetsville team three years ago and was one of their best men. The team was well represented at the funeral.

Trinity Notes

On Thursday evening the Rev. Dr. O'Meara preached to a large number on the occasion of the 80th anniversary of the church. "We would see Jesus" was the basis of his remarks. Among multitudes today in places we least expect there is the desire to know Jesus. The great heathen world is vocal with a desire to know Him. It is much easier to know Him today than even when He moved among men. We find Him revealed and known to us in God's word and in the lives of His followers. A strong plea was made for the study of the Holy Scriptures and more consistent living on the part of all who profess and call themselves His. Seek to see Him in all our study, our worship and service. There were also present the Rev. Rural Dean Thompson of Erindale and Canon Naftel of Milton. It was a very inspiring and helpful service to all those who made use of the opportunity to be present.

The services were continued on Sunday when the rector preached in the morning and Mr. L. A. Hamilton of Lorne Park at 7 p.m. The sacrament of Holy Baptism was administered at 3 p.m. and Holy Communion at 8 a.m.

The annual Fowl Supper and entertainment was held on Tuesday evening in the Oddfellows Hall. A splendid attendance, a delicious supper and a thoroughly gratifying program characterized the evening, producing a spirit of good fellowship and encouragement. The readings of Miss Ruth Greig and Miss Hayward were much appreciated as were also the solos of Miss Hayward and Mr. Norman Rutledge. Miss Drysdale is a capable violinist and clearly pleased the audience. Community singing with Mr. Graydon at the piano passed the time pleasantly before the commencement of the program. Mr. Andrews kindly made use of his radio. Congratulations are due the committees and all those who made the evening such a success.

Next Sunday is "All Saints Day" a day set apart by the church in memory of all those who have departed this life in the true faith and fear of their Lord and Master. There are none to whom this day has no special appeal, and so all are asked to be in God's House on the Lord's Day for that spiritual communion and fellowship which is an earnest of worship and fellowship hereafter.

Constable Alex. Hammond noticed an Italian driving a truck in a reckless manner this week. He jumped in a car and followed him in the direction of Erindale, where he overhauled him and handed him over to the township Constables who took him to Brampton, where he appeared before Police Magistrate Crawford and was fined $100 and costs.

A number of our citizens had the pleasure Monday night of listening to the speech of Hon. Mr. Meighen at Massey Hall, Toronto, over the Spitdorf radio, belonging to Mr. W. C. Andrew. Every word could be heard distinctly over this splendid instrument. This is truly a wonderful age when it is possible to sit in your home and hear people speaking in another town, sometimes hundreds of miles away.

Streetsville people helped to swell the immense crowd that went to Brampton on Tuesday to hear Hon. Arthur Meighen. The Capitol Theatre was packed and hundreds could not gain admittance. Besides the Hon. Mr. Meighen, Mr. Charters, Home Smith and Mr. Duggan spoke and a little Brampton boy recited. The opposition leader and Mr. Charters were given a great ovation and no doubt Mr. Charters felt that the enthusiasm displayed spelled success for him. Brampton Band furnished music and community singing before the meeting opened kept the crowd in good humor.

In the same building in the evening another big crowd was present when the Liberals held forth. Hon. Clifford Sifton, Mr. W.R.P. Parker, Mrs. Parker and the chairman Mr. Ed. Graham, were the speakers.

A PEEP INTO FAIRYLAND

Little Trotcosey was going to bring home the cows.

A yellow-haired child with sun-burned cheeks and bright brown eyes—a little girl whose bare feet danced along over the daisies.

And as she danced, she sang:

"Fairies, fairies, come back once more
Come from the old, forgotten shore!
Bring your treasures from land and sea.

Fairies, fairies, come back to me!"

For this was old Nita's favorite song and Nita had been telling her fairy-stories all the afternoon, as they picked ripe blueberries together in the pasture, until Trotcosey's head was full of fairy visions.

As she sang, she looked this way and that and waved her branch of tall scarlet lilies in her hand; but she could see only the leaves rustling in the breeze, and the sunbeams braiding themselves in and out among the reeds and rushes by the river.

"There must be fairies somewhere," said Trotcosey, "for Nita says there are, and Nita knows!"

Here Trotcosey paused to pick up a poor little fledgling which had fallen out of his nest in a hedge of alder bushes, and to put him back again, to the great relief of the fluttering bird-mother, who was uttering sharp cries of terror and dismay as she flew around and around in ever-widening circles.

"Don't be afraid, birdie!" said Trotcosey. "Do you think I would hurt your poor little one?"

And she trudged along, still singing:

Bring your treasures from land and sea.

Fairies, fairies, listen to me!"

Just then she found a withered rose lying by the roadside—a rose which some one had gathered and flung away.

"Poor rose, how pitiful you look!" said Trotcosey. "If I were to sprinkle some water on you, perhaps you might revive again."

And she carried the poor withered rose to the river edge and laid it carefully down where the ripples could wash its dry stem and wet its drooping petals.

"There, rose," she said, "now grow beautiful again! Let me see—where was I?"

"Fairies, fairies, come back once more!"

Oh, here is a poor rabbit, limping along with an ugly thorn sticking in his foot. Come here, bunny, and I'll pull it out for you!"

The rabbit was too lame to run away, and so he stood still. But Trotcosey thought he cast a grateful glance up into her face as he scampered away, with the cruel thorn removed from his foot.

"He can't talk," said Trotcosey, "but he certainly looked as if he were obliged to me."

And she stood still, with the branch of tall red lilies in her hand, to listen for the sound of the bell around the leader-cow's neck.

"I hear it jingling up in the woods," said Trotcosey, "and it's coming this way. I'll sit down here and wait until they come."

So Trotcosey sat down on a round moss-covered stone, little dreaming that it was the very wishing-stone, of which old Nita had that day told her, upon which a fairy spell descended, once in every year, just as the sun was setting. And the yellow light came down upon her head—the last beam of the sinking sun—exactly at the moment in which she said:

"How I wish I could get a peep into Fairyland!"

Swift as the gliding of a river's current, the trees and rocks and golden-sunset sky vanished away, and Trotcosey found herself sitting on a throne of glistening pearls, in a garden of flowers, where fountains sparkled and strange birds sang, and where she could see a palace, with columns of shining spar and steps of onyx! And all around her, the fairies were floating with their gauzy wings and crowns of shining stars, and wands all tipped with diamond sparks, and all the air was filled with golden mist. And then it seemed to part away, like curtains of sunshine, and Trotcosey saw the fairy queen herself, with her tiny diadem of dew and her sceptre of precious stones.

"Where is the little girl who scatters kind deeds as she goes along the world's pathway?" said the fairy queen.

And the robin flew down, among the blossoming trees, and the rose, fresh and crimson, once again dropped into the fairy queen's lap, and the lamb rabbit nestled at her feet, and they all cried out, at once:

"Here she is! Here she is!"

"For this, three wishes shall be granted to you," said the fairy queen. "Speak and tell me what they are!"

"If you please, fairy queen," said Trotcosey, very much frightened at the tone of her own voice, "I should like, first, for humpbacked Peter to be made straight again; and next, I should like little Lotty, the miller's daughter, to become as strong and well as I am, because she's dying of consumption, you know, fairy queen; and—and, if you please, I want old Katchen to find the blue hen she lost last week, because she's very old and poor, and she needs the eggs!"

The fairy queen smiled as she listened to the unselfish little girl.

"But you have asked nothing for yourself!" said she. "All the same, you shall not go empty-handed out of the Fairy-world!"

She touched Trotcosey's tawny hair with her wand, and it became bright and shining like gold. She laid the withered rose against her cheek and the love's tint overspread the sun-burnt skin.

"I grant you a heart that is always merry and footsteps that are ever light," said she.

And as Trotcosey listened, there was the far-off sound of chiming bells, and the pearl throne and glittering columns faded away, and she was sitting once more among the ferns, with the cowbells close to her ears and the stalk of red lilies in her hand.

"I must have been dreaming," said Trotcosey, "for it's long past sunset, and the cows are on their way home! But it was almost as good as real Fairyland to have such a beautiful dream as that!"

So she walked along home, singing the old song as she went:

"Fairies, fairies, come back once more!"

and just on the edge of the meadows she met a little lad skipping and dancing.

"Why, surely!" she said, "that can't be humpbacked Peter, for he is as straight as a young birch tree. But he certainly looks like humpbacked Peter."

Wonder of wonders! It was humpbacked Peter, cured of his sad affliction.

The child had scarcely ceased marveling, when along came old Katchen, with a face all smiles.

"Little Trotcosey," said she, "have you heard the news? I've found my blue hen again, eating berries in the cedar glen! And what is better yet, Lotty, the miller's daughter, is much better to-day, and the doctors say she will soon be well again."

And then Trotcosey knew that she had really been in Fairyland.

When she got home, everybody cried aloud with surprise.

"What has come to our little Trotcosey?" said they. "Her hair is like spun gold, and her eyes are like diamonds, and her skin is softer than the heart of a rose!"

Trotcosey told them her adventure, but they shook their heads.

Except Nita, who was nearly a hundred years old, and knew many strange secrets.

"Yes," she added, "yes, the child has really been in Fairyland!"

But, although Trotcosey sat on the wishing-stone at sunset many a time again, she never got another glimpse into Fairyland.

YOUR BODY'S WONDER CELLS

Marvels You Little Suspect.

Three days ago I bruised a knuckle; to-day the wound is healed over, and I accept the bit of new skin as calmly as if it were a section of repaired pavement. But if I knew about the thousands of cell lives that were lost in that catastrophe on my finger, if I could see the tens of thousands of life-producing labors that have been performed there, that speck of flesh would appear a great and miraculous structure.

When I carelessly knocked my hand against the door I destroyed an area of skin about a quarter of an inch long and an eighth of an inch wide. This had been composed of perhaps fifty thousand individual cells, which were all so broken or detached that they perished. My body had no power to bring up a regiment of similar cells, dump them into the breach, and say, "Be healed."

The Secret of Life.

No, those dead cells were of many sorts—fat and horny ones at the surface; below, three layers of different sorts that were packed like mackerel in the hold of a fishing schooner; and, in a lower layer, many intricate sets of apparatus like nerve-ends, capillaries, pigment-makers, muscles, oil glands.

We had best not say anything about these complicated organs of the skin, since most of them are beyond examination. Let us content ourselves with the largest, most obvious, most uniform cells: those of the third layer from the top. Even these cannot be replaced in bulk. For each one is an individual, differing in some degree from its neighbors, as men differ in a regiment. Every one of them was born from a parent cell.

Are you startled by hearing about the "birth" of a cell? Imagine that I had a needle fine enough to detach one of these cells and to hold it under a powerful microscope. Suppose that I could show some of the labors that are carried on there. It is a laboratory for vital processes far beyond the skill of men.

It is filled with what we call protoplasm. Protoplasm is simply our ignorant name for the unapproachable secret of life. The life in protoplasm is directed by a speck called a "nucleus." That is our name for the mystery that lives in that tiny space. Far within the nucleus, all but invisible to the most searching gaze of science, is the mechanism that can direct the birth of a new cell.

If I see a hawk flying overhead, I know that the bird was once in an egg and was born. It is just as obvious that any cell was born. It must have grown out of a cell, which has grown out of a previous cell, which had grown from a previous cell. There cannot have been any gap in the series of descents since life began on the earth.

Investigators, by combining their observations for a generation, have learned enough to give us a picture of a cell's birth.

First, the nucleus swells; several loops appear in its liquid; they grow shorter and thicker and then become straight; they then arrange themselves in a row across the centre of the nucleus, as if they were so many bits of a small, round match placed end to end. These are called the chromosomes. Each splits down its length into two equal parts.

The two sets then draw apart. Meanwhile, the whole cell has been preparing to divide; a groove appears on its outside. This groove grows deeper and deeper, until the cell splits in two. The result is two small cells, each composed of half of every detail of the previous cell, each with a complete equipment of cell life. These grow quickly to full size and are now prepared to reproduce in the same way as often as they have orders to do so.

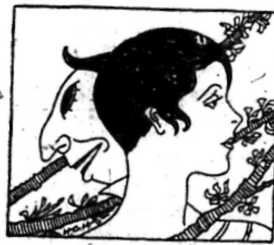

Radio Earthquakes.

Wireless has been blamed for causing many unpleasant phenomena. The latest charge to be laid at its door is made by Dr. Nakamura, an eminent Japanese scientist, who has just completed a research of the district of Sanin, where severe earthquakes took place this spring.

Dr. Nakamura says that the earth, instead of contracting as it cools towards the centre, is expanding on account of wireless activity setting up an internal pressure. Pressure such as this from the interior of the earth causes earthquakes.

Other Japanese seismologists, while agreeing that earthquakes are the result of internal pressure and dislocations of the earth, ascribe the latter to the great faults existing in the bed of the ocean off the coast of Japan.

Easy Lessons in AUCTION BRIDGE

New Series by WYNNE FERGUSON

Author of "Ferguson on Auction Bridge"

Copyright 1925 by Hazle, Jr.

ARTICLE No. 3

A rather interesting question has been submitted to the writer: "If your partner bids two hearts, with what type of hand should you double?" There are two separate and distinct cases in which the partner of the no-trump bidder should double an adverse over bid on his right. For example, suppose the dealer bid one no-trump, second hand bid two hearts and you hold the following hand:

Hearts—7, 2
Clubs—K, J, 7, 4
Diamonds—A, J, 10, 5
Spades—K, 10, 2

Don't you think you should double two hearts? If your partner has a no-trump hand, it should be impossible for the heart bidder to make his contract. On the other hand, it would be difficult to score game at no-trump or a suit bid. On the other hand, suppose your partner bids one no-trump, second hand bids two hearts and you hold the following hand:

Hearts—J, 10, 9, 7, 5
Clubs—K, 7, 4, 2
Diamonds—K, 10, 2
Spades—10

Don't you think you ought to double two hearts with this hand? If your partner has a sound no-trump you should defeat the two heart bidder by two or three tricks. These hands are not inconsistent. They merely specify the two types that justify a double of an adverse two bid over partner's no-trump.

The same player has suggested that with strong hands of the first type, it would be better to double with the understanding that the original no-trump bidder should bid his best suit. This type of information double has been tried out many times but is not considered good tactics. The whole purpose of the information double is to force partner who has not yet bid to show his suit. To extend this principle to one who has already bid is carrying the principle too far. By bidding no-trump, a player declares himself as having at least two quick tricks distributed in at least three suits. To ask him to give further information is unnecessary. If he has greater strength than indicated by his no-trump bid, he should be allowed to show this strength voluntarily without being forced to do so by his partner's information double. He has done his duty by bidding no-trump. If he is overbid, his partner should not take up the burden. If he has a good suit, he should bid it. If he has a hand that justifies a double, he should double. If he has a hand that justifies a two no-trump bid, he should bid it. If his hand does not justify any such action, he should pass. It is then up to the no-trump bidder to make another bid if his hand justifies it. Auction is a partnership game and the object of the bidding is to find the best bid of the combined hand, the best bid for twenty-six cards, not thirteen. This can be best arrived at by bidding after partner has bid rather than by use of the information doubles which force bids, because forced bids are always hard to read. They may have strength and they may not. Never voluntarily place yourself in a position where you must guess as to your partner's strength if there is any other way open. Guesses, no matter how brilliant, can never cope with cold, hard facts.

In this connection a restatement of the nature of a business double is pertinent. A business double is a double made for the purpose of defeating the bid doubled. Any double is a business double if made after partner has bid or doubled, or any double of an original suit bid of four or more, or a double of an original two no-trump. In this connection please note that after partner has bid a no-trump and opponents have overbid and the partner of the no-trump bidder has doubled, such a double is a business double and made for the purpose of defeating the bid.

The Wistful Lady.

She was a wistful lady.
A wistful wistful lady.
She did not know nothing
But she did not know much—
Heigh ho!

She wished when she was twenty
And she had time a plenty;
But after while she was forty—
Ah me, life is such—
Well-a-day!

And she gave over wishing.
As a man comes home from fishing
Who has not caught nothing
But who has not caught much—
Heigh ho!

She had a silver minny.
A skimpy thing and flimsy.
It would not be no supper,
But none grow fat on such—
Well-a-day!

It would not do for a skillet
As codfish, pike or millet,
(For she had not learned nothing
Though she had not learned much—
Heigh ho!

And goldfish are more shiny;
But this was bright and tiny.
So she put it in a goldfish bowl
And treated it as such—
Well-a-day!

She wished no more to be wistful,
Of fish she had no flutful;
But she did not have nothing.
And she did not need much—
Heigh ho!

Lived to 99 Eating Light.

The 150th anniversary of the birth of Luigi Cornaro has just been celebrated in Italy. After doctors had given him up to die in his fortieth year he found a way to live to be ninety-nine, or thought he did, and he led an active life to the end. Before he died he wrote a book about his experience in which he said:

"Most people eat too much; over-eating, and overdrinking kill more men every year than fire and sword or a serious epidemic. By eating sparingly and drinking sparingly I cured myself of my ailments less than a year after the doctor had given me up. Eat what suits you but sparingly, never get up from the table with the feeling you could eat no more. Leave it with the feeling you could well eat something else. A serene habit of mind will follow. Most of the bad temper in men and women comes from acids formed by undigested food and drink. But I cannot tell any man exactly what he is to eat or drink. Not even a doctor can do that as well as the man himself. I am very fond of rich pastries, creams, several kinds of fruit, but they hurt me and I eat them no more."

In no meal did Cornaro consume more than twelve ounces of solid food and fourteen ounces of wine. The wine ration may seem large in this country, but would be considered a small quantity in Europe where wine takes the place of water and where claret frequently is diluted with water.

British Journalists Give Impressions of Canada

Having completed a ten-thousand-mile tour of Canada from coast to coast and return at the invitation of E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, ten British journalists representing papers from London, Western England, Wales, Glasgow and Belfast, now broadcast to Canadians their views of the Dominion. These journalists were asked to come to this country to study at first hand the economic, commercial, industrial and agricultural conditions of the Dominion and to thus enable them to meet and combat from their own knowledge the misunderstanding and misrepresentation of Canada and Canadian conditions that have been prevalent in the Old Country of late months. Their trip was an unqualified success from every point of view. The impressions follow:—

R. A. COLWILL,
Western Morning
News, Plymouth.

"Canada has given me a true appreciation of what is meant by great open spaces. The possibilities of this vast country are enormous, and you have as yet barely scratched the surface of its wealth. It is a land which offers great opportunities to men of the right type, but this great Dominion is obviously a young man's country, and one where every man must work. You ask no questions as to his antecedents. You merely ask him to carve out his own career. You take a man for what he himself is worth, not for what his father was. In such a land a man who is a man can work and be happy."

W. D. BERTON,
Daily Chronicle,
London.

"Canada's supreme confidence in her future greatness has made a deep impression upon me. Only men possessed of a great vision and almost overpowering energy would have laid so soundly and on such comprehensive lines the foundations which we have everywhere seen for the coming of a great civilization. The noble plan of parliament buildings, the ambitious university institutions, the network of railways, harbor facilities, vast water powers, electricity schemes, irrigation works, and cities planned out on princely lines, have been conceived for a great tomorrow. Canada is shouldering financial and other burdens in this task of Empire building which call for sympathy and admiration. It is the white man's burden in the world. One stands amazed that so few people should have accomplished so much in so short a time which encompassed Canada's history."

JAS. F. CHAPTER,
Westminster Gazette,
London.

"Since I was here in 1911 there has been great improvement in the roads of Canada. Though the country is said to have passed through hard times lately the enormous number of automobiles now in use appears to indicate a return or rapidly returning prosperity. Very many more trees are conserved on the prairie landscape, the planting of which and the more general use of paint for the decoration of dwellings suggests an increasing desire to have homes rather than mere houses. This spirit, it seems to me, will do more for the consolidation of Canada as a nation than any great increase in those whose chief desire is to get rich quick and quit."

CAPT. E. ALTHAM,
C.B., R.N., Morning Post,
London.

"(1) Canada has laid foundations on generous lines, worthy of a great future. (2) Her waiting spaces and Britain's need for room within the Empire for an overflowing population create a new bond of union. (3) The future prosperity of Canada rests not only upon agricultural development but on increased employment of British labor in both countries for manufacturing her raw materials. (4) Misunderstanding of Old Country conditions is being caused by meagre, misleading, and even malevolent news too often supplied from England to the Canadian Press. (5) The importance of a navy for Canada's growing exports and imports is becoming better appreciated. (6) Canada is a land where men must be men indeed, no wasters, agitators, or traitors to King, Flag and Empire, need apply. That is my predominant impression."

F. G. R. PETERSON,
Times, London.

"At the end of a long journey, in the course of which we have crossed the Dominion twice and travelled nearly ten thousand miles, we are returning to our homes deeply impressed with the immense resources of Canada. We have seen life and conditions of labor in the Maritimes, in the industrial centres of the East, on the prairies and at the Pacific Coast. We have set ourselves to learn something of the twin problems of men and markets which face the Canadian people, and the experience which we have, thus gained will be of inestimable advantage to us in the future. It will enable us to set the proper value on items of news from the Dominion, to refute baseless charges against its own good name, to make known to the young men of our own country the splendid opportunities that await them, in short, so far as lies within our power, to tell the Motherland the truth about Canada."

H. S. READ,
South Wales News,
Cardiff.

"Canada is not a country but a continent boundless in rich resources and richer still in the indefatigable energy of a people whose most conspicuous social characteristics is their devotion to education and research, in wise foresight of the future. For its development the great requirement is population, which can best be supplied by co-operative action of home and Dominion authorities in training would-be immigrants for agricultural work. Training is an essential requisition to rescue men and women from unwilling idleness in the Old Country and put them within reach of the abundant opportunities of the New land is to transform them from conditions of penury into sharers of exhaustless wealth, and in so doing to strengthen the Empire. We are greatly indebted to the Canadian Pacific Railway for their invitation to make the tour."

HUGH MARTIN,
Daily News, London.

"Canada's need is the Old Country's opportunity. Equally Britain's is the new country's opportunity. From the Atlantic to the Pacific seaboard I have heard the cry, 'Send us men; send us capital,' and have found conclusive proof that once again the new world has the power to redress the balance of the old; have we and have you the will to make that power effective? It seems to me to be largely a matter of understanding and sympathy. Patriotism is not enough, but translated into terms of mutual help I know is capable of leading us both into a new promised land. Let us pull together."

JOHN A. BUIST,
Glasgow Herald.

"Every province of Canada claims that it is the land of opportunity. I believe that each is entitled to make that claim and that the opportunity is for more people who are willing to work primarily on the land and are determined to succeed. The vast open spaces must be populated. As a Scotchman who has met many old countrymen on this wonderful tour via the Canadian Pacific Railway across the Dominion I should like to see a large influx of immigrants belonging to the race which played such a noble part in the pioneer work in the land of promise for the young and vigorous. The Old Country can still produce that vigor. What prevents them from coming? They lack the means, not the desire. I believe that if our home government and the Dominion Government could agree to assist them to a greater extent than has hitherto been done, the main obstacle to the flow of Scottish immigration into Canada would be removed. The people must be found, if not from the Old Land then taken from elsewhere, but I think you would prefer the old stock."

CHAS. J. JORY,
Daily Telegraph,
London.

"I became more and more impressed with the boundless possibilities of this great Dominion every day of my tour. From Halifax to Vancouver that impression grew from wonder to amazement. Surely for a man who will work and for the woman who will help him there is no land so rich in resource, so full of opportunities. All honor, then, to the brave men who made this possible, to the pioneers who blazed a nation's way through brush and canyon, who adventured over river and lake and prairie, and to the Canadian statesmen whose vision was not that of ordinary men."

JOHN SAYERS, Belfast Telegraph.

"Canada fills me with wonder and admiration. That a comparatively small population should have accomplished so much in so short a time is marvellous, and from what I have seen I am convinced that I have seen I am convinced that the tapping of the Dominion's resources, particularly of Alberta and British Columbia, has only begun. If the two urgent needs of men and capital—British if possible—can be supplied, there seems to be no limit to the future of the country. I am impressed by the loyalty, the beauty, and the gluck of Canada, and I take off my hat to the courage of the early explorers and settlers. They laid foundations upon which it should be an honor to be today. Floreat Canada."

IN HONOR OF A GREAT EVENT

Birthdays are always important occasions, especially if one is very young or very old. Before long The Youth's Companion will be a hundred years old, and the event is going to be made a memorable one for The Companion's many friends. So, although the date is not until April 16, 1927, preparations will begin with 1926.

In honor of its birthday The Companion will come to you next year at the new low price of $2. It will be dressed in its party clothes, with new cover designs, enlarged illustrations, new brilliantly clear type, and over 200 pages more than last year. It will contain 9 book-length serial stories, fascinating mystery stories, tales of adventure on land and sea, the new "Make-It-and-Do-It" Pages, radio, games, books, and puzzles, interesting special articles, and the ever-delightful Children's Page. Don't miss this great year of The Youth's Companion; subscribe now and receive:

1. The Youth's Companion—52 issues in 1926, and

2. The remaining issues of 1925. All for only $2.

3. Or include McCall's Magazine, the monthly authority on fashions. Both publications, only $2.50.

BIG BAILLIE FARM IS SOLD

Ex-Warden Ed. A. Orr, of Clarkson, Buys it for Son

There was a big farm transfer this week when ex-Warden Ed. A. Orr, of Clarkson, purchased the big Sir Frank Baillie farm west of Oakville. The price cannot be ascertained.

This farm contains two hundred and fifty acres and has one of the best stock barns and stables in Ontario.

The barns were built by the late Sir Frank Baillie to house his champion herd of Shorthorns which he had gotten together just a short time before his death. These Shorthorns were sold to Duncan Campbell, present Liberal candidate in Halton.

Mr. Orr gets the place as a going concern, stock, implements, feed, etc., and immediate possession.—Oakville Star.

DRUMQUIN

This week Geo. Featherstone, of Maple Avenue Farm, Drumquin, showed The Star a basket of huge Wolfe River apples. Twelve of these bright red beauties filled an eleven-quart basket, and the twelve apples weighed twelve pounds. They certainly were a picture.

Mr. Featherstone left another apple at this office which measured a neat fifteen inches in circumference and weighed a pound. It is a nice red in color and has been admired by numerous callers.

The Wolfe River is not a commonly grown variety in this locality, but certainly these apples attain a great size.—Oakville Star.

CHARTERS STREETSVILLE MEETING MOST ENTHUSIASTIC EVER HELD HERE

Conservative Standard Bearer In Peel Given a Rousing
Reception By Electors of This Village at Public Meeting on Monday Night Last

J. C. HODGINS AND COL. KENNEDY, M.P.P., ALSO SPOKE

Streetsville had a meeting on Monday night of this week that will live in the memory of those who had the privilege of being present at it for many a long day. Not since the day in war-time, when patriotic fervor was at its height, had anything like it been witnessed here, and the strange part of the whole affair is that it was purely spontaneous on the part of the audience, and utterly unsought on the part of the men on the platform.

The occasion was the Conservative meeting held in the interests of the candidate, Sam Charters. Workers in the village had made the platform gay and attractive with flags and bunting, the emblem of the country being conspicuous everywhere. Bright lights and eager faces supplied the rest of the setting for this remarkable meeting, while the spirit of patriotism that never dies in the heart of a Conservative supplied the fervor on which the meeting was winged out of the commonplace into something little short of a miracle.

John Weylie, veteran campaigner, was called to the chair, and in the courtly way for which he is so well known welcomed the candidate to the village. With Mr. Weylie on the platform were the candidate, Sam Charters; Col. T. L. Kennedy, M.P.P., and J. C. Hodgins, better known to the audience as Onlooker.

It was Miss Ruth Greig who struck the patriotic note of the evening, and the response to the chord was overwhelming. Miss Greig recited a beautiful patriotic poem by Owen Smiley on the Maple Leaf and the Flag, producing a crimson leaf and later waving a small Union Jack. It was when she came to the conclusion of her number and declared in impassioned tones that "Britons never, never would be slaves" that the pent-up feelings of the audience broke loose.

Every man, woman and child sprang to their feet, they caught up the air that Miss Greig was singing, and finished it with her, and then in a larger burst of enthusiasm sang it through again.

A similar demonstration took place when Sam Charters finished his address, in which a closing reference to the flag was made, and in which he hoped that the Union Jack will float over Canada until it is replaced by the white flag of universal brotherhood floating over a new world of men. Again the audience rose and sang in resounding strains the good old war song, "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall." "It's a queer sort of political meeting," said one old Tory war-horse, wiping his eyes, "but it's got the real kind of spirit in it!"

Col. Kennedy paid a tribute to Peel County as the foremost county in the Province, first in intelligence, first in the exercise of the franchise, polling 82 per cent. of the votes it has, with the best record on Victory Loan subscriptions, with more children that can read and write, with fewer chattel mortgages against its property than any other county.

"This is the county," he said, "which is asking Sam Charters to be its representative. Mr. Charters was asked by both Liberals and Conservatives to come out and represent them in those days when the country needed men of unselfish character to pilot it through the dark days of the war.
Your duty and your interest are involved in seeing that your candidate is returned with an overwhelming majority."

Mr. Charters gave a review of the failures of the King Government to keep its promises with regard to various reductions in debt and taxation.
Instead of a reduction of the public debt, there has been an increase of over 20 millions, and that does not take into account the 234 millions of guarantees to the railroads. The interest on this debt means $9,000 this year to the people of Streetsville,
$104,000 to the people of Toronto Township. And there is no use in saying that it does not have to be paid. It is being paid in salary taxes, in income tax and in customs.

Mr. Charters went on to show needless extravagance on the part of the Government that had promised economy in commissions, in positions made for unusual officers at high salaries, at unnecessary salary increases, and showed how all these useless expenditures were opposed by the Conservatives and by some of the Progressives. But the Liberals did not seem to care, Mr. Charters said, they went on spending as if nothing in the shape of an election loomed ahead of them, when they must give an account to the people.

A heckler asked the speaker, when mention was made of 539,000 Canadians going to the United States during the four years of Mackenzie King's regime and paying $8 per head for the privilege of getting into Uncle Sam's domain, how many had returned. "About 42,000," replied the candidate, "and most of these were tourists!" "Thank you!" replied the heckler, and subsided.

The failure of the Government to see the need of encouraging immigration, and the large sums of money spent in useless immigration were touched upon. And then the candidate got down to the main issue of the election—the tariff. Mr. Charters pointed out the reasons why Canada must have a protective tariff, why the people of Streetsville and Toronto Township will not be able to make ends meet unless they get such a policy favoring Canada, and a very detailed statement was given of the applications from various manufacturers, right in the county, for relief from adverse conditions imposed by the United States high tariff.

"I feel sure," said Mr. Charters in conclusion, "that the people of Peel will be loyal to the party which has worked for them, and which has sought their good and their prosperity on every occasion, the party which has stood by the country in the darkest days that ever beset it, through the stress and strain of the war. I feel sure that they will be true to the old policies and to the old flag, till the white flag of the Prince of Peace floats over Canada, and the true brotherhood of man is proclaimed."

Mr. Hodgins made a strong appeal for the candidature of Mr. Charters, whose greatest fault, he said, is his extreme modesty. "I handed Mr.
Charters," he said, "a letter written by Hon. Arthur Meighen, in which the leader of the Opposition spoke of the deep loyalty and unselfishness with which Mr. Charters had served his party and his leader. But you never heard a word of that letter from Mr. Charters, although he owns five papers in which he could have published it. Neither did he ever refer to it on a public platform."

"The only reason Sam Charters did not do things during the four years that the King Government was in power was that the sign, 'No Conservatives need apply,' was hung on every Liberal door at Ottawa. They would not permit the Conservatives to undertake anything progressive and closed every avenue of usefulness!"

"Bankers, manufacturers and even farmers are seriously alarmed at the condition of affairs at present. You cannot replace the men and women, 106,000 of them, who have gone over to the States during the past year.
I do not blame them. But it has been a costly gift to make to Uncle Sam, when you value each human being at $5,000. We have made a pretty costly gift when we count up the 539,000 Canadians that have gone over to the States in the past four years! How can we grow as a country if we cannot hold our own people?"

"Meighen believes in a tariff which will insure the stability of the capitalist, wages to the working man, and fair prices to the consumer. He believes in giving the United States a Roland for an Oliver. England had free trade, but she is finding that she, too, must protect her own interests, and I believe that very soon England, too, will be a highly protected country."

"Mouths are markets," said the speaker, "and it is better to feed ratepayers and patriots than our commercial rivals. The best thing for Canada is to have her villages develop into towns, her towns into cities, and her cities into metropolises. The home market is the valuable market in all countries. The machine has taken the place of the worker, and if Canada can manufacture for herself and keep her own money in her own country, she will grow in wealth and in importance."

"The towns and cities are the safeguard of the farms. It is not always the cleverest boy who stays on the home acres. From the farm come the brightest and best minds to the city. Such men never forget what they owe to the environment and influence of the home farm, and they never repudiate the debt. Yet a political party has tried to sow hate between the town and city, and we are paying for it!"

Mr. Hodgins told in detail the story of the railroads of Canada, and showed how far from fact Mr. Parker is when he speaks of the railroads as "Meighen's Millstone." As a matter of fact, it was through Sir Henry Drayton that the nationalization of railroads came about after he had conferred with an expert on the best plan of cleaning up the whole matter, which had been a bugbear to many a government. Mr. Meighen had actually nothing to do with the matter.

SAMUEL CHARTERS

Saw-offs between Liberals and Progressives, Mr. Hodgins said, are reputed between right-minded men of both parties. The great bulk of the Liberals, he declared, are protectionists first and Liberals afterwards.
They are going to vote Conservative in this election because they are pa-triotists. They were patriots at the time of the union of parties in Union Government, and there is as strong a need for their patriotic offices to-day as there was then. These are the men and women who think more of their country than they do of a label.

Very much delighted was the audience with Mr. Hodgins' picture of the brother of the editor of The Globe, a prisoner in China, making an appeal to the good old Union
Jack. "He did not then talk of a Canadian flag," laughed the speaker, "it was the British flag he sought for protection. If the talk had been of a Canadian flag and of a Canadian navy, God help him, he would have been a prisoner yet."

"There was a glorious response to the tocsin of war," the speaker declared, "and there will be a response just as glorious on October 29."

During the evening the audience were treated to solos by Mrs. R. H.
Greig and Mrs. Hector Wright which were splendidly rendered and loudly applauded.

The accompanists of the evening were: Mrs. Hec. Graydon for Mrs.
Hec. Wright; Mrs. W. H. Davis for Mrs. R. Greig, and Miss Hicks for Miss Ruth Greig.

That she had to go away from home to learn how she should appreciate the blessing of being a Canadian was the opinion of Mrs. J. H. Edmison, wife of the former pastor of Mt.
Pleasant Church, as she spoke at the annual thank offering of the Women's Missionary Society of that church.
Mrs. Edmison was a delegate to the Presbyterian Alliance convention in Wales this summer, and described her travels in the Old Land.

At a largely attended meeting of the members of the congregation of Knox Church, held last Monday evening, Rev. James McFaul, of Tottenham and Beeton, was given a unanimous call to the pastorate of the church. Mr. McFaul was here on Sunday, Sept. 27, when he preached able sermons. It is hoped that he will accept the call. If he decides in doing so the date of his induction will be announced in due course.—Milton

Love Gives Itself

THE STORY OF A BLOOD FEUD

BY ANNIE S. SWAN.

"Love gives itself and is not bought."—Longfellow.

CHAPTER XXXII.—(Cont'd.)

"Three bags of nuggets! Eh?" repeated Peter Garvock, with the vivid interest of an eager school boy. "Representing how much?"

"Between forty and fifty thousand pounds. We took it down to Dawson and had it assayed and carefully put away, then we came back here."

"Wasn't he excited over it?"

"No—only rather like a man who had got rest for his soul at last. He said we'd spend the summer here, and get back to civilization, possibly to Europe, in the fall. But from the day he found the loot he began to decline in health. The lung trouble came back in full intensity. I've had the doctor out several times. Finally he took to his bed and yesterday he died."

Rankine's steady voice broke in his throat, and he turned his head away. "It's a queer experience, Peter, for a man to be shut up in such solitude, with a soul drawing near to the other side! Affery was without fear. He talked of it as the great adventure, beside which everything else paled. And he died last night as peacefully as a child, with his cheek on his hand, and a boy's smile on his face."

With that Rankine picked himself up and walked away a few steps; and Garvock understood. It was wonderful the understanding that was between those two from that moment henceforth! The past, with all its bitterness, was wiped out as if it had never been.

Presently Rankine came back and sat down again.

"Affery hasn't a relation living in the world; and he himself said, hardly a friend. He has left me everything he possesses, and his wishes were as explicit as if they had been set down in black-and-white by any lawyer! As a matter of fact, his will was made by the Dawson lawyer. He knew the whole story of my life, Peter, and the idea of redeeming Stair seemed to please him. It was the last thing he spoke of before he fell asleep. He said it was the thing he had been sent into the world to do."

"So you go back to Stair a rich man, Alan, after all!"

"A rich man as far as money is concerned, Peter, but a poor man in some respects, for I'll never look on his like again! I've been through the hardships, and in New York I touched the rock-bottom of human misery. But I'd go through the whole of the last two years cheerfully if it would bring Affery back! He gave me a few instructions about the kind of folk I was to help as I had opportunity. Like me, he has been on the round-ups, and the lumber camps, and he knew that it is not always the working poor that most need the helping hand. I'll never be able to go back and live in idleness at Stair! Never again, Peter. Life has shown me too much."

"The first thing you have to do is to get back to Stair," said Peter, "and hear what the women-folks have to say. And I am wondering how soon I can get back to Dawson to send Carlotta a cablegram. Won't you come back with me and sleep at the rest-home-to-night?"

Rankine shook his head. "I won't leave him till he is under the sod, Peter. And that will be tomorrow. The Presbyterian minister will come out from Dawson, and we'll bury him close by. He chose the spot. Then I'll leave him to the music of the Klondyke till the great silence enfolds him in its bosom."

Garvock, a little awed, in truth, stood back and looked at Rankine's uplifted face. For the time being, he had not much thought to spare for Carlotta, but was loyal in his fealty and love to the friend who had lifted him from despair.

Garvock knew that he was in the presence of a greater thing even than the love between man and woman—the deathless love of a man for his friend!

"I'd like to see him, Alan."

"Come, then," said Rankine, and led the way to the door of the shack.

CHAPTER XXXIII. LOVE CLAIMS ITS OWN.

Carlotta, with two letters on her knee, sat on the terrace steps at the back of Stair on the morning of a glorious Twelfth.

For the first time within the memory of man, no gun was out on Bessie Hill, the shooting tenant having gone, and the Laird of Stair being far away from his own demesne.

Three months' complete rest had undoubtedly helped. Carlotta had taken away the wan look and the sharp outline from her face, filled the curves once more, and restored all the waste which two years' incessant and exacting work had made.

The call to action had come again, and in her hand she held the contract for her winter's work.

It had nothing to do with Graham Madox, with whom the rupture was complete. Carlotta was sorry for it, and further was conscious of an odd reluctance to sign the document, though it was generous in all its provisions, and there was not one condition embodied in its elaborate page which she could desire to alter.

Having made the stupendous effort, she felt, somehow, as if she had come to the end of her resources.

Presently, when Judy came to her she found her with knit brows, set lips, and stormy eyes.

"This ought to go to-day, Judy, and something inside of me refuses to sign it!"

Judy nestled down on the grassy step by her side.

"Then wait till the inspiration comes. Is there any hurry?"

"The man must not be kept waiting, for he wants a holiday himself, and is going to Marienbad the day after to-morrow."

"Well, Marienbad isn't the end of the earth. Put it by till to-morrow. Do you know this is the first time in Stair history there hasn't been a gun on the hills! Let us get one, Carlotta, and go out and kill something!"

Carlotta hardly smiled, though she loved the vagaries of her sister's mood, and usually entered into them with full zest.

"I think it is very selfish of Claud and Cicely not to have come," went on Judy discontentedly.

"But they are coming next week—"

"Too late. They should have been here yesterday. It will be like keeping Christmas a week into the New Year! Well, here comes Baddeley. Now I wonder what she wants?"

It may be said here that Ann Christy and Mrs. Baddeley had shared, all the summer, the housekeeper's sitting-room at Stair, and were the best of friends, despite sundry discussions, which sometimes waxed a little acrid, regarding the relative merits of the Scotch and the English. The common bond between them was love for her who was now mistress of Stair, and surely never had there been a dearer one!

All the county knew now that the famous Margaret Tenderden was wife to Alan Rankine, or perhaps his widow. And on the whole the county behaved well. Judy had simply entrusted the secret to Bobbie Sanderson, and instructed him to spread it abroad as it ought to be spread; and Bobbie had come up to high-water mark. But the pity and the sadness of it all weighed down his "bright spirit," because personally he had small hope of Alan's ultimate return. Though he was honestly glad that Peter Garvock should have risen so remarkably to the occasion, he did not believe that he would ever find Alan, much less bring him back.

Mrs. Baddeley's thin, eager face wore a very odd expression as she advanced towards the ladies, addressing herself to her own mistress.

"Pleas'em, it's Mr. Madox in the library."

"Mr. Madox!"

Carlotta and Judy stared at one another in amazed silence.

"This is very strange, but on the whole I think I'm glad, Judy! If I'm going back to the stage I would rather go with Graham Madox. This thing will never go now. Take care of it till I come back, and if I am more than twenty minutes come after me, for I shall need you."

Carlotta made constant and frank demands on her sister-in-law's time and devotion, and the rendering of such services as were in her power made Judy's allegiance to Carlotta complete. Together they had taken the tangled affairs of Stair in hand, and Carlotta's quick imagination and wide sweep of view, allied to Judy's strong common sense and practical application thereof, had mightily astonished old Samuel Richardson and even caused him to change his mind regarding the business ability of the sex.

Judy sat down on the grassy slope after Carlotta went, and with her chin in her hand, pondered on the strange fate that had cast their lot together and added such a unique and vivid page to the history of Stair.

Carlotta's hope and courage were invincible, and although no word of Peter Garvock's success or return had come to them, she simply rose up each morning saying it was all right, and that things might happen any day.

Judy had caught the invincible spirit too, and though her face was thoughtful at that moment it was not sad. She was thinking of what this visit of Graham Madox might mean, and that probably the middle of September or early October would see Carlotta once more domiciled in London.

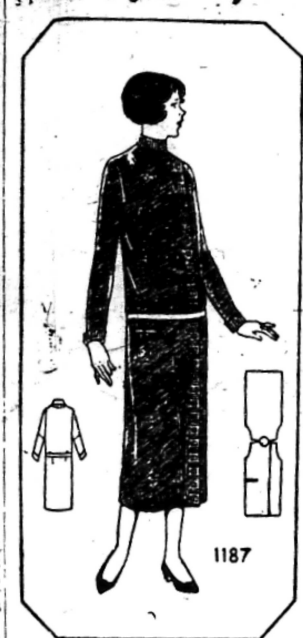

The Professor and his wife had gone for a long-planned excursion to the Black Forest, and were expected at Stair to spend the latter part of that summer.

Judy wondered in the depths of her practical soul whether it would be possible to find a six months' tenant for Stair, and determined to speak of it to Carlotta that very day. But she must first wait until she heard the result of the interview with Madox. Personally Judy had always liked Madox, and had admired his treatment of Carlotta, and forgiven him for making love to her.

The coolness between Carlotta and Madox had arisen from her refusal to take the chief part in a play Madox had written especially for her. For this decision she had given no reason, even to Judy; she had simply said she did not care for it and would not take it. Madox, keenly sensitive, as most of the writing fraternity—especially in the dramatic world—are, had resented it; and Carlotta, a little worn and fretted in spirit by the long strain, had seized the opportunity to break away.

(To be concluded.)

THE STRAIGHT AND SLENDER MODE.

Long tight-fitting sleeves and the high neck are important features of this new fall frock which follows the straight and slender mode, and buttons at the side front from the high collar to the hem. Fine repp fashions this model, which relies on its handsome trimming braid to lend distinction. The front and back are cut in one-piece, and a set-in pocket is conveniently placed at the right side. The diagram shows the simple design of No. 1187, which is in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years, or 34, 36, and 38 inches bust. Size 18 years (or 36 bust) requires 3½ yards of 36-inch, or 3 yards of 40-inch material. Price 20 cents.

Home sewing brings nice clothes within the reach of all, and to follow the mode is delightful when it can be done so easily and economically, by following the styles pictured in our new Fashion Book. A chart accompanying each pattern shows the ma-

EARN MONEY AT HOME

THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS Are Earned Each Month
I Know Because I Pay It!

No matter where you live you can work for me. If it is money you want, read this.

T.W. CHADBURN
PRESIDENT

HOW would you like to earn extra money without leaving your home—without neglecting your other duties? Not by canvassing or selling, but in a pleasant, private way—right in your own home!

Even though you have no actual need to earn money, wouldn't it be very pleasant to sit down this afternoon or this evening and in an easy restful way turn your spare time into dollars?

Here Is What You Do

With a simple hand knitting machine you knit wool socks for me. I pay you cash for the knitting—so much a pair—and I keep you supplied with the yarn that you use. I sell the socks my workers knit to wholesale firms here in Toronto—Hundreds of thousands of pairs. I have immediate sale for every pair that I can possibly get.

Experience Unnecessary

Each worker learns from a set of simple, clear instructions. They work as much or as little as they please, filling in the hours that best suit their convenience. Of course the more socks they knit the larger their pay-check.

These Workers Are Happy With Their Earnings

I have over one thousand letters in my office written by men and women who are only too glad to tell others of their success. I only wish that I could print them all for you to read! Think how pleased Mrs. George Poole of Ontario must be that she sent me her name four years ago. Here is part of her last letter: "I have had my machine over four years, since taking up the work I have never been without money. As we live three miles from town I have always wanted a car, and now I have one which my Auto Knitter is paying for. Last winter I cleared $525.00." And part of a very interesting letter from Mrs. James Shaw, also of Ontario, reads as follows: "We have had our machine three years. Last fall from October until two days before Christmas, it brought me in $400.00." While most of my workers are women, hundreds of men find it profitable to turn their spare time into dollars. Listen to Mr. Arlington Fraser, who lives in a small Ontario town: "It was a little afraid of starting as I had never seen a knitting machine, but with the help of the instructions it was easy. I have only had the machine five months and I have made $325.00 in my spare time." When you read these simply written records of what others are doing, is there any reason why you cannot do the same?

My beautiful booklet giving full information about Auto Knitting is free. It is illustrated with photographs and letters of those who are making a great success of this Home-Earning plan. I would like very much to send you a copy. I know you will be surprised to learn how valuable your spare time is.

Simply fill in the coupon below and by return mail you will receive the booklet. And please remember, there is not the slightest obligation on your doing this. It will be my pleasure to send it. Why not clip the coupon right now and mail it as soon as you can?

Here and There

In the last fiscal year 3,848 homestead entries were granted in the Prairie Provinces, aggregating an approximate area of 614,880 acres, while, in addition, 710 soldier grants of 113,600 acres, make up a grand total of 728,480 acres so settled.

In 1915 Canada exported no wheat to China. In 1918 she sent only eight bushels to Japan. In 1924 China imported over 5,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat and over 1,500,000 barrels of flour, while Japan took 7,000,000 bushels of wheat and 110,000 barrels of flour. It is predicted these figures will be well beaten for the current year.

The Grand Challenge Cup, emblematic of the First Aid Championship of the entire system of the Canadian Pacific Railway, will be competed for at the Place Viger Hotel, Montreal, November 15. The champions in a knock-out competition among Eastern and Western teams respectively, will fight it out for the trophy.

Plans are already being laid to make the 1925 Eastern International Dogleg Derby an even greater success than in any previous year, and it is reported that the prize money will be considerably increased next winter, with the object of attracting more teams and mushers from the West and the United States.

Fire Prevention Week, October 4-10, was observed throughout the Dominion, and to mark the sense of the importance of the occasion Mr. Grant Hall, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, broadcast an appeal by wire to every officer and employee of the system "to co-operate as in the past and set a good example by thoroughly cleaning up all premises."

Canada's great outlook, says a recent issue of the London Outlook, is that she wants more people, but of the right type, namely, sturdy agricultural workers with enterprise, initiative and endurance. Enthusiastic letters from emigrants under the joint scheme of settling 3,000 families in Canada are bound to have their healthy effect on relatives and friends dissatisfied with their lot in England.

E. F. L. Sturdee, general Passenger Agent for the Orient of the C.P.R., with headquarters at Hong Kong, has been appointed Assistant General Passenger Agent of the system at Montreal. His duties commenced here in October. He was relieved of his other work owing to ill-health, but the climate of Canada soon restored him to physical well-being. He has a long record of service with the C.P.R., dating back to his first appointment at Saint John in 1894.

Sixty bushels of wheat at every tick of the clock is the rate at which the Canadian Pacific Railway have carried the grain into the elevators this season. To keep up this unprecedented rush, it has been necessary to move one car-load of grain out of Winnipeg at every one minute and twenty-three seconds of the twenty-four hour day. Grain delivered at the head of the lakes by the Canadian Pacific in September alone would fill a fleet of 200 ships, each with a cargo of 200,000 bushels.

Back from an extended tour of inspection over the company's western lines, E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, found a very marked improvement in the West as compared with that which had existed when he last went across the country. He thought the spirit of the people was much more optimistic and with very good reason since he considered it safe to say that 300,000,000 bushels was not too high an estimate for the total Canadian wheat yield this year. He noticed throughout the country a sustained interest in immigration and a more general realization that therein lay the swiftest remedy for most of Canada's difficulties.

ISLINGTON

Mr. H. R. Pattison, for the past two and a half years leader of Islington Presbyterian Choir, has resigned to accept a position as soloist in Euclid Ave. United Church, Toronto. The choir members gave him a farewell surprise at his home in Toronto last Wednesday night and presented him with a cut glass water set. Mr. A. M. Allen has been offered the dual position of organist and leader and it is hoped he will accept as he is a musician of outstanding repute.

Last Wednesday evening in the United Church here, Rev. J. S. Harrington, a returned missionary from China, gave an excellent lecture illustrated by lantern slides on "The Romance of China." The meeting was under the auspices of the Upper Canada Bible Society. The three churches here contributed far too small an audience, considering the importance of the theme and the object. A house-to-house canvass will be instituted by committees from the Anglican, United and Presbyterian Churches.

At the last meeting of the executive of the Islington Ratepayers' Association it was decided to call a meeting of all the ratepayers to discuss the advisability of erecting a firehall and procuring a small engine and hose of the community.

The recent formal opening of two new rooms at Eatonville School (better known as Swamp School), was celebrated with fitting ceremony. Addresses were delivered by Trustees Hughes and Marshall, Reeve Tier, Inspector Campbell, M.A., Dr. McNamara and Miss D. Reaman, former teachers; and by two former pupils who began their school life there in the persons of A. Mercer and J. H. Beamish. A fine program was given by the pupils, assisted by outside talent. This was followed by inspection of the new rooms, luncheon to the visitors, and a dance free to all who could manoeuvre the outlandish modern "trots." Across the hall from the new entrance above the door appears this inscription, "S. No. 2, Etobicoke, Erected 1870." This is the old brick building which served for so many years and now remains at the rear in a "T" formation as a third class room. About twenty years ago, when increased accommodation was needed, instead of enlarging the brick building, a separate frame structure was built in another part of the grounds. This latter building was torn down this summer to make way for the more modern, furnace heated addition. Its location being at the corner of Bloor St. and Brown's line, the Eaton farms surround it on all corners. Through the generosity of the T. Eaton Co. the grounds were greatly enlarged a few years ago. In the late "Seventies" this school site was surrounded by dense bush, poorly drained. Hence the name "Swamp School," now under the more acceptable appellation "Eatonville School."

Miss M. Fisher is principal and Miss McKay and Mrs. K. Gooding are the assistants. The foundation of the one-storey addition provides for a second storey when needed—possibly only a couple of years, as the section includes the thickly populated district garden lots. The total cost of the new addition is $14,500.

Early Shannon L.O.B.A. No. 550, was organized two years ago and was named after Early Shannon, one of the fine young men of Islington. The recent second anniversary and birthday party held in the community hall was an important milestone in the history of Orangemen here. Wor. Bro. Isaac Smith of Toronto, presided. A new banner, bearing a picture of Toronto, and dedicated by Rev. Thompson, was unveiled by Sister Scott, as Dodds. This banner costing $600, and a new piano valued at $400, were presented to the lodge by Bro. Smith, after subscriptions. At the banquet which followed, Mayor Foster, Toronto, who lived here as a boy, was one of the speakers. On behalf of the lodge, Mrs. Shannon, mother of Early, was presented with an immense basket of roses by the Mayor.

Miss Jean Tier, daughter of Reeve Tier, recently graduated as a nurse. She will shortly take up her professional duties. The Continuation room of our school, under Principal H. S. White, has been selected for observation and critic work for first class teachers-in-training at Toronto Normal School. A new bus route was inaugurated today (Monday), to carry Islington and Lambton pupils to Weston High School. It leaves Bloor and Dundas at 8 a.m. and returning leaves Weston H. S. at 4 o'clock. The fare each way is ten cents.

A reception was tendered to Rev. N. Argyle Huribut and family last night by the congregation of St. Paul's United Church, Milton. Rev. Mr. Huribut succeeds Rev. T. H. Bole, who went to the United Church at Walkerton. The reception was largely attended and an enjoyable and social evening spent by everybody. Refreshments were served.

Here and There

The output of silver from Cobalt during July amounted to about 400,000 ounces, according to preliminary estimates. This had a value of less than $800,000, or at the rate of about $3,500,000 a year.

All attendance records for the Central Canada Exhibition were broken this year. There was a total attendance of 349,200, or 42,400 greater than the previous record of 307,000, made in 1922.

The first Italian ship to visit Vancouver in several years will be the steamer Piave II, of the Navigazione Libera Triestina, due here at the end of this month. This boat will inaugurate a new service between this port and points on the Mediterranean.

Production of paper by the Powell River Company, at Vancouver, will be increased 80 per cent by the completion of a $5,000,000 development programme, now under way, according to an announcement made by M. J. Scanlan, a director of the company. At present the plant is turning out about 75,000 tons a year.

Signs of returning prosperity to Canada are evidenced by the fact that more Canadians are registered in the Canadian Pacific Rocky Mountain resorts during the past week than at any time since the beginning of the year. These resorts, which are usually filled almost entirely by Americans, contain a guest list last week which is 50 per cent Canadian.

Production of gold in Ontario for the first six months of this year amounted to $11,506,219, as compared with $11,810,080 in the corresponding period of last year, according to a report issued by the Provincial Department of Mines. Silver production increased from $3,262,100 to $3,792,662. Total mineral production was $41,560,355, as compared with $37,997,778.

John Edwin Hoag and Frank S. Wilton, who travelled across the entire continent in a small motor-boat arrived recently in Montreal and moored their craft to Canadian Pacific Pier No. 8 having come from Astoria, Oregon, via Columbia River, Celilo Falls, Fort Benton, the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers, the Chicago Drainage Canal and Lake Michigan since May, 20th. From Montreal they continued their journey to New York and returned to the States, via Canadian Pacific Railway to Vancouver and Seattle in order to see the country.

The groundwork for what promises to be a big industry is now being developed by the Singer Sewing Machine Company at Thurso, a point on the Canadian Pacific Railway, on the north shore line to Ottawa. It is planned by the Singer Company to manufacture at Thurso all the woodwork required for their numerous plants in different parts of the world. Work on the new plant is being pushed with all possible speed and it is anticipated that shipments from Thurso will commence sometime early next year.

While the Canadian Railway Commission is besieged with all kinds of applications for reductions in Canadian freight rates, the Western group of railways in the United States is asking for a five per cent increase and the northwestern section of the group is asking more than that "as a measure of relief." Some of these roads are in the hands of the receivers. Yet these American railways already have higher rates than the Canadian roads, the freight revenues in the U.S.A. being 1.28 cents per ton mile on western lines as compared with 1.011 cents on all Canadian railways. The average American rate is 23 per cent above the average Canadian rate. Owing to the low grain rates in Canada, the C.P.R. average rate is 1.011 per ton mile, so that the average rate on American western lines is more than 30 per cent above the average C.P.R. rate.

Unveiling The "Altar of Peace" at Vancouver

The President Harding International Good-Will Memorial located in Stanley Park, Vancouver and erected by Kiwanis International through the voluntary subscriptions of its 95,000 members in the United States and Canada, was unveiled by John H. Moss, president of a large gathering of both United States and Canadian government officials and members of Kiwanis.

The memorial was designed by Charles Marega, a well known Italian sculptor of Vancouver, whose scheme was first decided upon, it was the intention of the American Kiwanis Clubs to raise the funds on their side of the border and to present the memorial to Canada. Canadian Kiwanis, however, insisted upon contributing towards the fund and the memorial was thus erected by the joint efforts of the United States and Canadian clubs.

At the unveiling ceremony, the Dominion Government was represented by Hon. Dr. J. H. King and Dr. G. T. Harding, brother of the late president. United States Kiwanis was represented by International President John H. Moss, and International Past President Victor S. Johnson and Edmund F. Arras. The Canadian Pacific Railway was represented by Frank W. Peters, General Superintendent at Vancouver. Several of the United States delegates stayed over at Banff and Lake Louise and other points in the Canadian Pacific Rockies before proceeding to Vancouver. The memorial itself is throughout a made-in-Canada product, being designed by Canadians and made of Canadian materials and by Canadian labor.

The site of the memorial is the spot where the late

President Harding made his last public speech, when just before he died in 1923 he visited Canada. Warren G. Harding, late president of the U. S. A. was a chartered member of the Kiwanis Club at Marion, Ohio, his home town.

An extract from the speech made by the Chief Executive of the United States on that occasion, written in bronze mured prayer of hope of the cosmopolitan tourist who reads it as he passes through the park, is as follows:

"What an object lesson of peace is shown today by our two countries to all the world. No grim-faced fortifications mark our frontiers, no huge battleships patrol our dividing waters, no stealthy spies lurk our tranquil border hamlets. Only a scrap of paper, recording hardy properties on the Great Lakes, and only humble mileposts mark the inviolable boundary-line for thousands of miles through farm and forest."

"Our protection is in our fraternity, our armor is our faith, and the tie that binds, more firmly each year, is ever-increasing acquaintance and comradeship through interchange of citizens; and the compact is not perishable God grant, but of fair and honorable dealing, which shall continue for all time."

The memorial, which is known as "The Altar of Peace," has been referred to as the only material symbol of fortification, outside of mileposts, to outline the invisible demarcation of the thousands of miles of border line separating the two countries from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Southern Alberta is Beekeeper's Paradise

Upper—Examining the bees in George Riedel's Apiary in the Coldside district.
Lower—A colony of bees in the Riedel Apiary.

Southern Alberta's irrigated districts, with their large fields of alfalfa and sweet clover, promise to become the beekeeper's paradise within the next five years.

Two years ago, less than 10,000 pounds of honey were produced in Alberta. Last year, 60,000 pounds were produced—and 82 carloads imported into the West to supply the demand. This year, on the C.P.R. irrigated project at Lethbridge, there will be produced more than 100,000 pounds. And this is just a start.

"Southern Alberta's irrigated districts will be shipping trainloads—not carloads—of honey to the markets within five years," declared Frank C. Pellatt, field editor of the American Bee Journal, Hamilton, Illinois, on the occasion of his visit to Southern Alberta late in July this year. "This is the greatest potential honey producing district in North America."

Today, one apiarist in the Coldside district on the C.P.R. irrigated project has 600 colonies of bees. This is the spring of 1924 and started with 900 colonies. In 1926 he will have 1800 colonies and will make more than 150 tons of honey. This year his bees will make him about 50 tons, and one wholesale firm having branches throughout the West is handling the whole output.

Each colony of bees makes about 200 pounds in a season, though one colony at the Lethbridge Experiment mental Farm broke all records for Canada by making 472 pounds in the season of 1923. A record of 21 pounds in one day by one colony was made in 1923 when the bees at the Experimental Farm averaged 189 pounds for the season, the high record for the year at the experimental farms across Canada.

Protection that will Protect Peel Farmers

THE MARKETING PROBLEM

The marketing of its products is the primary problem facing the agricultural industry of Canada. During the last few years that problem has been allowed to become acute so that to-day the Canadian farmer is having serious difficulty in finding satisfactory markets for his products. He has no assurance of reasonable return from his enterprise and industry. Since the War distressing economic conditions have been attributed broadly to world-wide causes over which no individual country had control. That excuse alone cannot be advanced for the situation confronting Canadian agriculture.

The problem of markets is acute in Canada to-day for the reason that this country has not done what other countries have done. The products of Canadian agriculture are without profitable markets because while other countries have taken measures for their own protection, this country has not done so. While the markets of countries competing with Canada in agricultural production have been dosed against the Canadian farmer, the market of Canada has been opened still wider to those same competitors. SHUT OUT OF FOREIGN MARKETS THE CANADIAN FARMER HAS NOT EVEN ADVANTAGE OF HIS HOME MARKET.

That is why Right Hon. Arthur Meighen declares that "the farmer in this country to-day is competing with his fellow-farmer in other countries under conditions of absolute unfairness." That is why he says that the first tariffs that should be increased are the tariffs on farm products.

UNITED STATES MARKET CLOSED

The worst blow that has fallen on Canadian agriculture in recent years was administered by the adoption of the Fordney Tariff in the United States. It practically shut Canadian farm and dairy products out of the United States market. The Fordney tariff was the great achievement of the organized farmers of the United States. Controlling the balance power in Congress, they insisted that their home market should be reserved for themselves. That was the method by which the farmers of the United States determined to meet post-war competition, and it is the method almost every other country in the world except Canada has taken in face of the keenest economic competition the world has seen.

The Fordney tariff was aimed especially at Canada, the most important competitor of the United States in agricultural production. Canada has no legitimate grievance on that account. The United States has every right to protect herself. Canada's grievance is against herself. THIS COUNTRY TOOK THE BLOW LYING DOWN. IT DID NOT HAVE TO STAND UNDER THE DISABILITY IMPOSED BY THE RAISING OF THE UNITED STATES TARIFF. THE GOVERNMENT OF THE DAY DECREED THAT WE SHOULD DO SO.

The adoption of the Fordney tariff made it imperative for Canada to act. With the United States market closed to the products of Canada no other course was open in this country but to fortify and enlarge her own market in behalf of her own producers. Canada could ignore the action of the United States only at cost to herself. Under the King Government it was ignored. Immediately upon the adoption of the Fordney tariff in 1922, Canada began to feel the effect, and the King Government did nothing to meet the situation. Instead it has continued to harp about the cost of living, and the only efforts it has made to relieve the cost of living have been at the expense of the farmer—and from the sacrifices made no results have been achieved.

THE FARMER'S COMPETITION

What is the position of the Canadian farmer in consequence? On what terms is he competing with the farmer of the United States? They are terms that not only forbid the sale of his products in the United States but compel him at the same time to witness United States products replacing his own in the home market of Canada. Let us examine some of these terms.

The United States market is reserved exclusively to the United States wheat grower by a prohibitive duty against foreign wheat. Not a bushel of wheat from Canada or any other country can enter the United States except over a tariff duty of 42 cents a bushel. Wheat from the United States or anywhere else can come into Canada at a duty of 12 cents a bushel.

The Canadian farmer cannot sell his corn in the United States without its paying a duty of 15 cents a bushel. United States corn enters this country to compete with the Canadian grain absolutely free of duty.

Canadian wheat flour is shut out of the United States by a duty of $2.04 a barrel. American flour is allowed to compete with the Canadian product in this country at a duty of 50 cents a barrel.

The Canadian farmer cannot sell his hay in the United States except by paying a duty of $4 a ton. The United States farmer can send hay into Canada at $2 a ton.

The United States taxes Canadian potatoes 50 cents a hundred pounds. Potatoes from the United States are replacing the home grown product on the Canadian market because they are let in at 35 cents a hundred pounds.

The butter industry in Canada is constantly treated to much word-of-mouth concern. But although a tariff duty of 8 cents a pound is maintained against Canadian butter by the United States, United States butter can and does come into Canada to compete with the product of the Canadian farmer and dairyman at just half that duty.

American cheese is let in at a duty of 3 cents a pound but Canadian cheese must pay 5 cents a pound to get into the United States.

The American farmer is protected by a duty of 8 cents a dozen on eggs. Competition with the Canadian farmer is invited by a tariff of 3 cents.

The Fordney tariff greatly increased protection on cattle in the interest of the farmer and American stockman.

The struggling fruit growing industry of Canada is allowed a tariff protection of 25 per cent. against a 35 per cent. tariff maintained by the United States for the benefit of the well-established and highly organized industry of that country.

CREAM OF THE MARKET

In addition to the above tariff conditions enjoyed by the American producer, he has some very important natural advantages over his Canadian competitor in the markets of Canada. Climatic conditions enable him to produce more cheaply than the Canadian, and also to send his products into Canada before the products of this country are ready for market. In the poultry branch of the industry, for example, while the Canadian is producing eggs at the high peak of midwinter cost and we are importing large quantities of American eggs, the poultryman in California and other southern states are operating under Spring conditions and their products are turned out at the lowest cost of the year. The Canadian's disadvantage is to some extent even more pronounced in the case of vegetables and fruits. When the Canadian products come on the market the appetite of the consumer has already been appeased by imported fruits and vegetables, the American rival having had the benefit of the most profitable part of the trade—the early demand for fresh products. At the same time the Canadian is under the necessity of producing his early vegetables under the expense of hot house conditions in a climate where this equipment in order to be efficient is necessarily costly. Competing products are grown in the open air, coming first from Mexico and later from the southern states.

What consideration has the Canadian producer had from the present Government in these circumstances? The record of the last four years will be searched in vain for any evidence of concern on the part of the Administration. The cause of the home producer has been pleaded often enough in Parliament to have disturbed the indifference of the Government, but its attitude appears to be calculated. When in the House of Commons the Minister was being besought to consider the unfair competition suffered by the Canadian in his own home market, the response from a member of the Cabinet, Hon. J. H. King, was a pious regret that anyone should suggest that the people of Canada should not have every opportunity to import early fruits and vegetables. "I hope," he declared, "that the people of Canada will always be in a position to import these things and other delicacies that they may like to have in their homes." Surely a plain enough intimation to the Canadian producer that he was wasting his breath by voicing his troubles to the Government.

"The schedule which is the most unjust of the whole of the tariff schedules of Canada is that relating to farm products. The first tariff schedule that should be raised in this country is the farm products schedule. . . . The farmer in this country to-day is competing with his fellow farmer in other countries under conditions of absolute unfairness. The goods that he produces are brought into this country under a relative-low tariff or none at all, while he is forbidden access to other countries save over a tariff that he simply cannot escape."

When the Meighen Government was in power, Americans could not dump surplus stocks of fruits and vegetables into Canada at prices less than the cost of production and thereby kill the market for Canadian products. Canadian growers were protected against that most unjust of all forms of competition by an adequate and efficient dumping regulation. But even that degree of protection was not allowed to remain by the present Government. It was upon protests from the fruit growing industry against the dumping into Canada of fruit from the United States below the cost of production that the Meighen Government in 1921 amended the Customs Act to end this evil. The amendment provided that the value set for the purpose of assessing customs duty on imported goods "shall in no case be less than the actual cost of production of similar goods at date of shipment direct to Canada plus a reasonable profit thereon, and the Minister of Customs and Excise shall be the sole judge of what shall constitute a reasonable profit in the circumstances."

NEED OF PROTECTION

How can the Canadian farmer be placed upon a fair and equal footing with his competitor except by tariff protection? Progressives in the House of Commons continue to advocate free trade, or failing that, reduced tariffs notwithstanding the fact that 67 other countries have raised their tariffs since the war, but does the farmer who sent them to Parliament seeing the markets of other countries closed to him while his own remains open to outside competition, follow their argument? It seems to be thought by free trade theorists that if this country set an example with their policy, other countries will follow it. A pretty expensive attempt at reforming the fiscal system of the world for this country to make, and a hopeless one on the face of it. Are the markets of the United States to be opened to Canada by such a course? Certainly they are not.

Canada is in no position to make terms with the United States if relief from the American tariff barrier should be sought by this country. The United States enjoys all the advantages of the Canadian market now and has no need to make concession. We have nothing with which to bargain. If our own market were protected as is the American market we would have something with which to deal, something the Americans didn't get for nothing.

OUR SELF-RESPECT

Our generosity to our competitors is entirely gratuitous. We do not receive even sentimental advantages from it. On the contrary it reflects on our self-respect. The United States and other competing nations are proud of their self-reliance. Canada would lose nothing in their esteem by looking first to her own interests.

The farmer is told by those who refuse him protection to consider the free market of Great Britain. The present Government has made a great display of effort to cultivate the British market in the interests of the farmer. But what has that to do with the situation? CANADIAN FARM PRODUCTS HAVE ACCESS TO THE BRITISH MARKET ON EXACTLY THE SAME TERMS AS THE BRITISH MARKET ON EXACTLY THE SAME TERMS AS THE PRODUCTS OF ANY OTHER COUNTRY. THE BRITISH MARKET IS FREE, BUT IT IS JUST AS FREE TO THE ADEQUATELY PROTECTED FARMER OF THE UNITED STATES AS IT IS TO THE FARMER OF CANADA.

STILL MORE COMPETITION

Now, as if conditions were not already bad enough, the Canadian door has been thrown still further open to outside agricultural products. Additional competition for the mixed farmer of Canada has been invited. Under the treaty made by the King Government with Australia, the Canadian farmer is to bear the entire cost of the concessions secured from Australia in the tariff on Canadian paper and automobile parts and canned fish. Putting it bluntly the Canadian farmer has been sold for the benefit of these other lines of industry. A treaty could and should have been made with Australia that would have secured advantages to this country without injury to the farmer. By raising the general tariff on agricultural products, the Government could have given Australia substantial preferences and protected the farmer by restricting the competition from the United States. Instead, it wiped out entirely or reduced to a useless figure the duties on such commodities as Australia is best able to send into Canada at low cost to compete with the products of the Canadian farmer and dairyman. But the Government appears to have been actuated by a special desire to sacrifice the mixed farmer for the supposed benefit of the grain grower.

The first treaty negotiated by the Government representative and actually adopted by the Australian Government provided for a general increase in our duties on farm produce and then made a reduction in favor of the Australian producer in our markets. This would have been of benefit to our farming industry as the tariff on American produce now flooding our markets would have been increased—but this would not have been in the interests of Uncle Sam. It would have been too grave a departure from the pro United States policy of the King Government and so the increased duties on the Canadian farmer are again sacrificed and the treaty is changed—put through without increases, but with the same proportional decreases in favor of the Australian farmer. No Canadian farmer with an intelligent interest in, and knowledge of, his industry can vote for the King Government. Australia, like the United States, recognizes the need of protection. The following table shows how the Australian farmer is protected in his home market and the situation of the Canadian farmer in comparison. The figures on the left are the duties imposed by Australia against Canada and all other countries, while those on the right are the terms on which the same products from Australia are allowed into Canada under the new trade treaty:

CAN UNDERSELL THE CANADIAN

The significance of this disparity is realized when the cost of production in Australia of many of the articles that are free or next to free enter into Canada is considered. Meats and wool are produced in Australia for a fraction of the cost of production in Canada.

Climatic conditions which permit of the grazing of stock throughout the entire year place the cost of production at a minimum. Dressed cattle sold at $2.90 a hundred weight. No such prices have obtained in Canada thing near those figures. But under the Australian Treaty the Canadian cattle raiser is to be forced to compete with Australian beef entering this country at a duty of 1/2 cent a pound. And the Australian has the further advantage of a bonus from his Government of $2.40 for every beef carcass he exports.

It was recognized by Parliament long ago that the sheep raising industry in Canada was in need of encouragement, and a law was placed on the statute books enabling the Government to apply a tariff on combed wool as a measure of assistance to the industry. In 1923 when the depressed conditions in agriculture were apparent to everybody, the Government was reminded from the floor of the House of Commons of this provision, but no action has been taken although the situation has been growing worse. It is not without significance that since the advent of the Liberal Government to office the sheep population of Canada has shrunk by 750,000.

Sheepmen acknowledge that nothing will stabilize the industry like a stable market for wool, but the Government goes on spending millions to teach the farmer better methods of production and is failing absolutely to meet the crux of the situation by securing the best marketing conditions possible. It is not even sanely attempting to improve market conditions. Nothing is so great an incentive to the farmer to produce as the realization that he is assured of a satisfactory market when his products are ready to sell. Marketing, in fact, is vital to success in all agricultural efforts. As an indication of how hopeless it is for the producers of this country to expect improved conditions from this Government we quote two of the most prominent members of the Cabinet. Speaking on the reductions in the tariff in his Budget speech April 24th, 1924, the Honourable Mr. Stewart, Minister of the Interior, said: "I trust that it will be the death knell of protection." The Honourable Mr. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, not so bold as his colleague, but always plausible when speaking, in the same debate, on May 7th, 1924, made the following statement: "We are beginning to do slowly what we had endeavoured to do rapidly on three historic occasions and failed—in 1878 and in 1891 unrestricted reciprocity, and in 1911 reciprocity in natural products. We endeavoured to go rapidly, but we were told we were going too quickly and were defeated in each instance. Now we have been marching out to the same objective by easy stages, so easy the first two years that our action did not meet with very much approval."

So, according to the latter Minister, what they failed to do openly, they now propose to accomplish by "easy stages." This is certainly a time for the people to beware.

LOSS TO THE FARMERS

Part of the enormous loss sustained by the farmers of Canada as a result of our tariff policy is seen in our imports and exports of agricultural products.

Canada imported from the United States in 1924 (official figures from the annual report of the Department of Trade and Commerce) agricultural and vegetable products to the value of $81,368,503 and we sold to the United States only $51,337,733. Moreover, on the $81,368,503 of agricultural products brought in from the United States almost all of which with the exception of some $16,000,000 worth of rubber and oils, came to compete with Canadian products on our home market, we collected in customs duty only $8,390,384.17, so that our tariff averaged about ten per cent. The United States tariff against our agricultural products averages closer to fifty per cent.

Back in 1921, before the Fordney tariff went into effect, we sold the United States in agricultural and vegetable products, not $51,337,733 but $146,539,883. That is what the United States farmers have done for themselves by raising their tariff: What is the lesson for Canada?

This country, whose principal industry is agriculture, is importing agricultural and vegetable products for consumption at the rate of close on two hundred million dollars a year—last year the amount was $186,468,685. Why are not our own farmers supplying this market? Why is all that money going to foreign producers? Our inadequate tariff is the reason. We are buying nearly half as much as we export, our export sales last year amounting to $430,938,159.

These figures are conclusive proof of the wisdom of Mr. Meighen's policy for the agricultural industry of Canada.

THE HOME MARKET

The home market must be the primary concern of Canadian industry, agricultural or any other. Everybody appreciates that. And with the home market protected, Canada will have something with which to bargain for increased access to other markets. The entire plan of protection of the Conservative Party affects the farmer, not merely the direct protection to farm products. The protection policy of the Conservative Party proposes to conserve and enlarge all industries that this country can operate successfully. By the manufacture of Canadian raw materials in the country instead of in other countries, hundreds of thousands of consumers will be added to the market for the Canadian farmer's products. The policy enunciated by Mr. Meighen in the House of Commons during the recent sessions proposes to end a situation in which for $1,000,000 derived by this country, for a given quantity of raw material, the United States Manufacturer received $10,000,000 for the same material in finished form. The Canadian farmer, shut out of the markets of the United States, does not require a lightning calculator in order to realize whether or not he stands to benefit by the retention in the country of the ninety per cent. of the ultimate value of the products of the Canadian mines and forests now going into the pockets of America. The Canada-first policy of the party led by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen proposes to bring to this country the benefit of her own resources. By arousing public opinion, the Conservative Party in the House of Commons prevented the wholesale diversion of electric power from this country. It means to prevent the diversion of all other raw materials that can be turned into finished goods within the boundaries of the Dominion.

THE REMEDY OFFERED

AS A RESULT OF THE FAILURE OF THE KING GOVERNMENT TO MEET THE SITUATION FORCED UPON THE COUNTRY BY THE ACTION TAKEN BY OTHER COUNTRIES, IT IS ESTIMATED THAT THE FARMERS OF CANADA ARE LOSING MANY MILLIONS OF DOLLARS ANNUALLY. IT IS WORTH THE FARMER'S WHILE TO COMPARE THIS FAILURE OF THE GOVERNMENT TO MOVE FOR THE PROTECTION OF AGRICULTURE IN CONDITIONS THAT HAVE ARISEN SINCE IT TOOK OFFICE WITH THE PURPOSE OF PRACTICAL POLICY OF MR. MEIGHEN INDICATED IN THE CLEAN CUT, UNEQUALLED STATEMENT FROM WHICH QUOTATION IS MADE ON THE COVER OF THIS PRINT.

THE KING GOVERNMENT HAS FAILED THE FARMER. THE GROUP IN PARLIAMENT THAT SHOULD SPECIALLY REPRESENT HIS INTERESTS, THE PROGRESSIVES HAVE FAILED HIM. THE ONLY RELIEF OFFERED TO THE FARMING INDUSTRY OF CANADA TODAY IS THAT CONTAINED IN THE POLICY AND PLATFORM OF THE CONSERVATIVE PARTY—THE DETERMINED PROTECTION AND DEVELOPMENT OF THE HOME MARKET FOR THE CANADIAN PRODUCER.

ALFALFA FOR THE FRUIT GROWER

Alfalfa Works in Well With the Fruit Grower's Program.

BY HERBERT NAFZIGER.

To be the possessor of a good alfalfa field gives any farmer a pleasant and soul-satisfying feeling, but for a fruit grower who has work horses and a few cows to feed, it is satisfying to the seventh degree.

Perhaps I feel that way because I am a fruit grower and have in the past experienced the woes and irritations of the man who has to buy all or nearly all, of his hay and other feed.

A man who lives in the midst of a highly intensive fruit country naturally wants to have as much of his farm as possible in fruit. Furthermore, the fruit grower has his farm equipped and geared up to grow fruit. That is the thing which he can do most efficiently and with a minimum of lost motion and expense.

The fruit specialist is not, as a rule, equipped to raise grain, and if he tries to raise some corn or other grain on the side, he will sooner or later find himself between the horns of a dilemma. He finds that he has to hurry over or neglect some part of the fruit growing in order to take care of the grain, or he has to tend strictly to his fruit and let the grain go.

Neither alternative is desirable in these days of high efficiency and small profit margins. The alternative of neglecting his orchard operations is especially undesirable, as sometimes a few days' neglect proves disastrous.

To cite an instance, a neighbor of mine had a nice field of corn started which was at the time badly in need of cultivation. The weather was warm, weeds were growing lustily, and a little more neglect would mean a weedy corn field. On the other hand, it was time to spray his apples. What to do? He finally decided that the apples could wait a few days longer, so he went into the corn.

FALSE ECONOMY.

After the corn was cultivated and he was just getting a good start on the spraying, it began to rain, not an ordinary shower, but a week's rainy spell. As a result, scab obtained a foothold in his orchard, to the detriment of his pack at harvest time.

He told me that his loss from that false move was much more than the entire corn field was worth.

This is an age of specialists. A man must put his hand and brain to some special line if he expects to make good. The Jack of all trades is a back number. Whatever he tackles he finds himself competing with experts who can run rings around him.

There are few lines of business which require such a high degree of vigilance, judgment, knowledge and strict application as does the growing of high-grade fruit. A good motto for a fruit grower is "Hew to the line and let some other fellow pick up the chips."

Considering farm efficiency we found that the only feed crop that we could safely raise on our fruit farm was hay. So we seeded some spare land to clover and timothy. For several reasons this plan did not prove to be ideal. First, the clover and timothy would run out and need renewing. Second, our feed bill remained rather high, because we had to buy grain in considerable amounts to supplement the hay, and also because the hay crop from the land available was not enough to carry us through the season.

ADVANTAGES OF ALFALFA.

Alfalfa, however, comes as near the ideal as possible. It stands many years without renewal. It has high feeding value, thus cutting the grain bill down to a minimum, and finally, it yields a large amount per acre, thus enabling the fruit man to raise enough feed on a small acreage to carry him through.

We cut our alfalfa twice in a season because, if we cut three times, the last cutting interferes with the fall fruit harvest. Incidentally, we found that cutting only twice preserves the vigor and life of the stand, and makes practically as much hay as three cuttings.

In these days of certified and adapted seed, the problem of getting a stand is not nearly as acute as it formerly was. However, on much of our fruit belt land a new seeding still needs considerable coddling for successful results. Several plans have been tried out on our farm, and I will briefly describe the one plan that has for us proved practically infallible.

Most of our seedlings have been made directly following old sod as we wished to obviate the necessity of raising a cultivated crop for a year before seeding alfalfa. The ground is plowed late in the summer after the hay crop is off and is occasionally worked with a spring-tooth harrow until winter sets in. During the winter, or early in the spring, it is given a good coating of marl. Then, as early in spring as possible, it is thoroughly disked and again kept worked to kill weeds and sod until about the fifteenth of June; at that time the ground is given an application of about 250 to 300 pounds of acid phosphate per acre. This is harrowed in and then the ground is seeded, without a nurse crop, and with the best certified northern-grown seed available.

The seed is lightly covered with a spike-tooth harrow and then rolled down with a land roller. Some time in midsummer, the field is mowed to keep the weeds down. The clippings are left on the field unless heavy enough to cause danger of smothering the young alfalfa. After the first year, a light application of acid phosphate is given annually. When seeding is made in the above manner the use of the ground is, of course, lost for one year, but a certain and long-lived stand of alfalfa is surely ample compensation.

Yellow Transparent market was demoralized to such a point that even the good fruit sold slowly and at poor prices. Before the end of the season we realized that we had made a mistake and also that we were not alone in our error.

In a desperate effort to correct the trouble we had a large display card printed with the heading "Jelly Apples." On this card we called attention to the fact that the small apples were well adapted to the making of jelly, and told briefly how it could be done. We followed up a lot of our shipments and by the use of these cards stimulated the sale of fruit that might otherwise never have been sold. One of our customers was "stuck" with seventy-five bushels of these small apples, but after using the cards he cleaned up the entire lot in a few days at a price that cleared expenses. I am satisfied that our experience with the small apples cost us much more than we would have lost by dumping the whole lot.

Amendments to Dairy Product Act and Regulations.

The text of The Dairy Product Act as amended this year and regulations under the Act have been published by the Dept. of Agriculture at Ottawa in uniform style with other Acts relating to agriculture. There is one new amendment to the Act authorizing the Governor-in-Council to make regulations that will enable the Dairy Products Grader to refuse to grade any dairy produce and to withhold grade certificates. Sections 24 to 28 inclusive have been added to the previous 23 of the regulations. These provide:

That any butter cut or moulded into prints or blocks shall be deemed to be not graded and that no person shall brand, mark, describe or advertise for sale as graded, butter which shall have been so cut or moulded; that a grader's certificate covering any such lots shall be deemed cancelled; that no person shall pack butter in a package bearing marks of previous grading; that no person shall sell, offer for sale or have in his possession butter branded, marked, described or advertised contrary to these regulations and that any butter on which mould has appeared, whether on the butter itself or on the parchment lining, even though all trace has been removed, shall be classified as "no grade."

Hog Types.

Here is how one hog man describes his type of hogs: Perhaps the first thing we should look for in a hog that fits modern requirements is a strong back, uniform in width from front to rear, and uniformly arched. This is where the high-priced cuts are found, and we want it as near perfect as possible. We want to avoid a flatness over the shoulders, or any narrowness across the loin.

Look well to the side; we think more of it now than we used to. It is these deep, straight, smooth sides that cut up into nicely striped bacon. We do not want the value of these savory slices marred by creases or wrinkles. They also cause much extra work in scraping when butchering time comes round, and the deeper you can get this, the more bacon there is.

"The hams and shoulders should also be deep, well let down on the body, and well filled, but not necessarily bulging. They should fit neatly into the body, and so even with the side that a straightedge held along the side would touch the body all the way. Too much bulging inclines to coarseness, and takes the growth that might better be some place else.

As the animal walks off naturally, the underline should be straight all the way. If the sides are deep, the flanks both front and rear are full, the hams and shoulders well let down, and not too much nor too little jowl, the underline will be all right, and likewise the heart girth that we used to talk so much about.

And then the feet and legs: There is not much meat on them, to be sure; but they support and carry the whole works. They are the foundation and you know the importance of the foundation if it is a superstructure you wish to build. So we want the legs and feet of good size, and straight, toes close together, not sprawly; pasterns short and straight and stalky, not slender, long and sloping. Knees that knock toward each other, and hocks set at too great an angle are common faults and should be avoided.

Meat and Bone By-products.

The Dominion Chemist, Dr. F. T. Shutt, and his assistant, Miss S. N. Hamilton, have prepared and the Dominion Dept. of Agriculture has published a fourteen-page bulletin describing what is meant by "Meat and Bone By-products," and designed to furnish that knowledge of their composition and nature that is essential to their economic purchase and use. The feeding stuffs on the market that come under the foregoing heading include meat and blood meals, tankage, bone meal, fish meals and other related materials, mainly the by-products of the packing house, slaughter house and fish canneries, and consist of varying proportions of meat, fatty tissue, blood and bone, according to their source and method of preparation. As a class, states the bulletin, they are highly nitrogenous and phosphatic concentrates that constitute a valuable source of protein and bone-making material and are especially useful in the feeding of swine and poultry. It is essential that they should be prepared from fresh materials and as purchased should be sweet and sound, free from rancidity and mould. As a consequence, continues the bulletin, which can be had on application to the Publications Branch, Ottawa, it is obvious that these feeding stuffs should be purchased always on guaranteed analysis. One object of the investigation, the results of which are recorded in this bulletin, was the establishment of standards, in percentages of protein, fat, and phosphate of lime, for the various classes of products under consideration.

Producing Clean Milk.

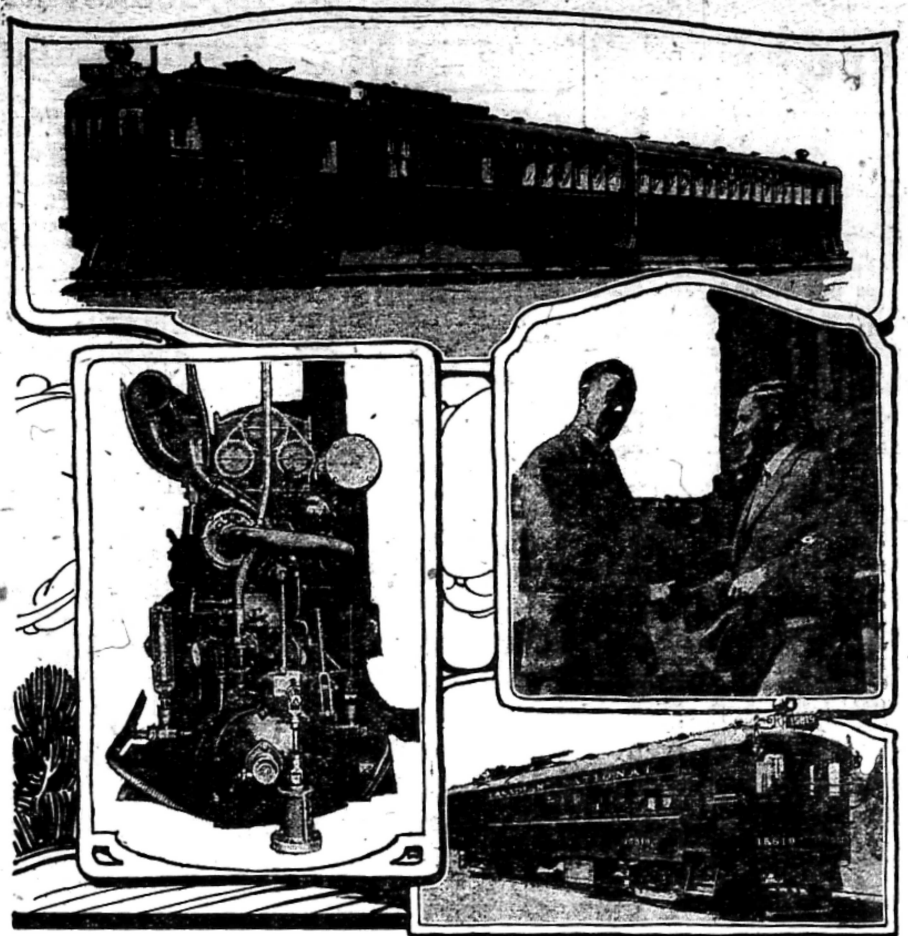

A clean pail, a covered pail and a clean animal are the big things in producing clean milk. All other sources of contamination are of lesser importance, states the Dominion Agricultural Bacteriologist in his report for 1924. To insure clean milk the pails should be washed and scoured, and, if possible, treated with steam, and care taken to have no dirt fall from the cow into the milk. The report, which is distributed free by the Publications Branch, Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa, describes in detail the methods of insuring complete cleanliness. Manure should be moved out of the reach of the animals, the cows should be regularly brushed, the milkers' hands must be carefully washed, and the foremilk should be discarded.

A Halloween Game.

Games are always in high favor for a Halloween frolic and here is one in which all the folks, young and old, may join. The group is instructed to write a word beginning with "Jack" after each statement as it is read by the leader. A given time is allowed to accomplish this and the one having the greatest number correct may receive a Jack-o-lantern for a prize while the consolation may be a lolly-pop or a popcorn ball.

A Jack with a long bushy tail—Jackal.
A Jack who couldn't eat fat—Jack Sprat.
A Jack who is very cold—Jack Frost.
A Jack who is a flower—Jack in the Pulpit.
A Jack a boy carries in his pocket—Jack-knife.
A Jack used on last day of October—Jack-o-lantern.
A Jack who is a garment—Jacket.

Canadian National Oil Electric Cars.

THE Canadian National Railways have put into service an entirely new type of motive power which may go far towards solving two of the most serious problems steam roads are facing, namely, high fuel costs and the competition of motor bus and lorry on the public highways. The oil electric car is the name given to this new method of locomotion and its creation is due to the mechanical officers of the National Railways who conceived the idea and carried it through. Relatively speaking, the principle behind the power which drives the car, is simple. In one end of the car is located a light fuel oil engine operating on the Diesel principle and this engine drives an electric generator which provides the energy to move the car. The engine is started by a small electric motor operated from storage batteries and these batteries are, in turn, recharged by the generator when it begins to function, so that the cycle of performance is a close approach to perpetual motion.

Two sizes of cars have been built, the large or articulated type and a small type. The top photograph shows the large type, consisting of two bodies resting on three four-wheel trucks, the ends of the two bodies being attached to the centre truck in such a way, by a safety locking pin, that the rear car is able to swivel sufficiently to take the curves. This car has a total length of 102 feet and can accommodate 126 passengers. In the lower left hand corner is a photograph of one end of the fuel oil engines, used on these cars. On the right Mayor J. H. Balharrie of Ottawa is seen shaking hands with Mr. C. E. Brooks, Chief of Motive Power of the Canadian National Railways, on the completion of the first trial run of the large car from Montreal to Ottawa. Below is a photograph of the small car which has a passenger carrying capacity of 56. Both cars have roomy baggage ends as well.

An idea of the possibilities of these cars is to be had from the performance of the small car during a test trip from Toronto to Montreal. The mileage between those points is 334 miles. The fuel consumption of the small car on the trip cost $3.50 and lubricating oil 48 cents, or a total fuel cost of $3.98. To have operated a steam train of similar passenger carrying capacity, even with the most economical type of locomotive, would have entailed a fuel cost of at least $66.00. The ability of these cars to produce speed when required was demonstrated during the test run of the large car from Montreal to Ottawa. The trip was made in two hours and fifteen minutes actual running time or at an average rate of 52 miles per hour. Both cars shown in the photograph are now in service. The large car is in local service on Canadian National lines out of the Tunnel Terminal between Montreal and Ottawa. The small car is in local service between Hamilton and Guelph, Ontario.

WHEN THE GUESTS UNMASK AT MIDNIGHT

The first autumn festival is at hand, and the housewife may entertain with an informal frolic and costume dance. The decorations may be carried out in pumpkin yellow and black, and if you can add a few bunches of corn stalks from the field this will give you greater leeway in the decorations and arrangements.

In one corner of the room, or in the hall, a tent may be arranged in a few minutes with the aid of a sheet and some of the pins used to hold pictures on the wall. Place a layer of corn stalks against the sheet, hiding it completely. Everything is now ready for the fortune-telling witch. A cider well can be arranged in the kitchen and will be a spot of real merriment if a fairy is presiding, and dispensing the drink. It is best to get the affair under way by 8 o'clock, for promptly at midnight the guests must unmask and sit down to the supper. Old-fashioned games and dancing will fill the intervening space of time. Well-seasoned substantial menu will form an ideal menu for the midnight Halloween supper, and this meal may be served in platter form if you should desire, or if because of limited table space you find it inconvenient to seat the guests at the table.

Macadaine Salad
Toasted Cheese Sandwiches
Sausage Sandwiches
Nut and Celery Sandwiches
Witches' Punch
Pumpkin Tarts
Mince Tarts
Crullers
Coffee
Apples, Nuts and Raisins

Serve the punch, as you will find that many of the guests will prefer this beverage to the coffee.

WITCHES' PUNCH
Place in a mixing bowl: Three pints of crushed ice, two quarts of water, three bananas (sliced thin), two oranges, (peeled and sliced thin), one cup of cranberries (sliced thin), four apples (cut in paper-thin slices), four quarts of grape juice.

Place in large punchbowl or clean wooden bucket and cover the outside with pumpkin-colored crepe paper, tie to keep in place with black two-inch bands of crepe paper, and fasten a whisk broom to the side of the bowl.

MACADONNE SALAD
Place in large mixing bowl: One can of well-drained peas, three cups of finely shredded cabbage, two cups of finely diced cooked beets, three large carrots (diced and cooked until tender), two green peppers (minced fine), three red peppers (minced fine), two stalks of celery (cut in dice), six large potatoes (cooked until tender, pared and cut in dice), one cup of finely chopped onion, three tablespoons of mustard seed, one tablespoon of celery seed, three-quarters cup of finely chopped parsley, one quart of cooked salad dressing (well seasoned).

Toss to blend, and serve in crisp nests of lettuce. Garnish with slice of hard-boiled egg.

SAUSAGE SANDWICHES.
Use the pocketbook or Parker House roll for this sandwich, and have cooked and steaming hot fresh country sausage. I have found it made a decided hit to arrange this sausage sandwich on a tray covered with napkin, and have a young lad act as the sausage man, going among the guests crying hot sausages, take 'em while they're hot, 'ot, 'ot.

TOASTED CHEESE SANDWICHES.
Place in bowl: One pound of store cheese, one grated onion, one teaspoon of paprika, one-quarter cup of cream. Work well to paste, and spread on nicely buttered bread. Place in the broiler of the gas range for two minutes to toast slightly and then place the top slice of the bread in place, cut into triangles and place on paper doilies, and serve from tray like the sausage sandwiches.

NUT AND CELERY SANDWICHES.
Place four large stalks of celery and one pound of shelled nuts through the food chopper, adding one red and one green pepper, four branches of parsley, two medium-size onions. Place in bowl and add seasoning to taste and three-fourths cup of either mayonnaise or cooked dressing. Mix well and make into sandwiches.

CRULLERS.
Place in a mixing bowl: Nine cups of sifted flour, five level tablespoons of baking powder, two teaspoons of salt, one teaspoon of ginger, one teaspoon of nutmeg, two cups of granulated sugar.
Sift twice to blend and then rub into this prepared flour: Five tablespoons of butter. Place in mixing bowl: Three large eggs, one and three-quarters cups of milk.
Beat with the eggbeater to blend and use to form a dough; roll out about one-half inch thick on well-floured pastry board; cut and fry in smoking hot fat; roll in granulated sugar and cinnamon, just as they come from the fat.

The crullers should be sent in to the supper just as they come from the stove and served smoking hot. If piled on tray and a lad with a white cap to pass and serve, it will add to the occasion.

Light Up Your Faces.

All have Jack-o-Lantern seen From earliest youth, I ween. His face lit up from a light within Showing his teeth in a friendly grin. Very bright his eyes are, too, From the same source shining thru Radiating fun and cheer Thru the darkness far and near.

Light up your face with a smile, Make it worth ev'ry one's while, Only to travel your way Just to pass the time o' day. Let them see your soul shine thru Smiling lips and eyes so true. Such a spirit, by God's grace, Transforms e'en the plainest face.

Light up your face, be very glad, Drive out all the sorry and sad. Be a good sport and play Life's game Every day and just the same. It will cost you no more to smile It will add to your years the while, If you will let love have its way And be happy the livelong day.

Masquerade Sandwiches.

Sandwiches that are just the thing for a Halloween party can be made from brown bread that has been steamed in one pound baking powder cans. Two slices are allowed for each sandwich. Spread the under slice with a liberal covering of peanut butter. Make masques of the top slices. With a sharp thimble cut two small circles for the eyes. Underneath them make with the thimble another circle for the nose and below that cut a slit with a small sharp knife for the mouth.

Press each masque firmly upon the buttered surface of the under slice and then add the final touches that give the sandwiches their humorous appearance. Various expressions can be given by dropping a dried currant in each eye. Ripe olives make amusing noses, of every imaginable shape. Strips of brilliant red, cut from sweet peppers, make lips that curl in "gayety, jest and amusement"—and you may be sure that the sandwiches will arouse plenty of mirth!

Course of Whale Currents.

Deep submarine currents containing whale food flow from the north Atlantic to 2,000 south of the equator.

LITTLE APPLES

Suppose that every manufacturer of automobiles should set aside every car that shows some slight defect, label it "Cull," and send it out into the open market to be sold for whatever it would bring.

The price of perfect automobiles would fall to a point where the maker would no longer realize a profit.

Many of the fruit growers of the country run their marketing on just such an unsound basis as the above hypothetical automobile business.

It may be argued that the manufacturers have few culls and that these few may be revamped and sold as "firsts," whereas the orchardist has many culls that he cannot afford to throw away. To a certain extent this is true, but at the same time it is a fact that every reputable manufacturer of motor cars or any other product has a certain percentage of defective parts that must be disposed of.

None of these defective parts ever reach the open market. But too often the grower attempts to sell his unsound merchandise, and as a result injures both himself and his brother fruit growers.

When there is an abundance of small or slightly defective apples the temptation to get rid of them in some way is always a strong one. One season our Yellow Transparents set an unusually heavy crop of fruit. It was a season made unusually busy by the fact that weather conditions kept us from doing our work as promptly as we wished, and we did not have time to thin all the trees.

A SAVING THAT MEANT LOSS.

Consequently at picking time we had a large number of apples that measured one and a half inches and less in diameter. The market that year was flooded with Yellow Transparent apples, and what we should have done was to take the entire lot and plow them under in the orchard for such fertilizing value as they might have. The temptation to "get something out of them" was too strong, however, and we shipped them along with our larger, well-graded fruit.

Many other growers apparently did the same thing, and as a result the

Here and There

All tourists' records, motor and train, are being broken at Banff, Alberta, this year. More than 13,000 cars were registered by the first of August with the big rush yet to come. As many as 2,000 were under canvas at one time in the Government auto camp ground.

Maple sugar and maple syrup production in Canada during the season of 1925 amounted to 9,791,359 pounds and 1,672,093 gallons, respectively, with an aggregate value of $6,825,416. This compares with an output of 9,385,415 pounds of maple sugar and 1,970,896 gallons of maple syrup during 1924. Quebec province accounted for over 90 per cent. of the production of maple sugar and over half of the output of maple syrup.

Production of the four basic industries of British Columbia during 1924 aggregated in value $210,092,793, as compared with $207,984,041 in the previous year, according to a statement issued by the Provincial Government. The 1924 production was made up as follows, with 1923 comparative figures in brackets: Forest products, $80,702,000 ($86,674,400); agriculture, $60,029,224 ($59,139,798); mines, $48,704,604 ($41,304,320); and fisheries, $21,256,965 ($20,795,923).

Canada's ordinary revenue for the four months of the present fiscal year ended July 31 last, shows an increase of $2,932,163 over the same four-month period last year, according to a statement made by the Department of Finance. Ordinary revenue for the four months of 1925 amounted to $141,739,416. Ordinary expenditures during the four-month period show a decrease from $96,546,541 in 1924 to $95,655,692 this year.

George H. Ham, known throughout Canada as the Grand Old Man of the Canadian Pacific, celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday on Sunday, August 23rd, and was the recipient of a deluge of congratulatory messages from all parts of the country. Col. Ham has been with the Canadian Pacific since 1891 and by his social activities and powers as an orator has made for himself and for the company a veritable army of staunch and faithful friends.

Butter exported from Canada during the twelve months ending June, 1925, amounted to 25,096,120 pounds, valued at $8,934,794, a decided increase over the figures of the previous year when exports amounted to 13,668,379 pounds, valued at $5,081,634, according to a report issued by the Federal Department of Agriculture. Shipments were made to the United Kingdom, the United States, South America, South Africa, West Indies, Alaska, China, Japan, Germany, Belgium, Cuba, Holland, New Zealand and many other countries.

James Oliver Curwood, the well-known American novelist, who crossed not long ago to Europe on the "Empress of France" and returned a few weeks later to Canada on the "Empress of Scotland," wirelessly the following message from the "Scotland" to the Canadian Pacific headquarters in Montreal: "Can never fully express my appreciation of the splendid treatment accorded me by Captain Gillies and Captain Griffiths, and the staffs aboard the 'Empress of France' and the 'Empress of Scotland.'"

A party of British journalists is now touring Canada at the invitation of President E. W. Beatty, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, for the purpose of gaining first hand knowledge of economic and industrial conditions in this country. They are John A. Buist, Glasgow Herald; C. J. Jory, London Daily Telegraph; F. E. Peterson, London Times; H. Read, South Wales Daily News; Cardiff; Captain E. Altham, London Morning Post; Hugh Martin, London Daily News; R. A. Colwill, Western Morning News, Plymouth; A. A. Renton, Daily Chronicle, London; J. F. Chapter, Westminster Gazette, London; John Sayers, Belfast Telegraph.

E. W. Beatty, president and chairman of the Canadian Pacific Railway, accompanied by several of his directors is at present engaged in an annual tour of inspection of the company's system. In an address to the directors of the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto Mr. Beatty declared that the "only safe and certain cure for the relief of the Dominion's railway obligations rested upon the country's industrial and agricultural development."

10.15—Bible Class
Services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. will be taken by Rev. Mr. Borland of Toronto
Arrangements have been made for the induction of Rev. Walter T. McCree as pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Thursday, Oct. 22 at 2.30 p.m. Mr. McCree comes from Lynn, in the Brockville Presbytery, and was four years overseas, volunteering as a student from Queen's University. Rev. D. T. L. McKerrill, Moderator of Presbytery, will be in charge of the induction.

United Church Notes

This Sunday
10.00 a.m.—Sunday School
10.15—Bible Class. Teacher...
Rev. W. A. MacKay.
Rev. Mr. MacKay will preach at Streetsville at 11 a.m. and at Meadowdale at 2.30 p.m.
Mr. Smart will preach at Eden at 2.30 and at Streetsville at 7.
Harvest Home Services will be held at Britannia next Sunday when Rev. Mr. Payne of Huttonville will conduct the morning service at 11 and Rev. Mr. MacKay the evening at 7.30.
The League under the leadership of the Missionary Committee with Miss Lila Wagner in the chair spent a very profitable hour last evening in the United Church of Canada being the topic. Miss K. Dracass spoke on those in South America; Miss Ruby Turvey of Africa and Mr. Cecil Dolby of Asia. Mr. Smart sang "I heard the Voice of Jesus" and Mrs. Lindsay recited, in her usual pleasant way.
Next Wednesday the Citizenship Committee will have charge and the topic is "What is Success?"

Correspondents are requested to send in their copy as early in the week as possible. Don't wait till paper day—get it in Monday or Tuesday, we must have time to set the type. Changes of address must be in our hands by Monday night.

Cooksville Dots and Dashes

Dr. Whyte, veterinary surgeon left this community for Detroit last week, where he has temporarily taken the position as manager of a large animal infirmary.

"Jimmy McCarron," the well-known harness horse and pacer which "Dr. Ed. Hopkins V.S." bred and raised, and sold two years ago to an American dealer, has distinguished himself on the American turf. At Columbus recently, "Jimmy McCarron" took fifth money in the free-for-all, among the best animals on the continent, carrying the mile distance in two minutes and one second. Dr. Hopkins' present horse, "Jack Canuck" is recovering nicely from the recent bad spill at Cleveland and will likely be back on the track next season.

With Mr. Ted McCurry presiding a successful missionary evening was spent by the Young People's Society of the United Church on Monday. Mrs. Thos. Dadds of Dixie gave an admirable missionary address and Mr. Cecil Carr favored with a solo. Next Monday will be devoted to Literary topics, Miss Flewelling presiding, and one week later a merry masquerade is booked for the social night of the month.

Mr. Mills, Continuation School Inspector, paid his initial visit to the newly formed Continuation classes in Cooksville school on Monday, and found the work carried on generally satisfactory.

The anniversary services of Dixie Presbyterian Church are being held on Sunday, Nov. 1, and it has been decided not to hold the fowl supper this year.

Cooksville Orange Lodge No. 1181 will not likely proceed with the building of their proposed hall this fall, but are getting things in shape to make a start on the building early in the spring. The annual banquet will be held on Nov. 6.

Mrs. Henriksen and children are leaving this week end for Detroit where they will join Mr. Henriksen and make their home in the future.

Rev. and Mrs. Bellsmith have moved their household effects to Toronto where they will reside this winter. Mr. Bellsmith, it is expected, will preach here but two more Sundays. The new minister, Rev. Mr. Harden, is expected to come here this week.

MANITOBA LETTER

Empire, Oct. 5th, 1925.
I would very much like to tell the view readers we were all through threshing and everything fixed up ready for winter, but the truth will read quite different.
Threshing commenced over a month ago, three whole days and four halves is the most that has been done. A week ago tonight it snowed all night, and into the day; about a foot of snow fell, a regular wet blanket, green feed not cut is flat on the ground. Yesterday, Sunday, it was quite fit to thresh; this morning, another snow storm pretty near as bad as last week. Will be held up for three or four days at least. The weather today looks better than it has been for the last couple of weeks. What grain has been threshed is turning out better than was expected. Wheat is rusted in some places. Mr. Carter has a field of wheat, forty acres, on the rise on each side it was rusted pretty bad, but was not frosted, in the ravine it was a good little, but no rust, and is a good sample. Perhaps that knowledge might help those scientists who are trying to combat the rust problem, talking of flying over the wheat fields, if they would get the new plane with flapping wings to sail over the fields some warm, muggy night, might help a whole lot.
Now will be a problem to get men, for every time a rain or damp weather came, a good many men would leave, especially those from the States who had return tickets for a month. Wages have been high, some of them could earn it, but others could not, no baby's job on threshing gangs here.
Potatoes are a good crop, but very few have taken them out of the ground yet, and a lot of garden stuff is still in the ground; all roots are a good crop.
Between election and wheat pool, arguments are quite lively. We are now in Beautiful Plains instead of Marquette. Premier King and the Hon. Meighen are trying their very best to make the West believe, no matter what they have done they will do wonders for us if only elected. They have nothing new under the sun to say. The last time, "Oh yes, Hudson Bay should be built to the line, taxes reduced. War over seven years ago and still we pay war taxes. I wonder why both Liberals and Conservatives did not elect a new man

Wesley Church, Snider's Corners, held their anniversary services on Sunday last when Rev. F. M. Bell-smith of Cooksville, and Rev. J. H. McBain of Oakville, were the preachers. The choir sang special music assisted by Mrs. Perry, of Toronto, and Mrs. Sibbald of Streetsville. There were large congregations.

Then on Monday evening the church ladies served their famous fowl supper which has become known as one of the rare treats of calendar year in the district. The log tables in the basement were filled four times and a few remained for the fifth. The audience filled the church to overflowing, and all were singing praises of the fine supper provided by the ladies.

The excellent program given was lengthy and varied, and was contributed to by Mrs. Perry, Mr. Ferguson and Miss Laing, of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Merchant, Mr. Webb and Mr. Sinclair, of Galt, and Miss Gertrude Ross, of Streetsville.

Each number was much appreciated but the bright and clever recitations by Miss Ross were of additional interest because she is well known in the district, a daughter of J. B. Ross of Streetsville. She certainly bids fair to rank high among elocutionists.

The audience extended their thanks to the talent for the good program and the visitors expressed their appreciation of the supper by hearty applause.

A large number from Oakville were present and A. S. Forster was chairman.—Oakville Star.

TEACHERS CONVENTION

Written for The Review
The annual convention of the Peel Teacher's Institute was held on October first and second.

On Thursday morning the convention opened with devotional exercises led by Rev. A. P. MacDonald. Miss Nell Tate, President of the Association, gave a very delightful talk on a trip to Italy taken during a year spent in England as an exchange teacher. Miss Tate spoke of the benefits to be derived from a year spent in exchange work.

In the afternoon, Mayor Wegenast and Inspector Galbraith addressed the convention. The Inspector urged the teachers to do his or her part to make the meetings a means of inspiration and help. He spoke of the importance of the teacher keeping abreast of the time and asked, "How many teachers read at least one educational magazine and three books of a professional character in a year?"

Many teachers took part in a discussion on "The Course of Study and the New Text Books." The new speaker met with especial favour and it was pointed out that this book had been prepared by prominent teachers actively engaged in the teaching of spelling. It was felt that teachers of recognized ability and experience should have some part in the preparation of all text books.

On Friday morning the Devotional exercises were led by Rev. Stanley Elliott, who afterwards delivered a highly inspirational address on "The Teacher as a Nation-Building."

Miss Galbraith gave a helpful talk on "Health Teaching," especially adapted to the needs of the teacher in the school where there is no supervision.

Mr. W. E. Macpherson of Toronto, University, spoke on "Visual Aids in the Teaching of History." He spoke of the difficulties encountered in making history interesting and intelligible to the average pupil. He used sets of pictures and lantern slides to illustrate his talk. The lantern or moving picture machine has become a valuable piece of modern school equipment.

The report of the Nominating Committee was read by Miss E. Reynolds and was adopted.

In the afternoon, Mr. Macpherson again addressed the Convention, his subject being "Studies in Commercial and Political Geography." Mr. Henry Moore, lecturer in Horticulture, spoke on "Beautifying Home Surroundings." He showed many lantern slides to illustrate the use of shrubs and perennial plants to give the home a beautiful setting.

Mr. Newton gave a concise report of the proceedings of the O.E.A. of last Easter.

A very pleasant feature of the Friday afternoon meeting was the presentation to Inspector Galbraith by the Peel teachers, of an address expressing appreciation of his life and work and a gift of a desk and chair. Mrs. Galbraith was presented with a basket of flowers.

During the sessions of the convention different classes from the Brampton Public Schools delighted the teachers with their singing.

The following officers were elected: Hon. Pres., Inspector Galbraith; Pres., Mr. D. T. Appleton, Brampton; Vice Pres., Miss E. Walker, Lakewood Park; Committee, Mr. Newton, Port Credit; Miss McKenna, Inglewood, Inglewood; Miss Fleming, Brampton; Sec. Treas., Miss C. M. Fallis, Brampton.

Obituary

Following an illness which had extended over some months, Joseph B. Dixon, for the past 25 years Clerk of the Surrogate Court and Registrar of the High Court of Justice of the County of Peel, passed away Tuesday at the Peel Memorial Hospital.

The late Mr. Dixon was born 69 years ago at Sandhill, near Brampton. He was a son of the late Wm. Dixon, who was a pioneer in Chingua county Township. Matriculating from Brampton High School, he went to Victoria College, Toronto, and after his graduation returned to Chingua county, afterward moving to Brampton, of which he was a resident for 40 years. He was appointed Clerk of the Surrogate Court and County Registrar in 1900.

Mr. Dixon was a lifelong Liberal and a Methodist, being a member of Grace United Church at the time of his death. He was an Oddfellow and a keen horseman, being well-known for the trotters he drove about the country up until a few years ago. The late Mr. Dixon remained a bachelor, and is survived by two brothers, Wesley, on the homestead, and Dr. A. F. Dixon of Spokane, Wash., and three sisters, Mrs. J. W. Hall, Vancouver, and Misses Lily and Minnie at home.

Within two days of her 96th birthday, Mary Brown, widow of the late Townley Brocklebank, of Malton, passed away at her home Tuesday evening as the result of a stroke which she suffered on Sunday last. Mrs. Brocklebank had been in excellent health until a week ago and was daily anticipating a reunion of her family when she took the fatal seizure. She was the daughter of the late Robert Brown, who was born in England, and came to Malton district as a child of two years, residing there continuously ever since. She was educated at the fifth line school and had many tales to tell of the early days of the community, the coming of the railroad and the gradual development of the country.

Her husband was one of the first men to bring a binder into the district. She was a lifelong member of the Methodist Church and one of the most esteemed residents of the section.

Her husband died 28 years ago and she is survived by five sons, David of Arthur; Robert and William of Streetsville; John and Henry of Malton; and two daughters, Mrs. Wm. Somerville and Miss Annie, Malton. One half sister, Mrs. Geo. Sinclair, of Port Huron, also survives.

Junior Activities

The County Judging Competition will be held at Brampton, Friday. The girls must register at the Odd Fellows Hall on Queen street before 9.30 a.m. A registration fee of 25 cents will be charged. The boys Stock Judging Competition is Friday too and in the evening a banquet will be given in the Odd Fellows' Hall when the prize winners will be named and the C. S. McDonald Cup and J. A. Carroll Trophy presented.

Last Thursday evening over thirty juniors met at the home of Miss Luella Jamieson and showered Miss Emily Walker, a bride of yesterday. Mr. McMurray spoke suitable words of thanks for the gifts to Miss Walker and himself, saying it was a pleasant surprise to them. Lunch was served by the girls and a happy time passed in games and dancing.

SIX PERSONS KILLED AT CROSSING NEAR TORONTO WHEN FLYER HITS AUTO

Toronto, Oct. 12.—A 4-year-old baby alone escaped alive when a closed car carrying seven persons was struck by the International Limited at a level crossing just west of Scarborough Junction at 5.15 o'clock last night. Four adults and two children were instantly killed when the car was smashed to fragments, remains of the victims and splinters from the auto being hurled for 150 yards along the track from the crossing. The sole living survivor of the accident, Baby Hilda Mould, is in the Hospital for Sick Children, suffering from concussion of the brain.

Those killed are:
Arthur Nichols, 162 Meagher Ave.
Mrs. Arthur Nichols, 162 Meagher Ave.
Baby Shirley Nichols, 162 Meagher Ave.

Alfred Mould, 1170 Queen St. East.
Mrs. Ethel Mould 1170 Queen St. E.
Ruth Mould, 12, 1170 Queen St. E.
There were no eye-witnesses of the tragedy. The automobile was owned by Nichols and was being driven toward the city. According to residents of the neighborhood the driver must have had a full view of the crossing, while track employees of the Canadian National Railways pointed out that the train, unless the circumstances were most unusual, could be seen 200 yards up the road from the crossing. The manner of the tragedy which almost wiped out two families connected by marriage, must remain unexplained.

Late in the afternoon Nichols telephoned Mould, inviting him and his family to his home for dinner and suggesting an automobile ride. The Mould family accepted. The party went down the Kingston road and crossed over the countryside toward Danforth Ave., when they were struck by the crack train of the C. N. R. The engine was in charge of Thomas Gorman, veteran engineer.

Gorman's fireman observed the automobile as the engine reached the crossing. He shouted to Gorman, who jammed on the brakes. The train was brought to a standstill within its length. Two rear coaches had not passed the crossing when Gorman and members of the crew, along with passengers, rushed to the assistance of the victims. Hon. W. F. Nickle and Dr. Dennis Jordan, Danforth Ave., who were returning from the U. of T. Queen's football game, were among the passengers.

The automobile, shattered beyond recognition, was lying fifty yards from the crossing. The remains of the victims were scattered along the tracks for 150 yards. Baby Shirley Nichols was lying in its mother's arms. It was badly injured. A short distance off was Hilda Mould. They were treated by Dr. Jordan, Mr. Nickle assisting him. Baby Nichols was handed over to a railway surgeon, but died while on the way to the Hospital for Sick Children. Hilda Mould was brought to the city on the train.

HEADLIGHTS BLINDED YOUNG DRIVER OF CAR

Girl Meets Instant Death When Automobile Overturned in Ditch.

Woodstock, Ont., Oct. 11.—Ruby L. Flood, sixteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Flood, Delatre street, is dead and Kent Stevens, son of Dr. J. M. Stevens, this city, is suffering from shock as the result of an automobile fatality which occurred on the Norwich road four miles south of Woodstock last night when the car in which they were riding overturned into the ditch, pinning Stevens, who was driving, underneath, and crushing the life from Miss Flood, whose death is believed to have been instantaneous.

According to Stevens, who is believed to be suffering from internal injuries, two cars were coming north while he was driving south and, at the sharp turn in the road where the accident occurred, he was blinded by the headlights of the first of the approaching cars. Under the impression that the car was about to crash into him head-on, Stevens turned the car sharply to the left, with the result that it overturned in the ditch. An inquest will be held on Tuesday, it was stated by Coroner Dr. MacKay this afternoon.

AUTOS IN HEAD-ON SMASH AT BRANTFORD

Two Detroit Men in Hospital as Result With Their Car Held in Charge.

A despatch from Brantford, Ont., says:—Two cars, one small, driven by John Ludlow, rural mail carrier on the Hamilton Road and the other a larger one, driven by Roy Benwell of Detroit, meeting head on, sent two men to the hospital Thursday afternoon. The two are Roy Benwell, Detroit, and Albert Boisseau, also of Detroit, both of whom were in the big car.

The larger car was proceeding east and turned out to pass a load of hay. The other car, driven by the mail carrier was coming west, and they met head on with a crash that threw Ludlow through the windshield onto the road. That he escaped serious injury is considered a miracle. Benwell was held in his car by the steering wheel and was severely injured in the abdomen. Mrs. C. Martin, in Ludlow's car, escaped injury. The Detroit men were held by the police and their car is in charge.

GERMANY DROPS DEMAND FOR PRIVILEGES AS MEMBER OF LEAGUE

A despatch from Locarno says:—Important progress toward the completion of the Rhineland compact was made on Thursday when, as a result of private conversations, the German delegation agreed to proceed to negotiate on a basis of dropping the Reich's demand for special conditions for Germany's entry into the League of Nations, while the League members represented here agreed to support favorably certain proposals which Germany might make as a League member.

This means that Germany has at last seen the impossibility of getting any prior special dispensation for entering the League, and Thursday's development marks the elimination from the Locarno negotiations of an issue which threatened many complications.

What now remains to be done is to work out a program of the proposals which Germany, as a League member, would make. This problem presents difficulties for Dr. Luther and Dr. Stresemann because of the opinions of the Nationalists in Germany.

As Dr. Luther put it this morning to one of the other delegates: "What is necessary now is to find a formula which will be acceptable to the German people."

It is, of course, impossible to say now what will be the League projects which the Germans will ask the Allies to support as League members. One knows what prior conditions the Germans wish—exemption from the duty of giving military aid to the League, and a special regime concerning the right of forces of the League members to cross her territory to protect a member in danger.

Certainly Germany will not get full satisfaction. But since her strongest argument is that a disarmed nation surrounded by armed nations is in a special situation, it may be guessed that disarmament will be linked up with the effort to satisfy the Germans.

LONG SEARCH ENDS IN MURDERER'S ARREST

Officer of R.C.M.P. Captures Pashton in North Country After 18-Month Hunt.

A despatch from Cobalt says:—Nick Pashton, sought by the police for 18 months in connection with a fatal shooting at Island Falls, 43 miles north of Cobalt, has been captured in the country between the end of the Timiskaming & Northern Ontario steel and James Bay, according to a report reaching here from the far North. An officer of the R.C.M.P. is said to have made the arrest.

Pashton was named by a Coroner's jury as the slayer of Joseph Lasalle, about 1.30 p.m., Monday, April 21, 1924. The shooting followed a quarrel the previous day, in which both men and Bert Racicot took part. After the alleged murder Pashton disappeared, and he has not been seen by the police since. He is an expert trapper and well acquainted with the district beyond Island Falls.

Largest Turbines in World to be Installed in Quebec

Quebec, Oct. 11.—Ten of the largest turbines in the world, with a capacity of 30,000 horsepower each, are to be installed at Chipawau, Que., near Chute a Caron, where the new Aluminum Corporation of America plants will be completed by the end of 1926, according to an official statement made at Chute a Caron by E. S. Fiske, Vice-President of the corporation. Some 8,000 men will be employed when the new plants are in operation.

Original Copy of "Maria Chapdelaine" Destroyed

A despatch from Paris says:—The original copy of Maria Chapdelaine, Louis Hemon's masterpiece, has been destroyed by a mistake, according to a rumor in circulation here. The priceless manuscript had been laid away in the archives of a local library. Some time ago renovation of the building was started and the book was thrown into the furnace by mistake.

Neck Broken When His Car Plunged Down Bank

A despatch from Orangeville, Ont., says:—While returning from Creemore Tuesday evening, Nelson Lawrence, a well-known cattle buyer of Honeywood, met death when the car he was driving left the road and tumbled down a steep twenty-foot embankment on the River Road near Creemore. His body was found Wednesday morning, his neck was broken. He is survived by his wife and one daughter.

Watford Pioneer Dies at Age of One Hundred

A despatch from Watford says:—Watford's centenarian, Mary Jane Land, widow of the late John Stapleford and mother of ex-Reeve Sanford Stapleford, died at the residence of her son on Ontario Street at the age of 100 years, 1 month and 20 days. Mrs. Stapleford was born in the Township of Saltfleet, near Hamilton, on Aug. 18, 1825, and was a great-niece of Robert Land, the pioneer founder of the City of Hamilton.

Picture Canada's Industries for Use in British Press

A despatch from London says:—Arrangements have been made with the Canadian Government Motion Picture Bureau for the supply of photographs illustrating the industries—fruit-growing, fishing, manufacturing, mining, etc.—of the Dominion. These prints are now being prepared, and will be available in about six weeks. They will be distributed to the press of Great Britain.

United States Tourists Bring Canada Increased Revenue

A despatch from Ottawa says:—Tourists from the United States brought $150,000,000 in revenue to Canada in 1925, according to estimates of government officials. This sum is equal to a quarter of the value of the Dominion's wheat crop and approximates the values of the annual mining output of Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia combined.

More than 2,000,000 American automobiles, it is estimated, have crossed into Canada already this year. They carried approximately 9,000,000 tourists, or one tourist for every man, woman and child in the Dominion. Every province shared in the tourist business. Ontario received the largest traffic. Last year 1,376,988 cars from the United States entered Ontario, 163,878 of which stayed from two to thirty days, 1,645 from one to six months, and the remainder shorter periods.

Amber is not week's puzzle.

ELECTRIC FLAMES OUT FROM VICTIM'S FEET

Wallaceburg Man May Recover From Burns Caused by Contact With Live Wire.

A despatch from Wallaceburg, Ont., says:—John T. Rankin, a local carpenter, had a miraculous escape from death Thursday afternoon while working on the demolition of the old town hall, upon which site will be erected the new Hydro building. He was in the act of throwing over a steel cable to attach it to a chimney, when the cable became entangled in a high voltage Hydro cable, the severe shock knocking Rankin to the ground and rendering him unconscious.

The accident was witnessed by a little girl, who called for assistance, and Provincial Officer W. C. Oliver, who lives close by, was early on the scene and rendered first aid to the victim, from whose feet he found electric flames shooting out.

Several of the injured man's toes, one arm and both hands were very badly burned, and although his condition is serious, it is believed that he will recover. It was some time after the accident that he recovered consciousness.

Regina's First White Settler Dies of Sleeping Sickness

Regina, Oct. 11.—Succumbing to sleeping sickness at the age of 67, Regina's first white settler, F. M. Crapper, died at the Regina General Hospital this morning, following an illness of one week.

Mr. Crapper arrived in Regina forty-three years ago with the first party of settlers, and camped in a tent on the site of the present city. There were only four in the party. They left Brandon early in the spring of 1882, before the snow had gone, and trekked to the West with ox teams.

B.C. Sea Serpents Are Gigantic Eels, Say Indians

Victoria, Oct. 11.—Indians of the Queen Charlotte Islands, off the coast of Northern British Columbia, where "sea serpents" have been reported seen several times this year, have classified the monsters as gigantic eels, according to a report received here by John P. Babcock, Deputy Commissioner of Fisheries.

The eels, according to the Indians, inhabit a slimy, submarine cave at a point on one of the most northerly of the group of islands.

The aborigines say that several years ago they killed one of the fish, which was more than 40 feet long.

A despatch from Ottawa says:—How serious is the effect of the illegal diversion of Great Lakes water by the Chicago Drainage Canal is shown in the computations by hourly readings from the automatic gauge records of the Canadian Hydrographic Office of the Dept. of Marine and Fisheries for the month of September this year.

For Lake Ontario the readings show the water level to have been 33 foot lower than in August, 1.07 feet lower than September last year, and 1.44 feet lower than the average stage of September for the last ten years. For Lake Erie the level was 16 foot lower than in August, 1.12 feet lower than September last year, and 1.54 feet lower than the average of September for the last ten years.

The level of Lake Huron was most seriously affected, the September level being 21 foot lower than in August, 1.42 feet lower than in September last year, and 2.39 feet lower than the average of September for the last ten years.

EXPLORATION SHIP ARRIVES AT QUEBEC

Captain Bernier Reports the Most Adventurous Trip the "Arctic" Has Experienced.

Quebec, Que., Oct. 11.—The Canadian Government exploration ship Arctic, commanded by Captain J. E. Bernier, arrived here Saturday after one of the most adventurous trips the vessel has ever experienced.

Delayed on her departure from the ancient capital for several days through an accident to the ship's machinery, and then having her radio outfit go back on her when she was under way to the Arctic after she had completed the early stages of her voyage, and had relieved Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers at various stations, was caught in the main pack of the Baffin Bay ice and held there for 14 days, during which she tried desperately to nose her way through the packed floes.

One of the incidents of the outward trip was an accident to Captain Bernier, who was knocked down by a swinging boom during a storm off Greenland, but fortunately he did not suffer any ill-effects, although he is still suffering from bruised ribs. He will, however, go under the X-ray for examination. Latitude 78.46 north was the furthest point reached by the expedition.

British Hope Prince Will be Pied Piper of Trade

A despatch from London says:—Big business in Great Britain is hoping that the Prince of Wales will prove to be a sort of Pied Piper, with commercial orders instead of children following in his homeward wake across the ocean.

Even before he went to South America there were criticisms in the House of Commons about his being used as a glorified commercial drummer, as well as an ambassador of the empire, and now that he is homeward bound there is a great deal being written and said about the prospects of British trade in Argentina being given a fillip by his visit.

The correspondents who accompanied him there kept their eyes open for trade news and sent home reports as to how and where and why the Germans, Americans, Italians and others were getting more and more export business from South American customers than they might if the British houses tried a little harder to please potential buyers.

United States Tourists Bring Canada Increased Revenue

A despatch from Ottawa says:—Tourists from the United States brought $150,000,000 in revenue to Canada in 1925, according to estimates of government officials. This sum is equal to a quarter of the value of the Dominion's wheat crop and approximates the values of the annual mining output of Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia combined.

More than 2,000,000 American automobiles, it is estimated, have crossed into Canada already this year. They carried approximately 9,000,000 tourists, or one tourist for every man, woman and child in the Dominion. Every province shared in the tourist business. Ontario received the largest traffic. Last year 1,376,988 cars from the United States entered Ontario, 163,878 of which stayed from two to thirty days, 1,645 from one to six months, and the remainder shorter periods.

60,000 Pilgrims to Lourdes Shrine in Single Day

A despatch from Paris says:—Twenty-seven special trains were required recently to carry the pilgrims of one day to Lourdes, the "miracle town" of France, where the Virgin Mary is said to have appeared to a child in 1858, and where a magnificent church now stands on the supposed site of that apparition. Pilgrims flock thither, hoping for miraculous cures through the intercession of the Virgin.

The day was that of the Nativity of the Virgin, and the number of visitors was estimated at 60,000. The largest group was one of 6,000 from Cambrai, and others were: 3,500 from Rouen; 2,500 from Coutances, which has a population of only 7,000, and 1,100 from Grenoble.

From abroad came 120 pilgrims from Eng., including fifteen cripples, several of these being Protestants; 1,200 pilgrims from Italy, including 400 sick, and 600 from Portugal, thirty of whom were seeking cures. Each of the French parties brought groups of lame and sick, varying from four hundred to forty.

Serious Floods Feared in Quebec from Heavy Rainfall

A despatch from Quebec says:—The heavy rain that has been general throughout the Province of Quebec in the past month has given rise to fears of floods in the northern sections. Huron in the Laurentian Mountains report that the water in lakes and rivers is very high.

WOMEN'S HANDICAPS

Headaches and Backaches Often Make Life Miserable.

A woman's health handicaps her almost always. She has pains and disabilities which do not afflict men. Nature does not give her a fair chance. Her blood is more often thin and poor than a man's, and she often neglects the first beginnings of ill-health. Many women who seemed destined to a life of frequent suffering have been freed entirely from their suffering through the wonderful blood-making qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Many a woman tells all day with a pain in her back and side, a burning headache, and a sense of having no spine left.

What a pity women will not listen to their friends whom Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have saved from their misery. Whenever a woman suffers they will help her—in youth, middle-age and afterlife. Mrs. John Mitchell, of Middleville, Ont., gives her experience for the benefit of other women sufferers. She says: "Some years ago I was so badly run down I could hardly walk around the house. I tried to do a few chores but was able to do very little. My boys and husband had to do the rest. If I started up stairs I had to go very slow or I would fall, and I was just played out when I got at the top of the stairs. My head ached terribly, and my heart would beat violently. In this deplorable condition I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When I had finished six boxes I felt much better. Then I got a further supply, and by the time I had taken these I could walk anywhere without being exhausted, the headaches had disappeared and I am now perfectly well. Any woman who is run down should not hesitate to begin Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at once, as I am sure from my own experience they will build her up."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cts. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Was Suspicious.

After reading about starved lives and the soul hunger of wives for a kind word, Mr. Tenspot became contrite and resolved to do better. So on reaching home he hailed his better half after this fashion:

"Well, here she is, the best little wife in the world."

"John," interposed his wife, sharply, "have you been drinking?"

"Of course not."

"Then what have you been up to?"

The Passing of Autumn.

The wizard has woven his ancient scheme

A day and a starlit night,
And the world is a shadowy, pencilled dream

Of color, haze and light.

Like something an angel wrought,

maybe,

To answer a fairy's whim,

A fold of an ancient tapestry,

A phantom, rare and dim.

Silent and smooth as the crystal stone

The river lies serene,

And the fading hills are a jewelled throne

For the Fall and the Mist, his Queen.

Slim as out of aerial seas

The elms and poplars fair

Float like the dainty spirits of trees

In the mellow, dreamlike air.

Silvery-soft by the forest side—

Wine-red, yellow, rose—

The wizard of Autumn, faint, blue-eyed—

Swinging his censur, goes.

—Archibald Lampman.

A Sidelight on History.

An interesting piece of secret history, which explains how the German naval signal codes came into the hands of the British Admiralty, has just been revealed.

When the German cruiser Magdeburg struck a mine near the island of Odenholm, off the Estonian coast, the crew abandoned the ship and surrendered. But it was noticed by some Russians that one of the German officers jumped overboard.

This aroused the Russians' curiosity, the spot was noted, and a diver was sent down. He recovered the body of the officer, and it was then found that the latter has secured to his person a number of secret German naval codes.

A copy of these codes was supplied to the British Admiralty, but the Germans, unaware that they had fallen into hostile hands, continued to use them. It is stated that the possession of these German codes was of considerable value to the British fleet during the battle of Jutland.

A LITTLE BOOKLET

MOTHERS SHOULD HAVE

It Tells What a Mother Ought to Know for Baby's Sake.

Above all things every mother wishes that her child, or children, whatever their age, may be bright, healthy, good-natured, rosy boys and girls; clear eyed, clear skinned babies; good sleepers, bright wakers. Every mother's wish for her little folks is that they may be well.

It is natural for little folks to be well. No wise mother thinks that her child at any age is in a natural state unless it is well and happy. No mother can expect, though, that her child will escape all the ills to which babyhood and childhood are subject, but she can do much to make baby's battles for health easily won.

A valuable little booklet entitled "Care of the Baby in Health and Sickness" has been prepared and as it is something every mother should have, a copy will be sent free to any mother on request who will mention this paper by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Europe's Largest Glacier.

The largest glacier in Europe is the Jostedal Brae, in Norway.

Why are good resolutions like a squalling baby at church? Because they should always be carried out.

Commercial Mind.

A country minister was talking to one of his flock, who ventured the opinion that ministers should be better paid.

"I am glad to hear you say that," the minister said. "I am pleased that you think so much of the clergy. And so you think that we should have better stipends?"

"Yes," said the man. "Ye see, we'd get a better class of men."

Not Really Afraid.

"Bang!" went the rifles at the manoeuvres.

OBITUARY

Thomas Goddard—Mt. Dennis.
The sudden death after a few days illness of Mr. Thomas Goddard, J.P., came as a shock to the whole community. Deceased suffered a slight stroke a few months ago, from which he seemed to have pretty fully recovered. After the death of his wife in 1911, who prior to her marriage was Miss Maggie Beamish of Brindale, Mr. Goddard gave up farming near Weston, and moved to Mt. Dennis, where he engaged in the real estate and building business. He leaves two sons, Adam Bruce, aged 17 years and James Henry Gordon, 14 years. The late Mr. Goddard took an active interest in all matters pertaining to the public welfare. For two years he held the office of Deputy-Reeve of York Township, was on the executive of the local Conservative Association, was chief of the Volunteer Fire Brigade, an Orangeman and a Methodist. In 1882 his parents and a family of three boys and three girls emigrated from Yorkshire, England. Two years later his father died and Tom, the eldest of the family, took his father's place as mainstay, and succeeded so well that to the time of his death his brothers and sisters looked to him for advice in business matters. The funeral to Riverside Cemetery, Weston, was one of the largest in years and was under the direction of L.O.L. 602. The service at the house was conducted by Revs. Wallace and Rogers. Floral tributes were sent by York Township Council, who attended in body, East York Township, Mt. Dennis Fire Brigade, Staff of Bala Ave. School, West Toronto Bowling Club, Mt. Dennis Conservative Association, Ladies' Conservative Association, London Fire Ins. Co., Mt. Dennis United Church, Mt. Dennis Baptist S. S. and from a host of friends and relatives.

Mrs. L. Rogers of Manvers, Ont. and Mrs. Stainsby of Toronto are sisters of deceased, and Mr. Levi Goddard of Maple, Ont., and Mr. Aaron Goddard of Woodbridge are brothers. The boys have the deepest sympathy of a wide circle of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Walker, of Streetsville, announce the engagement of their elder daughter, Emily Belle, to Gordon McMurray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert McMurray, of Oakville. The marriage is to take place the middle of October.

Thurman McDougall of Acton, has unearthed a potato which has broken the record for large "spuds" in Halton County. This potato, a Cobbler, weighs 3 pounds 1 ounce, beating J. Randall's Cobbler in Milton by one ounce.

Bed-bug Stampedes Whole Family

If it is true that one bed-bug can stampede a human family then what must a sheep feel like if her owner permits a thousand ticks to worry her all winter. Since every living thing must eat to live, the question arises, who feeds the tick? Assuredly the owner of the sheep and this is one of the big leaks from the profit side of the account.

Plan to dip your flock on a bright day in mid-October and don't fail to make a good job of it when you are at it; time thus spent will pay you well.

Probably one of the best products for this purpose on the market is Cooper's Sheep Dip. This preparation will kill both ticks, lice, prevent scab and materially result in an improved fleece. The above mentioned material may be secured either locally or from the Canadian Co-Operative Wool Growers, Ltd., of Toronto.

AIRCRAFT FOR FAMILY USE

Henry Ford Has Experts Working on Design for Suitable Engine

There is positive belief that before many years air craft will be used generally for tripping about our country, and experts are working on an easily controlled engine and plane that will carry the maximum of safety.

In order to assist in its development Henry Ford, of motor fame, has men in his laboratory already developing a motor for this type of aeroplane. It will be an eight cylinder, air cooled X type motor, developing 200 horse power and weighing about two pounds to the horsepower. It will have, he said, all of the economical characteristics of automobile motors.

The motor as designed and now in process of construction will have accessible and interchangeable parts and no adjustments, he continued. If a part wears out it can be thrown away and another one put in.

The manufacturer said the new motor would be tested out in a plane within a short time.

H. P. Moore, P.M. who went to Toronto General Hospital for operation and treatment on the 25th of August, returned home on Tuesday. His recovery appears to be complete, but it will require a week or so for convalescence. Mr. Moore speaks very highly of the skill of the physicians who treated him, of the experienced care of his nurses, and in general the comfort ensured and courtesy of the staff and administration of the hospital.—Acton Free Press.

The churches of Mt. Pleasant and Cheltenham extended a call this week to Rev. Stewart Ferguson, of Baltimore, to become their pastor, offering a stipend of $1,500, free manse and three weeks vacation. Mr. Ferguson asked for a week in which to consider the offer. Both churches are United Churches, Mt. Pleasant voting to go into Union and Cheltenham going in automatically.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Featherstone, of Hamilton, and formerly of Oakville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Eva Irene, to John Thomas Armstrong, son of Mrs. K. Armstrong, of Toronto, wedding to take place in the middle of October.

PORT CREDIT

Harry Fleuty and James Martin, both of Oakville, were severely injured at 3.15 Sunday morning when the Ford sedan in which they were riding smashed into a freight train at the level crossing on the Centre road. The sedan was thrown into the ditch and entirely wrecked.

The two men were proceeding south on the Centre Road, Fleuty driving and Martin sitting in the adjoining front seat. The freight train, which was travelling east at a moderate rate of speed, was halfway across the level crossing when the sedan crashed into the side of one of the cars. The engineer did not know of the accident until he was notified at Mimico by F. Collins, the Port Credit night operator.

The two men were thrown clear of the car, and Martin, his face streaming with blood, was found wandering along the highway in a dazed condition by Highway Constable Jerry Jerome. He was picked up by the constable, and taken to the offices of Dr. Brayley. He had no idea of what had occurred when questioned about the accident. After he had been examined by the doctor, it was found that he had suffered head and internal injuries, and he was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Fleuty, in the meantime, attempted to phone for a doctor, who had him taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. He has a fractured rib.

For three-quarters of an hour traffic was blocked, and it was unable to proceed until the train crew arrived and cleared away the debris. Both men are unmarried. Fleuty, who is 26 years of age, is not in a serious condition. It is feared that Martin, who is 25 years old, has a fractured skull.

BRAMPTON

Warden Pallett, Peel; Warden McIntyre, Halton; Reeve T. H. Elliott, Chinguacousy, and Reeve George Barber, Acton, visited the House of Refuge yesterday, and received a report from Superintendent Richard Partridge, to the effect that there are 61 inmates of the house at the present time, as against 50 at the same time last year. The committee expressed themselves as delighted with the condition of the house, and also with the appearance and standing of the farm connected with the institution.

BRAMPTON

The presentation of the King's colors to the Peel and Dufferin Regiment, which took place at Rosalea Sunday afternoon, was witnessed by nearly 2,000 people who braved raw, cold weather to take part in this historic event. Col. L. Bertram was in command of the regiment, which turned out 200 strong, with a full contingent of officers and the regimental band. Marching from the armories through the town, the regiment formed a hollow square, before which the Peel regiment chapter of the I.O.G.E. formed, escorted by Major A. Fifth and Captain Norman Stewart. After the colors had been dedicated by the chaplain, Capt. H. P. Charters, they were handed to the standard bearer, Mrs. J. S. Beck, by Major J. A. Hughes, M.C., second in command, who in turn gave them to the regent, Mrs. W. D. Sharpe, who presented them to Col. Bertram on behalf of the Order. Col. Bertram made a suitable reply on behalf of the regiment, after which the regiment saluted the colors.

In reporting Mr. Percy Parker's meeting at Brampton last Wednesday, the Daily Star has the following:—Leslie Pallett, formerly chairman of the county Conservative association, said he came there not as a Liberal, not as a Conservative, but as a citizen of Peel. Peel had been neglected in the past, but he believed Mr. Parker was a man who was for Peel first, last and all the time, and who would see that Peel's natural development was not hampered by government neglect. He said he had heard but one criticism of Mr. Parker among the Conservatives, and they wished he was their candidate.

Mr. McCaugherty, Mr. Maxwell and Mr. Johnson, in their speeches, pledged their hearty support to Mr. Parker, and stated that they were in the campaign to the exclusion of everything else until the last ballot had been polled.

They all declared they had been out working among members of the Progressive party since the convention held last Saturday, and they had yet to find one Progressive who was supporting the Conservative candidate.

CHURCHVILLE

Churchville United Church will continue its weekly evening services this winter, each organization in the church being responsible for one night in the month. The Sunday School took charge last week, Allan Andrews presiding, and Leslie Pugh reading a paper on the lesson. Plans have been made to study the Book of Ephesians in common with other United congregations, and Rev. Ernest Payne will direct the study.

John Sheppard of Georgetown, was fined $50 and costs for having liquor in an illegal place.

Jas. T. Andrew, formerly of Oakville, died suddenly with heart disease at his home in Toronto. He was buried at Oakville.

Rev. Malcolm McArthur of the Church, Brampton, has accepted a call to the Knox United Church, London.

Edith Howell of Oakville, was instantly killed when she fell from her bicycle to the pavement. She was hanging onto a motor car.

Fire originating in the plant house of Perkins & Sons, florists, destroyed it and part of the greenhouse, at an early hour this morning. Prompt action on the part of the firemen confined the blaze to one end of the main building.

"Start a great big immigration movement into Canada, of people not only willing to work but for whom profitable work can be found, and all the pressing problems that now beset our country will be well on the way to solution."

—What Everybody Says.

Fine—let us do so! But to be sure we're on the straight and sure road to our goal, let us begin by doing some clear thinking—some hard thinking—on these two important questions:

1. What class of immigrants do we want?
2. How are we going to attract them?

Valuable Lessons to be Learned from Past Failures.

Heretofore we have always taken it for granted—without much careful thought, perhaps—that it was farmer immigrants we most wanted,—people who would settle on our vacant land in the West, and produce more from the soil.

And complaints being loud and numerous that farming in Canada was not as profitable as it should be, we have tried to convert an unattractive situation into an attractive one by lowering the tariff on manufactured goods, in the hope of thereby lowering farm production costs, and so increasing the farmer's net.

Has that plan gotten us anywhere?

In 1924, despite tariff reductions made ostensibly to benefit agriculture, there were actually fewer farm immigrants than in 1923! And when, against the total immigration for 1923 and 1924, we offset the total emigration from our towns and cities, we find that the country has suffered a net loss!

So, obviously there is something wrong—somewhere—in the plan we have been following,—either in the assumption that it is farmers we most want, or in our method of attracting them. Perhaps it's a combination of the two.

Population Increases Should be Properly Balanced.

In shaping our policy as above, we have certainly overlooked one very important point. Farmers as a rule don't sell to farmers, but to town and city folk. So when we try to increase farm population by methods that operate to decrease town and city population, we are actually making things worse for the very people we are trying to benefit. We are curtailing a domestic market that our farmers can control, and we are increasing their dependence upon an export market over which they have no control!

An Alternative Plan that Promises Better Success.

Let us now go back to the beginning again, and start from the alternative assumption that it's primarily town and city population we want to attract.

Are 63 Countries Wrong and Only Canada Right?

While Canada has been lowering her tariff, these 63 countries have been raising theirs:—

Algeria	Japan
Argentina	Latvia
Australia	Luxembourg
Austria	Madagascar
Belgium	Malta
Bolivia	Mesopotamia
Brazil	Mexico
British East Africa	Netherlands East
Dependencies	India
British Guiana	Newfoundland
British Honduras	New Zealand
British West	Nigeria
India	Norway
Bulgaria	Paraguay
Chile	Persia
China	Peru
Colombia	Poland
Czecho-Slovakia	Portugal
Ecuador	Roumania
Egypt	Russia
Estonia	Samoa
Finland	San Salvador
France	Sarawak
Repub. of Georgia	Serb-Croat
Germany	Slovene State
Gold Coast	Seychelles
Colony	Sierra Leone
Greece	South Africa
Guatemala	Spain
Holland	Sweden
Honduras	Switzerland
India	Tunis
Irish Free State	United States
Italy	Uruguay

And now even the United Kingdom has begun to protect her home markets.

63 Countries have been making it more difficult for Canada to sell in their markets, while Canada has been making it easier for the whole world to sell in hers!

Have they all blundered? Has Canada alone shown wisdom?

Obviously the way to attract that class is by switching from a policy of lower duties to one of higher duties. The one thing above all others that the immigrant wants is the assurance of a steady job at good wages. Give him that, and he will come in his thousands,—yes, in his tens of thousands! And in a policy of higher tariffs he will have his guarantee that steady work at good wages will be awaiting him.

"Yes," you say, "but what about our farm population? We want it to increase too!" Of course we do! But with town and city population increasing, can farm population do other than increase in proportion? With more customers for farm produce, and with a higher purchasing power per customer due to higher wages, isn't it inevitable that a domestic supply will be forthcoming to meet a domestic demand, particularly if we protect farm products in the same way that we propose to protect manufactured products?

A Precedent That Shows What Can Be Done!

We have tried the plan of lower tariffs, as a means of attracting farmer immigration, and we see that it has signally failed, and we know the reasons why it has failed.

Why not now try the alternative plan of higher tariffs, as a means of attracting urban immigration, when it seems perfectly clear that it must bring farmer immigration in its train?

Even if the latter were mere theory, that would be no valid reason for rejecting it in favor of a policy we have tried, and found to be barren of results.

But we know that it is far beyond the theory stage. The United States offers a practical demonstration of its success! By the plan of higher tariffs, to benefit all classes of population, the United States has managed to attract the biggest and longest sustained immigration movement the world has ever known!

What better example does Canada want?

Smoker and Euchre

The Smoker and Euchre held in the Orange Hall on Wednesday evening by the O.Y.B. of Streetsville was a decided success in every way. The card playing started at nine o'clock and finished at eleven, during which time smokes were passed around and consumed until the committee had to open the windows so the players could see the cards. There was also a basket of apples which were enjoyed by all. After the card playing lunch was served and the winners were announced. Mr. R. Wedgewood was the best player getting the highest score for the first prize, a handsome club bag. Mr. E. E. King was a close second being only two points down and won a set of military brushes. They were asked to step forward and Jack Drennan, W.M., presented them with their prizes. The boys are very much pleased with the success of the euchre and intend holding some more, so watch for posters.

United Church Notes

This Sunday
10.00 a.m. Sunday School
10.15. Bible Class. Teacher...
Rev. W. A. MacKay.
Rev. Mr. MacKay will preach at Britannia in the morning. Meadowvale at 2.30 p.m. and at Streetsville at 7 p.m.
Mr. Smart will preach at Streetsville at 11 a.m. and at Eden at 2.30.
The Prayer meeting last evening was under the leadership of Rev. W. A. MacKay. The subject, 'What is success?' was dealt with by Cecil Dowling and Rev. MacKay. Next Wed. the Literary and Recreational Com. is in charge.
Britannia Harvest Home services were largely attended last Sunday and on Tuesday evening a first class supper and entertainment were held. Mrs. Lindsay and Miss Hazel Ross of Streetsville delighted the audience with their readings and Miss Beck of Brampton and Mr. Tuck of Oakville were the soloists. Rev. Mr. MacKay was the chairman.

STREETSVILLE FAIR

Considering the lateness of the season, Streetsville Fair last Saturday was well attended, there being about 2,500 people on the grounds and the gate receipts were $400.00. There was a good showing of all kinds of live stock, while the competition in the ring and the horse races were a great attraction. The display of ladies' work, fruit, vegetables, domestic work, etc., in the hall was well up to the average and the produce of the field showed that there was a good crop of roots.

There were plenty of side shows to amuse the boys, both old and young, but the 'fakirs' had a chilly time of it on the hillside. Several manufactured articles were on exhibition and the Ford Motor cars showed a full line of new models. Port Credit Brass Band played several selections and led the school children's parade from the school to the grounds. Mr. S. L. Hall, president, and the directors are well satisfied with the success of the day.

JUNIORS DANCE

At the Orange Hall on Fair night, over 100 young people enjoyed a social dance, conducted by the Junior Institute. Excellent music was furnished by Forster's Orchestra of Port Credit, and the dance terminated sharp at 12 o'clock. The dancers came from the village and vicinity and some from great distances.

It was a great success in every way and the management are well satisfied with the results.

ERINDALE

R. Home Smith, who promoted the Humber driveway and other improvements on both banks of the Humber River, has, in company with W. R. P. Parker, Liberal candidate in Peel, and other capitalists, purchased half of the famous Erindale Farm on the east bank of the Credit River. The farm property covers a square mile, and has an area of 640 acres. The Home Smith and Parker syndicate has bought 300 acres, and will hold the land for investment.

The Erindale Farm is on the north side of the Dundas Highway, the entrance being just east of the Credit River. It is one of the beauty spots of the district west of Toronto, and is very well known. It was the farm of S. Price & Sons, dairymen, who a few years ago disposed of their business to the City Dairy Company, but the farm remained in the Price family. Thomas Price last night stated the 300 acres of the farm property had been sold.

DISTRICT NOTES

George Mason of Trafalgar Township, picked a McIntosh red apple to-day which tipped the scales at 1 pound and 4 ounces. Apples in Halton are an abundant crop.

Stanley Johnston of Trafalgar Township has several snow apple trees in his orchard showing the unusual spectacle of full bloom simultaneously with the ripening of the apples.

Lou Jacobs of Nelson Township, south of Milton, is the champion apple-picker of Halton County, and, perhaps, of the Dominion, he having picked forty-four barrels of apples in nine hours, a record which would be hard to beat.

The mere fact that the rain was pouring down did not dampen the spirits nor the ardor of Caledon Villagers Tories when they turned out in strength to a meeting in the Township Hall in the interests of Sam Charters, the Conservative candidate. In addition to an interesting speech from the candidate, David Wilson, ex-reeve of Albion, A. Grenville Davis and F. R. Marshall of Toronto, gave addresses. The latter stressed the fact that protection was not a matter for the towns alone, but was equally for the benefit of the country as a whole. Homer Hilliard occupied the chair.

OBITUARY

Charles Norris, Jr.
There passed away at his home, Lot 9, Con. 2, Trafalgar, last night, Charles Norris Jr., a well-known farmer, whose death is deeply mourned in the whole district. Deceased, who was in his thirty-fourth year, is survived by his widow, two sons and two daughters.

Mrs. F. W. Gillies
Mrs. F. W. Gillies, a highly-esteemed resident of Brampton, passed away last night at her late home, William Street, after a long illness. She had been a resident of this town for many years, and was an active worker in the Presbyterian Church, having held offices in its Mission Circle and Ladies' Aid Society. During the war she was deeply interested in Red Cross work, and of late years was a member of the Victorian Order of Nurses. Previous to her marriage she was Miss Elizabeth Thompson, a daughter of the late Robert Thompson. Mrs. Gillies was born at St. Mary's, and the funeral tomorrow will be held there. A service was held at her late home tonight, and was conducted by Rev. James Wilson. She is survived by her husband, one brother, John, of St. Mary's, and one sister, Mrs. Wylie Clark, of Saskatoon, Sask.

SOLEMN PACT TO INSURE PEACE SIGNED BY GREAT POWERS AT LOCARNO

France and Germany Make Covenant of Boundary Line
Forever Inviolable to Invaders—Britain and Italy Promise to Go to Military Assistance of Either Nation Which is Victim of Violation of This Pledge.

A despatch from Locarno, Switzerland, says:—Just as the armistice ended the Great War, so on Thursday, making history, treaties were adopted at Locarno designed to render impossible any reopening of that Great War. Germany and the Allied powers approved the text of a security pact outlawing war.

When word of the agreement spread from mouth to mouth, like some wireless flash, this peaceful spot, nestled at the lakeside beneath towering mountains, seemed to pulsate with the thrill of countless multitudes dwelling throughout the world.

The Rhine pact of security adopted on Thursday and initiated on Friday, pledges its signatories, France, Germany and Belgium, not to attack or invade one another's territory and to abstain from war. Great Britain and Italy stand as guarantors of this engagement and promise to throw their forces away from the parties which violate its terms.

France is allowed to keep certain rights embodied in the Treaty of Versailles, and, notably, take immediate action should Germany commit a hostile act by constructing fortifications either on the left bank of the Rhine or within 50 kilometres (about thirty miles) of its east bank, or keep armed forces within that area.

The pact ceases to hold when combined penalties against any aggressor nation are ordered by the League of Nations, or when by virtue of Article XV, of the League covenant, and by reason of failure of the council to reach unanimity on any dispute, the League members may take such action as they deem necessary for the maintenance of right and justice.

The Permanent Court of International Justice, Boards of Conciliation, and the League Council are all possibilities for arbitration of all disputes under the pact, and arbitration is obligatory.

Besides the Rhine pact, an agreement was reached on collateral arbitration treaties between Germany and France and Germany and Belgium; these interlock with the pact itself. There will be, in addition, arbitration treaties between Germany and her eastern neighbors, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

These are expected to be concluded at once, and will follow the same scope as the western treaties. There will also be separate conventions between France and her eastern allies, guaranteeing France the right to come to the assistance of Poland or Czechoslovakia in case they are subjected to an unprovoked, flagrant attack.

Lastly comes the gentlemen's agreement, whereby Great Britain, France, Italy and Belgium inform Germany that they interpret the covenant in the sense that no penalty contributions can be expected from members beyond the members' means. By this statement, which will take the form of a letter, Germany is relieved of the fear that the operation of League sanctions might embroil her with Russia.

The various treaties will probably be signed at Locarno within a fortnight and League of Nations officials here for the closing conference, see no reason why, with the treaties ratified by December, Germany cannot enter the League by the end of the year.

A later despatch from Locarno says:—The Locarno Conference has reached a successful conclusion. What it will mean only time will tell. The most experienced statesman of the lot, Briand, said it meant laying the foundations of the United States of Europe. In a common communiqué the statesmen said, the Locarno Conference "must result in restoring the peace and security of Europe."

The following treaties will come out of Locarno: 1, The Rhine and security compact among Germany, Belgium, France, Great Britain and Italy; 2, an arbitration convention between Germany and France; 3, an arbitration convention between Germany and Belgium; 4, an arbitration treaty between Germany and Poland; 5, an arbitration treaty between Germany and Czechoslovakia.

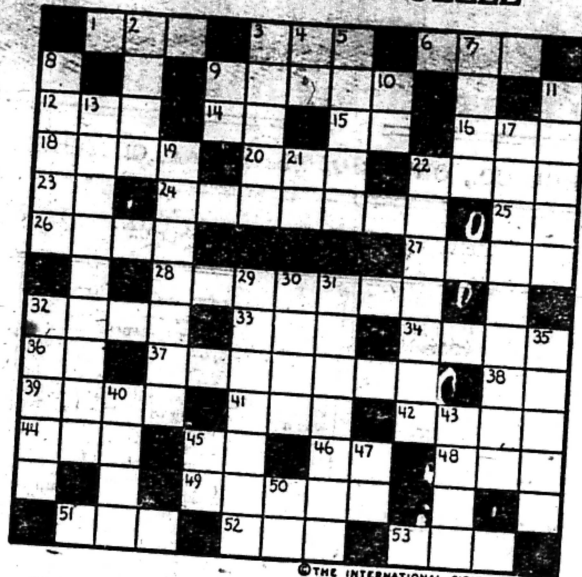

In addition there are two understandings, one between France and Poland, and the other between France and Czechoslovakia, by the terms of which France undertakes to guarantee the arbitration arrangements between Germany and France's two allies.

The Rhine and compact, of itself the most important of the treaties, binds France and Germany never to fight again, but to arbitrate or mediate their differences. Between them is established a demilitarized Rhineland. Britain and Italy agree to aid either party which is the victim of aggression by the other.

The arbitration treaties between Germany and France and between Germany and Belgium serve to carry out the Rhine and compact. The conventions between Berlin on the one hand and Prague and Warsaw on the other are intended to complete the assurance against wars between Germany and France and her allies.

But, important as are the treaties in themselves, all the statesmen emphasize that the all-important point is the restoration of equality among the nations of Europe, for henceforth Germany is to be received as an equal in European councils. A special session of the Assembly of the League of Nations probably will be held in December to admit her.

WEMBLEY EXHIBITION GOES TO LIQUIDATORS

Total Deficit May Reach Two Million Pounds—Question of Fate of Buildings.

London, Oct. 18.—The British Empire Exhibition at Wembley is to be finally wound up and trustees are to be appointed forthwith to liquidate the exhibition, in accordance with the regular custom in bringing to an end temporary associations.

The total deficit may reach £2,000,000, but this figure has not yet been definitely ascertained. This means an end to an enterprise which, in spite of its financial loss, has had very considerable effect on recent events in England.

Question of what is to become of the E. m. t. buildings is giving the authorities a good deal of trouble. No course has actually been decided on, and some persons, it is understood, are not yet satisfied that it would be impossible to continue the Empire Exhibition, in a smaller, but permanent form, and it is not unlikely some suggestion of this kind may be brought forward. But, in any case, the present Exhibition is to close Oct. 31, the final ceremony being conducted by the Duke and Duchess of York.

Five-Year-Old Boy Crushed Under Steam Roller

Crushed by a steam roller while at play, 5-year-old Lorne Ratz of Water street, met a tragic death Friday afternoon on St. George Street.

The boy was playing with two other children when, it is supposed, he fell under the eight-ton roller, the rear wheel passing over his head and crushing it to a pulp. The boy's mother, who was about to call him to her, was told that he had been crushed by the roller. She rushed to the scene, but the boy was already dead.

The steam roller, operated by Ezra Robinson, was doing repair work on St. George Street at the time of the fatality.

One Bicycle for Every Seventh Person in France

A despatch from Paris says:—France can boast of one bicycle for every seventh man, woman and child of its entire population. Official figures for the year 1924 show that 6,370,644 licenses for bicycles were issued, an increase of 532,721 over 1923. Virtually every workman in France owns a "Little Queen," as they call their wheels.

Motorist Pinioned Under Car Burned to Death

Montreal, Oct. 18.—Pinned beneath the burning wreck of an automobile, Rosaire Thibodeau, aged 20, of Shawinigan Falls, Que., was burned to death today on the highway near his bridge at Bout de l'Isle while his three friends looked on, helpless to save him because of the fierceness of the flames.

The accident occurred when the car was ditched in rounding a curve. Thibodeau's three companions, two girls and a man, were thrown from the machine, but he was caught beneath it. Almost instantly a leak in the gasoline tank caused the automobile to catch fire.

His companions vainly attempted to free him, but were driven back by the flames.

Modern Smelting Plant to be Erected at Rouyn Mine

Quebec, Oct. 18.—Marking a tremendous development in the gold-copper mining fields of this province, arrangements have been completed for the immediate erection of a large, modern smelting plant on Lot 156, Rouyn Township. The work will be started without delay.

The announcement followed conferences held Friday and Saturday between Government officials and the Noranda Mines, Ltd. The new smelter will handle the entire output of the mines, and will be ready for operation late next fall in time to supply the National Railways with ample business along the new Rouyn branch line.

Girl Falls from Auto and Drowns in River

Truro, N.S., Oct. 18.—Marion Macrae, 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Macrae, was drowned in North River, five miles from here, late Saturday night, when her father's automobile left the road, rolled down an embankment and landed on its wheels in the river bottom. Marion and her sister Beth fell out when the car door sprang open. They floated down stream, but Beth was able to save herself. Marion floated away in the darkness and all attempts to find her proved fruitless until this morning. None of the other six occupants left their seats or were injured.

Fine Harvesters Who Quit

A despatch from Winnipeg says:—The first fines to be recorded in Manitoba for refusal to obey employers' instructions were assessed against three harvest hands who abandoned their work during the height of the harvest season. They were fined $5 and costs.

Canada from Coast to Coast

Saint John, N.B.—Potato exports from this port to Cuba since the beginning of the season up to and including 28th of September have amounted to 75,027 bags and 12,950 barrels; as against 10,300 bags in the same period of 1924.

Quebec, Que.—After purchasing $85,000 worth of land from farmers in the parish of Cap Rouge, a short distance from the Dominion Experimental Farm, the St. Regis Paper Co. has decided to start the erection of its pulp and paper mills at that point early in May, 1926. Timber will be obtained from the large limits of the company on the North Shore along the lower St. Lawrence, and also from the Abitibi district.

Toronto, Ont.—Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, has announced that government assistance will be made in the marketing of the apple crop of the province. The government will carry out an extensive publicity campaign urging the citizens to use home-grown fruit, and will aid in securing export markets by purchasing 25,000 barrels of representative apples to be shipped overseas with a view of favorably impressing the buyers there with the quality of the Ontario fruit.

Winnipeg, Man.—Though rain and snow continued to retard threshing of operations in the Prairie Provinces last week, threshing generally is now two weeks ahead of last year. Soil is in excellent condition everywhere for fall plowing and a substantial increase of acreage is assured for 1926 over 1925. Recent rains have maintained pastures in good shape and the condition of cattle is reported as excellent.

Regina, Sask.—Corn is steadily gaining in popularity throughout the West as an aid to diversified farming and it is estimated that 100,000 acres were grown in Saskatchewan last year. Although seed was scarce in 1924 and the price rather high, the acreage will probably be slightly higher this year than last.

Edmonton, Alta.—Tar sand deposits at Fort McMurray are being investigated just now by a party of municipal and Dominion engineers. The investigators intend to look over the whole situation with a view to making a full report on development work and prospects for next year.

Victoria, B.C.—Plans for cleaning timothy will be established at Burns Lake and Smithers, Central British Columbia, by the agricultural department of the provincial government. Quite a number of farmers in that part of the country are now engaged in the production of timothy seed for the market. The seed grown there is of an exceptionally fine quality and there is a big demand for it.

AUSTRALIA EXCLUDES UNDESIRABLE BY TEST

Scot Unable to Speak German is Deported from the Commonwealth.

Adelaide, Australia, Oct. 18.—An interesting example of the Commonwealth's wide powers in the exclusion of undesirable immigrants, even British subjects, is shown in the case of Donald Stewart, a young Scotsman, who was sentenced to six months' imprisonment as a prohibited immigrant, and ordered deported. A dictation test was applied in German, which Mr. Stewart failed to pass. He protested that he was a Scotsman, and not a German, and that he did not understand. The officers have the power to apply a test in any European language.

This provides a convenient method of excluding undesirables without making a charge or raising international or color distinctions. It frequently is applied to Asiatics. Some time ago an international crook who was an accomplished linguist and spoke French, German, Spanish, Italian and Dutch was excluded by administering a test dictation of fifty words of Gaelic.

The test may be applied within a triennial after a person's arrival. The police reported that Mr. Stewart arrived in Australia in 1924 and was since convicted in three States.

Jury Finds Mrs. Janisse Guilty of Manslaughter

A despatch from Windsor says:—Mrs. Ruth Janisse, tried for the slaying of Clayton McMillin, young butler service proprietor, was found guilty of manslaughter, after the jury had deliberated for four hours. Crying so that she could be heard all over the Court House, Mrs. Janisse was carried into the chamber where the jury announced that they were ready to render their verdict. She heard the pronouncement, became hysterical, collapsed, and was then carried away again. She will probably be sentenced at the conclusion of the other criminal cases.

Mrs. McMillin, widow of the dead man, after hearing the verdict, also collapsed and was borne away by court attendants and friends, through a side door.

James Clark, who for three days has carried the burden of the defence, expressed his satisfaction that the verdict had saved Mrs. Janisse from death, and thanked the jurors as they filed out one by one.

Synod Selecting Names for Bulgarian Children

A despatch from Sofia, Bulgaria, says:—The office of the Holy Synod, the head of the Bulgarian Church, is preparing a list of names for use in baptizing children. The largest number of names thus far selected come from the Holy Scriptures. Next on the list are the names of flowers, following these the names of persons famed in Bulgarian history. It is intended to give the new generation, as far as possible, purely Bulgarian names if they are not christened for persons of Scriptural origin.

Tell-Tale Hands.

The work of a book-keeper at a busy station, where there is a continuous stream of ticket-taking passengers is terribly monotonous. I really think I should have been compelled to change my occupation had not a friend recommended me to try—as a sort of sanity-saving sideline—to get interested in the hands of those who came for tickets. By hands I don't mean the palms, but the finger-tips, fingers, and knuckles.

It saved me. If you came to my "window," and laid your hand on the ledge before you spoke, I could tell your character.

Stubby finger-tips, with the nails very short and red, and the knuckles bunched up like hillocks, are sure tokens of a nasty, cruel, tyrannical character.

When I see a thick, podgy, red hand on the ledge I know that I shall hear a jovial voice asking for a ticket, and that I have a friendly sort of cheery manner to deal with. As I like to be well made some humorous remark and laugh at it myself more than I do. This is the happy-go-lucky type, that lives for today, and lets tomorrow go hang. If such a man makes a success of life it's more by accident than by effort. Everyone likes him, however, and he has no enemies but himself.

Of long hands there are two types—the delicate and the strong. The fingers of the latter are straight, with the knuckles hardly showing. The nails are square and seem over-large. I call this the "business" hand. It denotes success, self-reliance, initiative, and brain power.

Long, delicate hands indicate a quick temper and no self-reliance. Passengers with those hands always seem bewildered. You may smile at this, but it is a fact that, of those who give themselves but a few seconds to take their tickets and catch their train, nine out of ten have long, delicate hands, with small, slender fingers, and are very generous. But they've no "push."

"Claw" hands I don't like. The backs of these are broad, but the fingers are short, thin, and draw together fan-shape. The nails are long, but very narrow. This is the mean, miserly, selfish type, with a bent towards dishonesty. A man like this would show no loyalty to a friend, and his conscience would be a minus quantity.

An interesting study hands. Faces can be masked and controlled, but hands tell the truth. Put it to the test on anyone whose character you really know.

The Fatal Mistake—Of many a business man is that he does not grow as fast as his business.

Of most politicians is their failure to see farther than the next election.

Of youth is its inability to appreciate the value of mature experience.

Of many marriages is the attempt to build a permanent home on a temporary infatuation.

Of most liars is that they do not have a perfect memory.

Of many promoters is the fact that they make their proposition sound too good.

FIGHTING FOR BABY'S HEALTH

Is the Constant Care of Every Young Mother.

The young mother has a constant care in looking after the welfare of her little ones. Childhood ailments come on so suddenly—sometimes without a minute's warning—the mother may have a very sick baby on her hands before help can be obtained. That is unless she has a remedy in the house which she can safely give the baby for any of the many minor ailments of babyhood and childhood.

Such a remedy is found in Baby's Own Tablets. Thousands of mothers throughout the country always keep a box of the Tablets on hand and they proclaim them to be without an equal for sweetening baby's stomach; regulating his bowels, and thus driving out constipation and indigestion, colds and simple fevers, and making the dreaded teething period easy.

Baby's Own Tablets are an absolutely safe remedy. They are guaranteed to be free from opiates or any other narcotic drug which are so harmful to the future welfare of the baby. Mothers, if you value the life of your little ones, give him Baby's Own Tablets when he is ill, or better still, give him an occasional dose of the Tablets to ward off illness. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or will be sent to any address, post paid, at 25 cents a box by addressing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Secrets of the Snows.

This summer has witnessed one of the greatest exploits of mountaineering ever recorded—the conquest of Mount Logan, the highest peak in Canada, which rises to a height of over 19,000 feet.

The Canadian Alpine Club expedition, which triumphed over all obstacles and reached the summit of Mount Logan, originally consisted of eight members, but two of them had to abandon the attempt because of frost-bite and general exhaustion before attaining their goal.

Almost incredible hardships were suffered by the conquerors of Mount Logan, who spent forty-four days directly on ice in getting to the summit and back again. Each man of the party had to pack about seventy pounds over two hundred miles of ridge and glacier. Dangerous storms were encountered, especially on the return journey, and only the most heroic efforts averted loss of life.

On the last lap of the ascent, when the party reached what they believed to be the highest point of the mountain, they found yet another peak towering above them. To attain this they had to descend a thousand feet, into a valley between the two peaks, before again beginning to climb.

This final peak was heart-breaking work, as the party had to make progress up a steep snow and ice slope, terminating in a knife area that led to the summit. The temperature when they gained the top was four degrees below zero.

Surnames and Their Origin

FRASER.

Variations—Fraser, Fraiser, Frazier. Racial Origin—Norman-French. Source—A locality.

This is another of the new Highland clan names which, though borne by Celtic families, trace back to an origin in Normandy.

All of these clan names were formed in the same way, by knights and nobles from the army of William the Conqueror, or the sons of such followers, who, either to strengthen the foreign relations of the conqueror, or because they were not satisfied with the spoils of war which fell to their lot in conquered England, sought their fortunes in the north at the court of the Scottish king.

They were, as might be expected, men with reputations as mighty fighters, and as they were independent of blood relationship with the factions around the throne they were, of course, welcome additions always to the royal Scottish organization.

But the Frasers, like the others, quickly formed alliances by marriage, and adapting themselves to the customs of the Gaels upon receiving grants of land in the Highlands, rapidly assumed leadership of existing clans and gathered around them clan organizations which they strove to make more powerful.

The Frasers are found first settled in Tweeddale during the reign of Malcolm III. They got their foothold in the Highlands through marriages into families of the Orkneys and Caithness chieftains.

The original Norman form of the name was "de Frisel" or "Frassell," and simply denoted overlordship of a place of that name in Normandy, being a family name only in the sense that it was hereditary because the day.

feudal power was hereditary and descriptive.

FINLAY.

Variations—Findlay, Findley. Racial Origin—Scottish (Celtic). Source—A given name.

Scottish family names, taken as a class, do not parallel those of Ireland in one respect. They are not overwhelmingly Celtic, either in language or in the method of formation. And there are reasons for this.

In the first place, the blood of Scotland is far from being overwhelmingly Celtic. At the time of the Roman domination of Britain the country north of the great wall which marked the northern limits of the empire's government was inhabited by the Picts, a race more similar to the Syme branch of the Celtic race, like the Welsh, the Cornishmen and the Bretons. About the third and fourth centuries of the Christian era the Gaelic Celts of Ireland came over from Ulster and settled themselves in the Highlands. Then, when the Anglo-Saxons invaded England they cut well north into the lowlands. Norman and then English conquest and occupation followed on a large scale before surnames became true family names. Hence there were influences of many races at work.

The names of Finlay, however, is truly Celtic. Originally its form as a given name was Fionniasach, a compound of "fionn," meaning "white," and "iasach," meaning "fighter," or "soldier."

When it first became a family name, of course, it was preceded by "Mac," meaning "descendant of," but in the course of time this has been dropped and the name has developed variously into the modern forms to be found in this country today.

A Ring.

Beneath an ancient tomb I found a ring. In Treblond: And graved in Greek within the slender thing. These words I conned, Through dent and scar; In summer and in winter, Near and Far, Here and Beyond."

Oh, Grecian maiden, more than hero he, Who loved thee so, And slipped upon they finger delicately.

Long years ago, This gift of gold, And bound two souls with words that could withhold Time's ebb and flow.

No Doom can mar! In Winter, and in Summer, Near and Far, Here, and Beyond."

NERVOUS DEPRESSION

Why People Are Low Spirited and Depressed.

Nearly all women and most men suffer at times from fits of depression and low spirits. Everything seems a burden, then come periods of nervous irritability, headaches and weariness. People who suffer this way lack vitality because their blood is poor and nerves are starved in consequence.

The only way the nerves can be reached is through the blood. By enriching the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the starved nerves are supplied with just the elements they need. This is proved by the experience of Mrs. J. E. Dadsen, 12th Ave. East, Vancouver, B.C., who says:—"About three years ago I became very weak and nervous. I had pains in my side and back, and also suffered from frequent pains in the back of my head and neck. I was hardly able to do anything about the house. I would wake with a start in the night and my heart would flutter so that it almost choked me. I tried much doctor's medicine but it did me no permanent good. One day I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to give them a trial. These pills produced such a beneficial change in a short time that I kept taking them until I had used a dozen boxes. By this time there was such an improvement in my condition that friends would ask me what I was taking, and of course I was only too pleased to tell them it was Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I am now feeling like a new person and am doing my own housework. We would not now be without Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the house."

You can get these pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Industrial Hygiene in Ontario.

Ontario is the only province in Canada which has a Division of Industrial Hygiene organized in the Department of Health, for the purpose of promoting the health of industrial workers. The main objective of the Division is the prevention of general sickness; the special objective, the prevention of those diseases which, arising out of working conditions, are called "occupational diseases."

Now it is impossible to know how much wastage in Ontario industry is caused by sickness, because there is as yet little health supervision and few adequate records of lost time. But such data as exists shows that in Ontario lost time from sickness amounts to at least double lost time from accidents.

As regards disease traceable to a man's occupation, the records of the Division cover 472 cases followed up during the last 4 years. The rate for lead poisoning in Ontario in 1925 is higher than that which was considered alarming in England 25 years ago. This alone shows the need for a systematic and rigorous attempt to guard the health of our workers. As a basis for this, a few cardinal facts need to be grasped:

There is a close connection between the health of the worker and the economic prosperity of the country.

A worker's health is inevitably affected by his working conditions.

Many diseases among workers can be traced to risks, such as poison, dust, etc., associated with their occupation.

On all points of industrial health, information can be obtained, both by employers and employees, from the Department of Health of Ontario, Spadina House, Toronto.

Seize Your Chances.

Can you hear her? Opportunity is knocking at your door. If you do not rise and greet her, she will go and come no more.

Greet her gladly—she is laden with the chances that you need. Seize her swiftly—for she'll prove herself a friend to you indeed.

Vacillation, foe to progress, may just whisper in your ear.

"Wait awhile and see what happens—better chances may be near."

Heed it not, the foolish warning; take the good that comes to-day; Let not worthless fears assail you; seize your chances while you may.

Here's the ladder, try to climb it, do not at the low rung stop; Other folks may be before you, but "there's room still at the top."

Standing still will not avail you; let your watchword be, "Advance"; If you fail to climb this moment, you may never have the chance.

Life is full of glorious offers you need only reach and take—Perseverance, resolution, all the hard tasks easy make.

If you'd reach the highest summit, you must start at once to climb.

Helped by grit, and faith, and patience; seize your chances every time.

Sick a Year. Got Great Benefit from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Bloomington, N. S.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for pains and backache, also for nervousness, sick headaches and sleeplessness. I was troubled in this way for over a year, and a friend told me about the Vegetable Compound and induced me to take it. I must say I have received great benefit from it and am able to do my housework now. I recommend the Vegetable Compound myself and am willing for you to use this letter as a testimonial." —Mrs. WILLIAM MORSE, Bloomington, Annapolis County, N. S.

Do you know that in a recent canvass among women users of the Vegetable Compound over 220,000 replies were received. To the question, "Have you received benefit by taking this medicine?" 98 per cent. replied "Yes."

This means that 98 out of every 100 women are in better health because they have given this medicine a fair trial.

Mrs. Morse is simply another case of a woman receiving "great benefit." Women suffering from the troubles so common to their sex should listen to what other women say who have experienced the same sufferings and found relief. Give this dependable medicine a chance—and at once. It is sold at all drug stores.

PRESENTATION

At the regular meeting of Peel Chapter, No. 96, Order Eastern Star, on Monday evening, a very happy event took place, when the Worthy Matron, Miss Ruby Cordingley, bride-to-be, was presented by the chapter with a beautiful silver tea service. The address was read by Bro. F. A. Maas, Worthy Patron, while the service was presented by Mrs. Couse, Immediate Past Worthy Matron.

After the business of the evening was over, a pleasant hour was spent at the banquet table, when toasts were proposed and responded to, and many fine compliments were paid to the Worthy Matron.

The prizes won at the card game were then presented, Mrs. Geo. Bonham winning the lady's prize and Mr. W. G. Cook, the gentleman's.

THE ADDRESS

Worthy Matron:

It is with a feeling of regret that I find it necessary to lay a charge against you before the members of this chapter, to-night. I believe that according to the by-laws of our Chapter, a Committee of Investigation is appointed by the Worthy Matron to consider and pass upon all matters of importance. We find that you have taken upon yourself the responsibility of dealing with a question which concerns us all very deeply. On October 29th Canada is called upon to settle a great issue, but we find that you are on that date, without consulting the committee, going to settle a greater issue. You are placing Peel Chapter foremost in establishing a precedent. It has never been known before of a Worthy Matron, while in office, forsaking the state of single blessedness and embarking upon the Sea of Matrimony.

Worthy Matron, you have been a member since the institution of this chapter, and in every sense have fulfilled your obligations in a most competent and able manner. Each chair that you have occupied has been filled to the entire satisfaction of the whole fraternity. It is with deep regret that we learn you are about to leave us, but before you do we ask you to accept this small gift. May it ever serve as a remembrance of your association with Peel Chapter No. 96. May the light of the Eastern Star ever guide you o'er paths of happiness and prosperity and prompt you to perform whatever duties may devolve upon you.

Dated this 19th day of October, on behalf of Peel Chapter.

F. A. MAAS,
Worthy Patron.
MARGARET M. COUSE,
Past Worthy Matron.

THREE WISE MEN

In Streetsville there are wise men

On that I'm sure, you will all agree,
From Thomas east, to Milton Brick
The road is nothing but a bag of tricks.

It is nothing but a rolling sea
With sand and all, quite real you see.
Some say, it is to be a flower bed,
But Jack Hawk kicked, and said it was to be an onion bed.

Then the water, it's quite a shame,
On my, the council has a name.
Jack Hawk said, it would be quite a treat

To have some water, to wash the poor cow's feet.

Jim Benue said, it was a disgrace
To have no water to wash his face.
Then the night, its very poor,
And the electrician says it to poor
Charlie's door.

He said it should be No. 6 upon the line;

Others say he should have a No. 9.
Jim Benue said it was not right
To have to read with so poor a light.
Now, there's a bachelor Jack, on a nam-rock hill,

With his man Friday, surnamed Bill.
These two one fine night
Started to scrub without a light,
But started first just for fun.

Until the pet mice started to run.
Just then a cat appeared at the door,
Bill made a swipe and hit the floor.
Then, the rifle, it went west,
Bill's heels made an awful dust.

Jack, he bumped his head against a post,
And Bill, he also gave up the ghost.
Jack said, "You are an awful coward,
Bill."

But he answered, "Oh my, I am so ill!"

Then they started to scrub away,
But Jack had an awful lot to say.
Bill made a mistake and scrubbed
Jack's nose

Until it was the color of a bright red rose.

Bill says, "Jack, you are not right,"
And that worthy wanted to fight.
Twelve o'clock on Friday night,
Bill, he had a terrible bite.

He woke up in a spasm of fright,
But found it was the soldiers of the night.

Bill, he is a terrible man,
For all he drinks from is an old tin can.

Jack, he is another poor fish,
For all he drinks from is Bill's soap dish.

Bill, you know, is an awful live wire
When he goes to light the fire.
The coal oil he uses, it takes the cake,
Which often makes Jack have an awful of heart-ache.

Then Jack's face for water has pined
so long,
And will be alright if left alone.
So you see, kind friends, it's an awful plight.

To be without water, also light;
And if the Council takes a pattern from this pair,
Well, if they don't do something,
we'll raise their hair.

Cooksville L.O.B.A. No. 566 held a very interesting meeting on Friday night in the lodge room. The members of the degree team of "No Surrender" lodge of Toronto came out and put on the initiation also the Scarlet Degree. Sister Kennedy, the Most Worshipful Grand Mistress was a visitor. Refreshments were served at the close. There was also a draw for a table runner held, 172 being the lucky number.

Postal Notes

Miss Molly Gordon of Dixie who is a student at Macdonald Institute Guelph, captured third honors in the Girls Athletic tournament there last week.

Mr. Martin Crofton's Saturday night social functions are becoming popular. The last one attracted a large number of city folks who enjoyed the evening's dance.

Mrs. Burrows is having a hard wood floor laid in her home and purposes giving dancing lessons. She is a skilled instructress in this line.

The Excelsior Bible Class of the United Church held a very pleasant social evening on Friday last.

Owing to work on the new power transmission lines, the hydro was off for some hours on Sunday last. Early Monday afternoon, a tree at Erindale fell on the wires and the power was again off for an hour to allow the linemen make repairs.

The newly purchased 360 acre Price farm at Erindale by a syndicate headed by W. R. P. Parker, with the prospect of great development, will mean a decided boon to Toronto Township, which property owners will greatly appreciate. This is another feather in Mr. Parker's cap, and the liberal candidate to certainly lending lots of color to a lively campaign. Every day, reports come of new converts from tory ranks who realize that Parker is a man who does things.

Motor Constable Davis has been removed from patrolling the Highway hereabouts and two new men are now on the road between Cooksville and Toronto.

The Ladies Aid of the United Church is holding its annual bazaar, for which function a 'shower' is being held at Mrs. L. Sanderson's home this Thursday.

General sorrow is manifest over the death of William T. McKee on Monday at his home on the Centre Road. Deceased who was about 50 years of age and a resident of many years standing, was an industrious, friendly type of citizen, who will be missed by the whole community. His illness from peritonitis was brief, developing first on Friday last. He is survived by his wife, five children, two brothers and five sisters. The funeral was held on Thursday afternoon to Dixie Cemetery.

Every seat in Cooksville Town Hall was filled on Wednesday night for the Parker meeting. Mr. Parker and two associate speakers from Toronto were given a very attentive hearing as they discussed the liberal platform and record from every angle. Mr. Parker made it plain that he is a moderate protectionist and pointed out that the tariff has been subject to but few changes since it was first framed by Sir John Macdonald in 1878. The audience also had the pleasure of hearing Mrs. Parker speak briefly, while motion pictures of local interest were shown at the close. Mr. A. U. Cote, Manager of the Cooksville Shale Brick Co., acted as chairman of the meeting.

COOKSVILLE

Cooksville L.O.L. will hold a special meeting Friday, Oct. 30th, when they will be visited by Parkhill L.O.L. No. 2489, of Islington. The business of the evening will be initiation of candidates and election of officers. The annual supper will be held on Friday, Nov. 6, in the schoolhouse.

Our High School

The regular meeting of the Literary Society was held on Friday last. The meeting opened by singing "O Canada." After the further business of electing officers which was left over from last meeting, the pupils participated in an old fashioned spelling match, which was enjoyed by both pupils and teachers. The girls were against the boys, and the girls won, naturally. The officers are:

Programme Committee—Douglas Dunn, Sarah Ross, Blanche Hisey, Ted McCurry.

Bills Committee—Sam Ross, Florence Scanlon, Lorne Bonham, The Staff.

Dupre—Plankenhorn

A lovely but quiet wedding took place at St. Paul's R. C. Church, Toronto, Wednesday morning, October 21st, when Mgr. Hand, united in marriage, Mary Irene, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Plankenhorn of Toronto, to Henry Wm., son of Mrs. Dupre of Wargan, Wisconsin. The bride, who was given away by her grandfather, Mr. Victor Giroux, wore a becoming gown of white georgette and Valenciennes lace with tulle veil and coronet of orange blossoms and pearls and carried a shower bouquet of sweetheart roses. The bride was attended by Miss Pansy Holding as maid of honor and her cousin, Miss Helen Giroux, who wore gowns of satin striped voile with black velvet poke bonnets and carried bouquets of Ophelia roses. The groom was supported by Mr. G. V. Plankenhorn, of Streetsville, brother of the bride. Solos were rendered by Mrs. Magann and Mr. James Farley during the ceremony. A delightful wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. D. Giroux. Later Mr. and Mrs. Dupre left for Montreal enroute for Europe, and on their return will reside in Streetsville.

Community Club

The club met at the home Mrs. Harold Beatty, Wed. Oct. 14th, with a good attendance. After the usual opening exercises the meeting got down to business with its usual vim. The most important business on hand was preparing for the bazaar to be held in the white schoolhouse, No. 10, on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 24th. This is a new venture for the club and the members hope they will be patronized as well as they have been in the past by the public. The object is a worthy one, to help gladden some home with Christmas cheer. Please remember the date, Sat. Oct. 24th. Fancy work, home knit socks and mitts, home baking, candy for sale and refreshments served.

The next meeting will be held at home of Mrs. T. A. Leslie, town line, Wed. Oct. 23. Mrs. Beatty served refreshments at the close of the meeting.

Erindale

The Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. J. Harkness, with a splendid attendance. The subject, "The value of a good neighbor" was ably given by Misses Draper and Cole. A donation of fruit and jellies was sent to the Sick Children's Hospital. After the close of the meeting a very enjoyable social half hour was spent and a dainty tea served by the members in charge.

The dance held under the auspices of the Women's Institute was greatly enjoyed by all.

The United Church held their Harvest Thanksgiving Services on Sunday last. The Church was beautifully decorated. The Rev. Bellsmith preached in the afternoon and the Rev. Harry Fawson in the evening. Bethesda Choir rendered special music.

Miss Cuffin of New York is visiting Mr. and Mrs. O'Neil prior to returning to England.

Mrs. G. Burke spent a few days in Toronto with friends.

A very successful Conservative meeting was held at the school Tuesday.

The Women's Institute will meet at Mrs. McPhee's on Wed. Nov. 4th.

Erindale

A most enthusiastic meeting in the interest of Mr. Samuel Charters, Conservative Candidate for Peel, was held in the Erindale School on Tuesday evening of this week. The weather was most unfavorable but that did not lessen the attendance—the school was crowded as was the entrance hall and every available space. The meeting was decidedly patriotic and applauded after applaud burst forth when the speakers touched upon our devotion to our beloved Canada. The program was long and varied and interest never lagged. Mr. Thos. Rogers occupied the chair in an able manner and introduced the different speakers.

The first speaker was Mr. L. A. Hamilton of Lorne Park, who is always sure of a hearty welcome from an Erindale audience. Mr. Hamilton in his usual pleasant, practical way told of his farm in Florida; how the fruit grower sells on his own market and then ships his produce to our markets before the Canadian grown fruits and vegetables are ready. We all know this condition only too well, how, when our strawberries are ready for market the consumers are already "fed up" on those grown in the United States.

Mr. Belford, M.P.P. followed. He certainly was a convincing speaker, a farmer himself from Northumberland Co., he congratulated Peel on her mixed farming and especially upon the man who represents her at Ottawa. Mr. Charters is known in other counties as a man of sterling worth. Space will not permit a full report of Mr. Belford's speech. It was Canadian from start to finish. We want Canada for the Canadians, others after that, but Canadians first. He censured the women for buying United States tomatoes when they had to pay 25c. for one pound. That was all the Canadian grower received for one bushel.

When Mr. Charters was called upon he was received with tremendous enthusiasm and hearty cheers. Is there anyone in the County of Peel who has not heard Mr. Charters speak somewhere or some place during the past 25 years? Mr. Charters is one of Peel's most able speakers and he as usual demonstrated this fact at this meeting. His policy is based on good sound common sense. Three more highly interesting and entertaining speeches followed, Mrs. Urquhart of Port Credit, Mrs. Fletcher of Clarkson and Mr. J. H. Beamish of Islington. These speakers stressed what had been previously related, Mr. Beamish quoting France as an example of what a high tariff will do in building up a country left desolate by the war, her motto was a job for every Frenchman.

Streetsville added much to the enjoyment of this meeting. Mrs. Church and Mrs. Greig sang in their usual pleasing way Mrs. Arthur Adamson playing their accompaniments. Miss Ruth Greig brought down the house with her numbers. By request she gave The Maple Leaf and the Flag and the audience responded heartily all joining in singing "Britons never shall be slaves."

The concert given in the Oddfellows' Hall last Saturday evening was not very well attended, owing no doubt to there being many other attractions. The program which was put on by the Pemin Concert Company of Toronto, was really good, and deserved a better attendance. The play entitled "Turn Him Out" was well enacted, and all the other numbers in elocution, character songs and dances were of a high order. The music rendered by the ten-piece orchestra was a great treat to the audience.

Union L.O.L. 263 will hold their regular meeting next Tuesday night, Oct. 27th. All members are urgently requested to be present as there will be advancement of degrees, and other important business.

Mrs. W. J. Savage of Listowel spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Staley. Mrs. Savage was a large and successful exhibitor at Streetsville Fair winning more than a dozen prizes for fancy work and art.

Among the visitors to our Fair were Messrs. Wallace Cordingley, Harry Barber, J. H. McClintock, of Toronto, J. H. Beamish, of Islington, and John O'Connor, of Vancouver, who hadn't been in the 'Old Town' for 19 years.

Arrangements have been made to give the election returns Thursday night over the radio in Woodruff's Garage, Streetsville. Seats will be provided and all are welcome. No charge. A good place to hear if your candidate has been elected.

Mrs. H. M. Aitken of Beeton gave a very interesting talk on Manual Training at the meeting of the Women's Institute last Thursday. As a result the ladies of the Institute are hoping with the cooperation of the school boards to put on a course in Manual Training for the boys in our town in the near future.

The engagement is announced of Marjorie Beatrice Hutchinson, daughter of Mr. Alfred Hutchinson and the late Mrs. Hutchinson, Oshawa, to Frederick Wilfred Dunton B.A. Sc son of Mr. Peter G. Dunton and the late Mrs. Dunton, Britannia, the wedding to take place quietly in Sherbourne St. United Church, Oct. 28th at 4.30 p.m.

Next Thursday is election day and the contest is at white heat. Both sides are working hard to beat the other fellow and its causing more hard feeling than church union did. We hope the best man will win. The Review has kept neutral in this fight as it always has done, and intends to do. We have reported meetings for both sides, and printed ads. for both Mr. Charters and Mr. Parker, so no one can say we have not been fair. In the last contest the vote was:—Charters 4849, Lowe 3702, Taylor 3482. Streetsville vote was 120, 38 and 86 respectively. What will it be on the 29th?

Love Gives Itself

THE STORY OF A BLOOD FEUD

BY ANNIE S. SWAN.

"Love gives itself and is not bought"—Longfellow.

CHAPTER XXXIII.—(Cont'd.)

But there was no trace of anything but pure friendliness in her manner and tone when she entered the library that afternoon to bid him welcome to Stair.

"I have to apologize for this intrusion," he said in his frankest, most winning manner. "I excuse it on two grounds—Miss Rankine has written to tell me you are mistress here, and though it would have been kinder if you had told me yourself at the beginning I believe I am forgiven for my impertinence. The second is, I want you to come back. I've got something else. I've brought it with me, and if you will let me stop twenty-four hours at the Ay Hotel until you've got time to run your eyes over it, I believe you won't send me away empty-handed."

Carliotta slightly shook her head. "You are welcome to Stair, Graham, and if your traps are at the hotel, some of them will fetch them up. I shall be pleased to read the new play, but—but—I don't think I am going back."

Graham Madox looked a trifle disappointed.

"I understand how you must care about this beautiful home," he said, glancing round the room with a slight hesitancy; "but it is not possible nor right that you should give the whole of your life to it when the world needs you so much."

"I must at least wait until my husband comes back," said Carliotta quietly. "I think he is on his way now. After that we can talk it over. But meanwhile do let me send down for your things, and come and talk to Judy. Although she was very angry with you in New York and would not say good-bye to you, she has forgiven you long since."

Madox smiled. He had always liked Judith Rankine and respected her as a type of very high and noble womanhood. Sometimes her Scotch outspokenness had somewhat discomfited his more plausible English nature, which shrinks from calling a spade a spade. Judy had not shrunk from that, and in one rather sharp passage between them in the sitting-room at the Hoiland House in New York she had reminded him that Carliotta was in her care, and that he had to keep his distance (the very words Judy had used) and confine his attentions strictly to business themes. Carliotta had not heard of this little scene until after Judy's boat had sailed, and then, instead of being amused as Madox had fully expected, she had been deeply moved.

When Madox seemed to hesitate Carliotta went on:

"Papa and mamma will be here not later than Tuesday of next week to stay. We shall love to show you Scotland properly. All you know of it now is a Glasgow hotel in winter! It is different here."

Madox admitted that it was.

"Seeing you in a place like this, my dear," he said with a touch of sadness in his tone, "one might well hesitate to ask you to come back to the world—but there is the future."

He made pause there, for he could hardly put into words what he actually thought—that in all probability the Laird of Stair would never come back any more to the home of his fathers, and that the snows of the Yukon had claimed him.

Carliotta, with her almost uncanny intuition, divined his thoughts.

"I know what is at the back of all that, Graham, but I know that my husband is coming back soon—why, there he is!"

She moved, quite quietly but with radiant face and starry eyes, towards one of the long windows which stood open, and passed out.

Absorbed by their talk, Madox had not heard the sound of distant wheels on the gravel, and when he stepped after Carliotta all he saw was the tall figure of a man, in a grey traveling suit and bare head, take Carliotta in the swift embrace which said all that words could never say.

Graham Madox turned decently away with what bitterness in his soul they would never know.

Making his way in the hall, he found some means of egress which enabled him to leave the house unobserved, and when afterwards they remembered him, and sent down to the hotel to inquire, they found that he had gone—his first and last visit to Stair having lasted exactly five-and-twenty minutes.

Judy, mooning in the sunshine on the terrace steps, amused herself by throwing little pebbles from the path into the round pond where the goldfish disported themselves, watching the eddies rise and spread across the clear surface. She did not hear the wheels, for the very good reason that the whole solid block of the masonry of the house intervened.

Presently she rose with a little sigh and thought she would go in and see how the interview was progressing, when a figure appeared at the far end of the terrace, having come round the gable of the house.

"Oh, Peter!" cried Judy, and ran, her face blanching white in the merciless sunlight, and her eyes pitiful, almost anguished in their depths. "It was no good. You heard nothing? Oh, poor Carliotta, her heart will surely break this time!"

"My dear," said Peter Garvock, "Alan is here. They are—they are somewhere in front. Don't go near them just yet. After what he's been through, this hour wants no shortening or interruption."

"Alan here, Peter!" whispered Judy in a voiceless whisper. "But where—how—when did you find him?"

"It's a very long story and it will keep, Judy. Meanwhile I want to know how you are."

"I? Oh, you can see! I'm a person of no importance. Alan and Carliotta—somewhere in front! And together! Is he—is he well, Peter? Has he changed much? Is there anything to break our hearts about?"

"Nothing. He is well; he is fit; he is handsomer than ever; and he has done what he set out to do, Judy—he has come back a rich man to redeem Stair."

"To redeem Stair!" repeated Judy in a low voice. "But oh, does that matter after all, Peter? When one comes down to the bedrock of things it isn't places that matter—only people! We have set Stair up too high, and we have had to pay the price. Oh, I want to go to them—and yet I daren't."

"Don't go yet," pleaded Peter Garvock with a strange new gentleness and consideration which began to astound Judy, and to push other things into the background of her mind.

Suddenly she looked at him with an odd steadfastness and inquiry, almost as one might look at some object, long familiar, which suddenly presents some new and unfamiliar phase.

"Peter, you are great! There is a lot more behind all this than meets the eye. Tell me this very minute where you found Alan."

"I found him in a shack on the Klondyke River, my dear, in the rear of an old gold-mine. It was what they call in these days the psychological moment, Judy. All I claim is that I arrived in the nick of time. Alan had got strangely detached from— from all this, and I was able to bring him sharply back. But he has come back with all his might, my dear, you may take it from me. And it is a sure thing that if we had been able to charter one of the new flying machines at Quebec we never should have crossed the Atlantic in the usual way."

"You did that, Peter! You!"
"Yes. It is all I lay claim to do. I talked and talked and better talked until I got Stair into his blood again. The spell of the Yukon is something like the evil spirit of old—it takes exorcising! Now I'm going to my mother, Judy, and you can find Alan. You've no need for me at Stair to-day."

"No need for you at Stair, indeed!" cried Judy indignantly, "when but for you this day would never have dawned for Stair!"
Judy's face was infinitely pathetic, for at the back of her mind was the deep-rooted conviction that she had rendered her last service to Stair, and that the two, now re-united, would henceforth have but little need of her.

Garvock saw these eyes, and with the new intuition of gentleness and consideration for others which had come to him, he fully understood.

But before he could say that which was in his heart Judy went on talking.

"What I want to know is, who is going to recompense you for what you have done, Peter? You needn't shake your head. I know without any of your telling or Alan's that it is you who have done it all. I can see from your face that you haven't spared yourself. Who is going to pay you? That's what I want to know."

Garvock took a step forward until he could look into the kind wells of Judy's speaking eyes.

"What about yourself, Judy?" was all he said.

A Poem You Should Know.

Babyland.

The man who wrote "Wynken, Blynken, and Nod" and "Little Boy Blue" conferred a lasting possession on mothers, for these are among the sweetest child-poems in the language. They were written by Eugene Field, himself a man who, like Peter Pan, "Never grew up." The following is another product of his unique genius:

"How many miles to Babyland?"

"Anyone can tell!

Up one flight;
To the right;
Please to ring the bell."

"What can you see in Babyland?"

"Little folks in white—
Downy heads;
Cradle-beds;
Faces pure and bright."

"What do they do in Babyland?"

"Dream and wake and play;
Laugh and crow;
Shout and grow;
Jolly times have they!"

"What do they say in Babyland?"

"Why, the oddest things:
Might as well
Try to tell
What a birdie sings!"

"Who is the Queen of Babyland?"

"Mother, kind and sweet;
And her love,
Born above,
Guides the little feet."

Not Too Fast.

"If I'm too fast for you just let me know."

"Gosh, no! My last boss had me on his lap by this time."

GIRLS' PRACTICAL GYMNASIUM SUIT.

This comfortable gymnasium costume is composed of the regulation middie blouse with long or short sleeves, and all-around plaited or straight gathered bloomers, finishing with a casing at the top and knee for elastic. Many girls will find this an ideal costume for camping, or for long walks into the country where comfort is the main requirement. Pattern No. 1196 is in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 10 years requires 2 1/4 yards of 32-inch, or 1 1/4 yards of 36-inch material for the middie blouse, and 1 1/4 yards for the bloomers. Price 20 cents.

The garments illustrated in our new Fashion Book will keep you "in step with fashion." They are advance styles for the home dressmaker, and the woman or girl who desires to wear garments dependable for taste, simplicity and economy will find her desires fulfilled in our new patterns. Each pattern envelope gives charts showing at a glance how to lay the pattern on material and where the different pieces are joined. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

HOW TO ORDER PATTERNS.

Write your name and address plainly, giving number and size of such patterns as you want. Enclose 20c in stamps or coin (coin preferred; wrap it carefully) for each number, and address your order to Pattern Dept., Wilson Publishing Co., 73 West Adelaide St., Toronto. Patterns sent by return mail.

Royal Dairies.

One of the domestic institutions at Balmoral in which the King and Queen take particular pride is the model home dairy that supplies the Royal table with everything in the way of milk, cream, butter, and cheese.

Run on the most up-to-date lines, the dairy is a miracle of hygiene, and is in the charge of a woman graduate of Aberdeen University.

The King takes a deep interest in all matters connected with agriculture, and the flourishing condition of the Royal farm on the Balmoral estate is largely due to his foresight.

Queen Alexandra also has a miniature dairy at Sandringham, in which at one time she used to spend some of the happiest hours of her life.

Exteriorly designed on the lines of a Swiss cottage, the dairy inside follows exactly the plan of the "Trifolium," the largest dairy in Denmark.

He Forgot Something.

The young plumber had proposed to the girl that evening and had been accepted. Several hours later they parted and he went home.

At three o'clock in the morning a loud ringing of the front-door bell of the girl's abode was heard. Her father, roused from slumber, went to a window and, sticking out his head, inquired who was there.

"It's John," said a voice from below; "I asked Agnes to marry me and she said she would, but I forgot to kiss her."

A NORWEGIAN'S OPINION OF CANADA

Anders Jaarstad, a prominent business man of Stavanger, Norway, the city of sardines, kippers and cheese, has returned home to Norway from an extended business trip to Canada and the United States. In articles contributed to the local press he speaks enthusiastically of the great agricultural opportunities of the Dominion where he hopes thousands of Norwegian Emigrants will find their future homes. Stavanger, Mr. Jaarstad's home city, has played an important part in the history of Norwegian emigration, as it was from its harbor the "Restauratjonen" set sail for New York one hundred years ago, in commemoration of which event hundreds of thousands of Norwegians gathered at Minneapolis recently to celebrate the centennial of Norwegian emigration.

Emigration from Norway has, during the last fifty years, averaged about 14,000 annually. Under the new U.S. quota regulations the total emigration to the United States will, as far as Norway is concerned, be restricted to some two thousand, beginning July 1, 1927. "This condition of affairs," Mr. Jaarstad says, "has caused intending emigrants to look to other countries where they may hope to find opportunities equal to those offered in the U.S.A. in previous years."

"Such a country is Canada," says Mr. Jaarstad. "Canada is yet on the threshold of its development. It is a country of great agricultural possibilities and with undeveloped natural resources, which offer rich reward to those who have the will to work."

"Unfortunately, Canada is not as well known in Norway as its great neighbor to the South," says the writer. "During the last few months the press has given publicity to defamatory articles, which our countrymen in Canada brand as deliberate insult to them and the country of their adoption, articles which are misleading and written with the view of frightening intending emigrants."

Advices Countrymen Go to Canada.

For the purpose of setting public opinion right with regard to Canada, Mr. Jaarstad has contributed some excellent articles, containing a wealth of information about the country, its development during the past few years and its possibilities for future emigrants. During a recent business trip to Canada, Mr. Jaarstad had occasion to visit the principal Norwegian communities in Canada, interviewing countrymen who had lived for several years in the country, and the impressions which he received and now relates were very favorable.

Mr. Jaarstad calls attention to the fact that in the five year period preceding the war there was quite a movement of Scandinavian emigrants to Canada. This direct emigration, was, however, small in comparison with the emigration of Scandinavians from the States to the Prairie Provinces of Canada. Thousands of Norwegian-Americans, pioneers and their sons, changed their domicile from the States to the Prairie Provinces, where fertile agricultural lands could be had free or at a very low price. The great majority, fully ninety per cent. of these settlers, are farmers, and have prospered beyond their expectations in the Canadian West.

"Canada is not an industrial country," says the writer. "Those who wish for nothing better than to work in shops and factories, had better remain at home. Yet, thousands of artisans and common laborers, who came to Canada a few years ago and found farm employment, are now located on farms of their own, where they are never disturbed by the shrill whistle of the factory. These people do not regret their change of occupation. They consider the soil of Canada the best in the world."

"There is only one country which has been able to produce 40 to 50 bushels of wheat to the acre and No. 1 Hard at that. That country is Canada. The average crop is 18-30 bushels to the acre, a very profitable yield. Of course in a country of such dimensions, both good and inferior land is to be found, but there is such an abundance of excellent land that no settler with eyes to see with, need till inferior soil."

Gives Much Authentic Information.

Mr. Jaarstad devotes considerable space to geographical and statistical information about Canada, its agricultural and commercial progress during the last twenty years. In conclusion he says: "Canada stands on the threshold of its development. Only a fraction of its natural resources are developed. Only the surface has been scratched, as it were. The development of the country has been interfered with by the war and the period of readjustment which followed. From now on the outlook is brightening. Canada maintains an open door policy towards the thousands who wish to emigrate from Northern Europe. To those who are contemplating leaving their native land I have this to say, that for the agricultural classes there is no better country than Canada. Those who wish to engage in agricultural pursuits will there find opportunities that they cannot find elsewhere, and they can start with a comparatively small capital. By perseverance and thrift they may, in a few years, become independent owners of a good 160-acre farm. Canada is a country of opportunities in many branches, and people with some capital can do no better than to go to Canada. There is plenty of room, and for the agricultural classes there is always room, and always a fair chance of success."

NOW I'M BUILDING A SEPTIC TANK

Or, One of Those Built-in Farm Conveniences.

I went over to Will Jordan's the other day to borrow his wire-stretcher, and found Will out in the orchard digging a hole that he could have used as a grave for a horse.

"What the dickens are you doing down there?" I called. "I looks as though you might be putting down a foundation for one of those German siege guns. What's all the sand and cement for?"

"Hello there, Jerry," said Will. "Come on down in the hole and take a shovel. We're going to build a septic tank."

"You're going to build what kind of a tank?" said I.

"A septic tank. A concrete septic tank," said he.

"Going to use it for dipping hags or sheep?" I asked.

"Neither one," said Will. "Going to use it to hold the sewage and waste water from the bathroom and kitchen at the house."

"That's a new one on me," I admitted. "Go ahead and tell me about it. I'm always looking for new ideas. Maybe I can understand this one if you'll explain it a bit."

"Well, it's just this way," Will said, as he came up the ladder and sat down on a bag of cement. "I've been hearing about these new-fangled septic tanks for some time. One day last week there was a fellow here selling subscriptions to a farm paper, and while he was showing me some of the stories they run in that paper, he came across a story about a septic tank. He told me about the work that the agricultural representative over in the next county was doing along the lines of farm sanitation. They've been holding a lot of septic tank demonstrations over there this year and I guess they've got a lot of folks all stirred up about it. Anyway, they're falling all over themselves to get their septic tanks built."

"This representative went on to say that they'd been having a lot of typhoid fever over there and that they'd traced it to a farm where there'd been a bad case of the fever, and as near as they could find, the disease had been carried all over the township."

"Now that set me to thinking. You know, my wife had a pretty bad case of typhoid fever last year. We always thought that she picked it up over at the fair. Well, you recall how we just about gave her up for lost several days, and then how, just about the time she began to mend a little, Will, Jr., came down with the same thing, and almost died. I began to think about that, so I asked this representative what they had learned over in the next county about the way the fever spread over a township."

"He told me that they traced the first case of the fever and then they went all over that farm and found that the folks had a sewer that drained into an open drain in a pasture. They noticed that there were always a lot of flies and insects hanging around the outlet of that sewer. The crows and blackbirds used to hang around there, too, and waded around in the sewer outlet, and darned if he didn't figure out that the flies and bugs and chickens and other critters that did their loafing around that sewer outlet had carried some of these typhoid germs over to the neighbor's. They were the next ones to have the fever, and it passed along the line until half the farmers over in that section had it."

"I put two and two together and figured that maybe, after my wife came down with it last year, some flies probably brought the germs up to the house and scattered them on a milk pail, or maybe on some of the food on the table and that's how Will, Jr. got it."

"This representative told me that they were going to have another demonstration over near Podunk in two days. That was last Thursday, so I just took a day off and drove over there."

"They had quite a crowd of folks out at this farm where they put in the tank. There was an engineer from the agricultural college, and a doctor. They both gave talks on sanitation and explained all about this epidemic that had made the rounds. Their stories were about the same as what that representative had told me."

"The fellow who owned the farm had dug the hole according to the plans in a bulletin. Here it is. They handed one to everybody at the meeting. I'm following the same plans right now. They had some lumber there and a couple of fellows sawed it up and hammered a wooden form together. You see, this wooden form that I've built here goes inside the hole in the ground and you pour the concrete between the form and the wall. When it sets, you've got a tank."

"What's that little offset part of the hole for?" I asked him. The hole was in one place and then at one end it was more shallow. It looked as though Will figured on making two tanks."

"Why, that's the second chamber. The dosing chamber, they call it at the meeting," said Will. "You see, the sewage comes through this tile from the house and runs into this big chamber. It stays there until it is all changed to liquid and this liquid gradually overflows into this second chamber. That fits up to just a certain point, when it is siphoned out through this jigger here. That's the automatic siphon. They make them up at the college and sell them to you at cost. I ordered mine from this fellow from the college last week and he shipped it right down to me. I got it Tuesday. I suppose I could have made it, but I thought they could make it exactly right up there, and it didn't cost any more, so I let them make it."

"Well, what becomes of this water when the siphon dumps it all out?"

"I'm going to lay a few hundred feet of common drain tile in several directions from the tank and that water will flow from the tank onto those tiles and filter away into the soil. That's what they call an absorption system," said Will.

"Don't you have to add any chemicals to kill the germs?" I asked.

"No, you don't add a thing. The bacteria within the sewage convert the solids to liquid and this liquid is absorbed by the soil."

"Well, does this tank kill the germs?"

"Now that's something I asked this engineering fellow and he explained it in this way: He said that if disease germs entered the tank, they would not be destroyed at all inside the tank; they'd pass right through. But he said that there are certain bacteria in the upper layers of the soil which would destroy these disease germs as soon as the water gets into the soil. These bacteria are only in the upper layers. That's why you lay the tile pretty shallow."

"How much is this thing going to cost you?" I asked next.

"Oh, I can't say exactly what it will cost. They figure on the cost of the tank they built over there the other day. That one cost less than $50 when they figured in the labor for digging the hole and mixing the concrete. I'm not figuring that in. The stuff alone cost me about $30 all told. You've got a gravel bank over on your farm and it wouldn't cost you as much as it did me, because I had to buy sand and gravel."

"There's just this about it. That peck of sickness and trouble cost me over $150 in doctor bills. I had to pay that trained nurse $45 a week for three weeks all told, and I don't know how much the medicine cost me. Will, Jr., was laid up just when I needed him on the farm, and I had to hire an extra man, and if my sister hadn't come out to do the cooking and housework I don't know what that would have cost me. I figure that I had better spend $30 on this tank and take no more chances. I'll feel a lot safer."

"By golly, I wouldn't wonder but what you're about right," I said. "You let me take that bulletin when you're through with it, or else tell me where I can write to get one like it. I believe I'll look into it myself."

With that I started for home, and darned if I didn't clean forget to ask Will for that wire-stretcher. But I went back the next day for it and Will was pouring his concrete and setting the siphon. I got some good pointers on how to build a tank, and I guess I'll start digging a hole in the morning.—J. D. Z.

Make Your Bees Safe for Winter.

Do you know that your 1926 honey crop is largely dependent on what you do with the bees this fall? If your colonies are too weak in bees or have old failing queens, you cannot possibly secure a profitable crop next summer. If you have good queens and strong colonies to go into winter quarters, you may still lose many colonies this winter and fail to secure a maximum surplus of honey next season, so says Prof. Eric Millen, of the O.A.C.

You can almost entirely avoid the possibility of a poor crop in 1926, if weather is at all favorable, by practicing the following management this fall:

Unite all colonies which, when examined on a cool morning, do not cover more than two frames on both sides. The simplest and best plan to unite is to place one brood chamber directly on another, with a single sheet of newspaper between. Leave this way for one week and then shake all bees into one brood chamber. The two queens will fight and the stronger one invariably survives, so no notice need be taken of the queen when uniting.

Colonies must not be united if American foulbrood is present, otherwise the disease will be spread.

Besides strong colonies and good queens, an abundance of food is necessary for winter and spring brood rearing. It is in this connection that many beekeepers fail to put their colonies away for winter and so avoid heavy loss and secure maximum crop next spring.

Too Tight Stove-Pipe Joints.

If joints fit too tight when putting up sheet-iron stove or heater pipe, and you find a length will not readily slip over another, heat the too-small piece. The heat will expand it sufficiently so that it can then be slipped onto the end of an unheated length. Do not make the mistake of heating both pieces, as this would enlarge both and nothing would be gained. The pipe can be heated by putting in an oven or standing on end on a hot stove. Do not apply a flame directly, as this may warp it or burn and roughen the metal.

FROCKS THAT HAVE MADE THEMSELVES VERY POPULAR

Simple enough for street wear—and charming enough for bridge or dance! Fashion still smiles upon these simple frocks, both of which were fashioned from one pattern. The little frock of flowered material has two side panels trimmed with narrow lace, and then shirred onto the one-piece foundation at the raised waistline. The round neck and short kimono sleeves are finished with the narrow lace, and a ribbon of pastel color ties in long ends at the back. A bordered material was used with charming effect for the plain frock, which opens at the neck with flat revers and has long sleeves gathered into a narrow band. No. 1166 is in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years (or 34, 36 and 38 inches bust). Size 18 years (or 36 bust) requires 2½ yards of 32-inch or 36-inch material. For side panels ¾ yard extra material, and for long sleeves ¼ yard. Price 20 cents.

Change the Flavor.

When cooking the same dishes over and over again try for variety by adding something different for the flavor. Add a little candied ginger or candied orange peel (finely chopped) to a dish of plain boiled rice. Add some fine shavings of citron or candied grape-fruit peel to your fruit salad. Pour a tablespoonful of boiling water over half the amount of mixed spices you usually use for a spice-cake and note the difference in flavor. Add three tablespoonfuls of vinegar and one clove of garlic to the pot-roast for a change in flavor and to make the meat tender. A rich, fine flavor can be added to a roast of veal, lamb or pork by basting it with the syrup from spiced peaches.

Add paprika and narrow strips of fresh green pepper to your Dutch cheese. Mix lemon and almond flavoring for your cake, being careful to use but a few drops of each, or add currants or seedless raisins or change the frosting occasionally. Add a drop of peppermint extract to the chocolate pudding. Other variations will suggest themselves, especially to a resourceful cook.

BREADS FOR THE SCHOOL LUNCH BOX

BY NELL B. NICHOLS.

I used to depend entirely on different fillings to vary the sandwiches made in my home. That was before I appreciated how many kinds of bread could be manufactured in the kitchen. Now the staff of life on our table may be light or dark in color. Sometimes I add raisins, dates, nuts or figs to the dough to provide a change.

After many experiments, conducted as a pupil in a country school and carried on later when I was a rural school teacher, I have decided that the foundation for the ideal lunch-box meal is the sandwich. This may be accompanied by a hot beverage or soup, fruit and cookies. I have a small vacuum bottle which I use to hold the soup or drink when packing lunches.

Oatmeal, graham, bran, rye, Boston brown and breakfast cereal breads are some of the favorites with my family. Then there is a steamed bread which I make from stale bread crumbs. We think it is delicious. Some of the recipes for these choice loaves are as follows:

WHEAT CEREAL BREAD.

Mix two cups hot cooked wheat cereal with one-half cup light brown sugar, one teaspoon salt and one and one-fourth cups each of stoned and chopped dates and broken pecan-nut meats. Stir in two tablespoons melted butter. When this mixture is lukewarm, stir in one cake yeast which has been dissolved in one-half cup lukewarm water. Add sufficient flour to make a dough that may be kneaded. Knead as with white bread. Shape in two loaves and let rise again. Bake from forty-five minutes to an hour in a moderate oven.

STEAMED BROWN BREAD.

Use one cup each of rye flour, cornmeal and graham flour. Mix with one teaspoon salt and add three-fourths cup dark molasses, two cups clabbered sour milk and one teaspoon soda dissolved first in one tablespoon hot water. Beat thoroughly. Let stand fifteen or twenty minutes. Stir in one-half pound raisins, pour into greased molds or cans, filling three-fourths full, and steam for three and one-half or four hours. Set in the oven to dry a few minutes when the steaming is completed.

BRAN BREAD.

Mix three cups graham flour with one cup bran. Sift in one and one-half cups whole-wheat flour and one-half teaspoon salt. Dissolve one-fourth teaspoon soda in one tablespoon hot water and add to two cups sour milk or buttermilk. Melt two and one-half tablespoons butter and add to one-half cup molasses. Stir all ingredients together and add one-half cake yeast which has been dissolved in one-fourth cup lukewarm water. Beat the batter. It should be very stiff; if it isn't, add more flour. Place in greased pans, kneading slightly. Let rise. When light, bake in a moderate oven.

FRUIT BREAD.

Scald two cups milk and pour into mixing bowl containing two cups rolled oats, two teaspoons salt and four tablespoons sugar. Stir in two tablespoons shortening. When lukewarm, stir in one cake yeast which has been dissolved in one-fourth cup tepid water. Add sufficient flour to make a dough that may be kneaded. Usually four cups are required, but the amount varies with different flours. Knead until the dough is smooth and elastic. Divide in two loaves, place in greased pans and let rise. When doubled in bulk, bake from forty-five minutes to an hour in a moderate oven. If fruit bread is desired, add one and one-fourth cups chopped raisins, dates or figs with the flour.

NUT BREAD.

Substitute nuts for the raisins or other fruit in the recipe for Fruit Bread. Use one cup nuts.

RAISIN BREAD WITH CORN SYRUP.

Put one-half cup dark corn syrup into a mixing bowl and add one tablespoon melted shortening and one teaspoon salt. Add three-fourths cup boiling water, and stir. When lukewarm, stir in one cake yeast first dissolved in one-fourth cup tepid water. Add two cups graham flour, one cup white flour and three-fourths cup chopped raisins. Let double in bulk. Beat thoroughly. Turn into a greased pan, cover and let rise again. When light, bake in a moderate oven one hour.

BREAD-CRUMB LOAF.

Break up very hard and stale bread in small pieces. To two and one-half quarts of crumbs add one quart of boiling water. Let stand, stirring occasionally, until the bread is soft. Mash until smooth and stir in two cups cornmeal, one-half cup flour and two teaspoons soda dissolved in two tablespoons hot water. Stir in from one-half to three-fourths cup molasses, or enough to make a thick batter. Add one teaspoon salt. Beat thoroughly, pour into greased molds, filling three-fourths full, and steam from four to five and one-half hours.

BEGINNING STORE IN A WATER PAIL

BY EDWARD A. RAND.

"And what have you here, Fred?" Fred held up his mother's yellow water-pail, filled with brown packages.

"Goods for my store, Granny!"

"So you begin store in a water-pail?"

"That is what it amounts to."

Fred had stopped at old Mrs. Ackerman's gate for a little chat. Everybody called her "Granny," but Joe Ackerman, who was lolling over the gate, was really her grandson. He was a smart young man, that felt equal to the ruling of a nation, but his ambition far exceeded his industry; and his place in the nation was very likely to be a mean one.

"Fred!" said Joe, patronizingly, "swing out. Get trusted for a big stock of goods, and go it."

Fred's only answer was a flourish of the water-pail, and then he passed on.

"If it is small," he thought, "my stock is paid for."

He had earned three dollars hilling the parson's potatoes, and then smashing his Colorado bugs.

Fred was seventeen. It occurred to him that he might pick up a few pennies by trading. So he borrowed his mother's small kitchen table, paraded his goods on it, and drove quite a thrifty trade with the small, but ready buyers of candy and molasses gingerbread. He found that his three dollars had brought him four in return.

"Mother, lend me another water-pail!" he asked, the next day.

"What for, Fred?"

"Oh, something!" snapping his bright eyes till they twinkled like fire-flies on a July night.

He went to Squire Emery's store and filled his pail with more substantial goods, adding a few articles for the toilet from the squire's showcase.

He did not forget that some of his buyers had a perverse appetite for sweet things, and he made a modest inroad upon the squire's stock of red peppermints and white sugar hearts.

"Mother, lend me that shelf in the old pantry which you don't use?"

"A shelf! What next, Fred? Yes, give me my pails and take the shelf."

Fred nailed it up outside the kitchen window, arranged his goods there, and when farm work was over, would trade with his neighbors in the evening.

So he went on. One shelf increased to three shelves, and the "store" was transferred to the inside and kept open all day, his mother managing while he was at work in the corn field.

Fred's money grew as a snowball rolled over and over in the drifts after a January thaw.

Squire Emery leaned over his counter one day, set back his old felt hat on his head, and gave Fred a friendly look through his specs.

"Fred, I have heard about your store, and how it started in a water-pail. Let me encourage you. I will let you have a thousand dollars' worth of goods and set you up. You can pay me by-and-by."

"Thank you, squire, but I guess not. Too risky!"

"All right—all right, Fred. Glad to see your spirit. What will you have, ma'am?"

And the squire stood up to wait on an old woman, just arrived.

"Look here, squire!" said Fred, the next day, "you made a kind offer yesterday, and I will tell you what I would like. I will go round and get orders, buy my goods of you as I need them, and you can favor me all you can."

"Agreed!" said the squire.

Each day, then, Fred made two trips to various houses. The first time, he went with an order book. The second time, he went with a wheelbarrow of goods.

So the snowball kept turning over and over, growing every day. At last, there was a new store in town, small and unpretending, but its goods were all paid for. Over the door, was the sign of a waterpail.

"That Fred Barker," said Mrs. Ackerman, "is bound to make money."

"Yes," said Squire Emery, "for he goes sure, and he is willing to be small that he may become big."

Another store was opened about that time. You would have thought that the circus had come to town. Yellow circulars went flying into every house as if a swarm of butterflies were out on a raid. All day, a fancy wagon went flashing about town. It was as gay with bold and red as the last new China tea store.

"What's that rattlin' round so smart and lively?" said Squire Emery.

"Grocery!" he read on the side of the wagon. "Pooh! that nippy, Joe Ackerman, is settin' up in business. I'll give him three months to set down again. He borrowed a thousand, I hear, and has started. Far better if he had borrowed Fred Barker's water-pail."

It would have been much better.

In three months there was a failure. The wagon was sold to a fish peddler. He put out the red and gold lights and painted it a sea-green.

The goods in the store were auctioned off to satisfy creditors.

Everything was sold excepting a damaged waterpail. It was Joe's only possession. It is better to start than to end in a waterpail.

PEEL COUNTY JUNIORS HAVE BIG DAY

With a record of the best work done since the competitions were inaugurated, the junior farmers and the junior institutes of Peel put in a very successful day Friday, the girls judging in eight classes in the Oddfellows' Hall, Brampton, and the boys ranging the district judging stock belonging to leading stock farmers.

The day closed with a banquet in the Oddfellows' Hall at which Oliver Raine, president of the Peel Junior Farmers, was chairman.

Miss Lillian Rutherford, Bolton, wins the $60 trip to Chicago International Show and Miss Pearl Church, Streetsville, the $45 trip. Miss Ila Strangways, Brampton, was awarded the A. J. H. Eckhardt silver tea service.

The C. S. McDonald silver trophy for the institute sending the three girls with the highest standing was won by Brampton Institute, of which Miss Doris Defreest is president.

H. Parkinson, Malton, won the $50 trip to Chicago, and A. McKinney, Brampton, the $45 trip, while R. J. Rutherford received the woolen rug donated by the Co-operative Wool Growers' Association for third place.

For winning the highest number of points and not having been a member of any team representing Peel County at an Inter-County Competition, Melvin Shaw, won the J. A. Carroll silver trophy.

Jack Fraser won the silver cup for the highest standing.

John Pawley, Eddie Simpson and Emerson Boucher won the silver medals awarded to the best judging team, and Harry Laidlaw won the silver trophy for best coach.

Assisting the district representative, J. E. Whitelock, were W. G. Marritt, Wentworth; D. E. Smith, Brampton; J. E. Brown, Waterdown; J. R. Rogers, York. Assisting Miss McIntosh, home demonstrator, were Miss Ethel Chapman, Toronto; Miss Esther Slicker, Kitchener; Miss Edith Elliott, Weston; Miss Iva Langton, Waterdown; Miss Margaret Reid, McDonald Institute, Guelph.

Guests of honor at the banquet were Mrs. W. E. Harris, Cooksville, county president of the Women's Institute; Mrs. E. G. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. A. Hewson, W. J. Lower, Mrs. W. R. P. Parker.

IN HONOR OF A GREAT EVENT

Birthdays are always important occasions, especially if one is very young or very old. Before long The Youth's Companion will be a hundred years old, and the event is going to be made a memorable one for The Companion's many friends. So, although the date is not until April 16, 1927, preparations will begin with 1926.

In honor of its birthday The Companion will come to you next year at the new low price of $2. It will be dressed in its party clothes, with new cover designs, enlarged illustrations, new brilliantly clear type, and over 200 pages more than last year. It will contain 9 book-length serial stories, fascinating mystery stories, tales of adventure on land and sea, the new "Make-It and Do-It" Pages, radio, games, books, and puzzles, interesting special articles, and the ever-delightful Children's Page. Don't miss this great year of The Youth's Companion; subscribe now and receive:

1. The Youth's Companion—52 issues in 1926, and
2. The remaining issues of 1925. All for only $2.
3. Or include McCall's Magazine, the monthly authority on fashions. Both publications, only $2.50.

Here and There

Sport conditions are very good in New Brunswick this year. Harold Chadwick operating hunting camps in the province reports that at the end of September catches of speckled trout weighing 18½ lbs. were taken one day while a hunter took out a big game licence September 23rd and three days later had his deer and bear.

The world's most northerly police post, also the most remote of any human habitation, is to be constructed next year for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at the far end of Ellesmere Island. Building materials and two years' supplies will be cached within easy freighting distance of the point where men will be detailed for patrol duty on the lonely shores of Riel straits.

Appointments recently made through the office of the Comptroller Canadian Pacific Railway headquarters are W. J. Cherry who becomes Freight Claims Auditor in place of J. R. Steele retired under pension rules, and W. L. Moran appointed Assistant Freight Claims Auditor. Both these gentlemen have been connected with the Freight Claims department for many years past.

Because the prospects for hunting and fishing in northern regions of Quebec are more attractive this autumn than they have been for several seasons, the number of residents of the United States applying to the Quebec association for the protection of fish and game for guides and licences is much greater than it has been for some time, according to the secretary of the association.

A very pleasing incident occurred during the visit to Montreal of Madame Maria Jeritza, world-famous operatic star. Col. George H. Ham, "Grand Young Man" of the Canadian Pacific Railway who had met the singer before, sent his felicitations in the form of a bouquet, and Madame Jeritza replied with a bouquet of roses made of sugar with the hope that his days also would be sugar-coated. She gave a one-night recital in Montreal, leaving for Toronto the following day.

Isaac Gouverneur Ogden, vice-president in charge of finance, Canadian Pacific Railway, attained his 81st birthday October 10. Mr. Ogden is as active as ever although he has spent 54 years in railway work. He joined the C.P.R. as auditor of the western division with headquarters at Winnipeg in 1881 and has been vice-president of the system since 1901. Mr. Ogden was the recipient of flowers and congratulations from his colleagues on the occasion of his birthday.

Carelessness and lack of forethought on the part of some unknown motorist at Belleville might have led to serious accidents if it had not been soon discovered that the wig-wag signal protecting the C.P.R. level crossing on the Kingston Road was out of order. Investigation showed that an automobile had driven out of its course and broken the relay case thereby cutting the electrical contact. A watchman was immediately placed at the signal until necessary repairs had been made.

The Montreal Windsor street station police team are the champions of the Quebec district in the First Aid contests held at the Place Viger hotel in that city under the auspices of the Canadian Pacific Railway. They won the contest against teams from Ottawa and Quebec and are now holders of the Gutelius Challenge Cup, emblematic of the C.P.R. First Aid championship of the province. The championship of the New Brunswick district was won by the McAdam team who competed against Saint John and Woodstock.

Between 300,000 and 400,000 Canadians and Americans of Norwegian origin will gather at Minneapolis and St. Paul in June next to celebrate by a great national gathering the hundredth anniversary of the landing of the first organized party of Norwegian settlers on this continent. President Coolidge, H. Haaken of Norway and Lord Bynoe, Governor-General of Canada, have been invited to attend. Meetings of some forty Norwegian organizations, divine service by the Bishop of Oslo (formerly Christiansia), field sports, musical contests and historic pageants will make up the program.

The Unfair Deal Canadian Farmers are Getting

Back in 1921 we sold the United States agricultural products to the value of $146,539,883. After the Fordney U.S. Tariff of 1922 went into effect in the United States we sold them only $51,337,733 worth.

By raising their tariffs the United States farmers have put about $100,000,000 per annum more into their pockets and the Canadian farmers have lost it.

What is the lesson to the Canadian farmer?

On what terms is the Canadian farmer competing with the farmer of the United States? They are terms that not only forbid the sale of his products in the United States but compel him at the same time to witness United States farm products replacing his own in the home markets of Canada. Let us examine some of these terms.

PRODUCTS	For Entrance into Canada the Americans pay:	For Entrance into the United States the Canadians pay:
Potatoes.....	35 cts. per 100 lbs.	50 cts. per 100 lbs.
Eggs.....	3 cts. per doz.	8 cts. per doz.
Butter.....	4 cts. per lb.	8 cts. per lb.
Cheese.....	3 cts. per lb.	5 cts. per lb.
Cattle.....	25%	40%
Hay.....	$2.00 per ton	$4.00 per ton
Wheat Flour.....	50 cts. per barrel	$2.04 per barrel
Wheat.....	12 cts. per bushel	42 cts. per bushel
Corn.....	Free	15 cts. per bushel
Certain Fruits.....	25%	35%
Wool.....	27%	36%

The United States raised their tariff, in order to protect the American Farmers, and the purchasing of foreign farm products was reduced. It was, therefore, to the American Farmer's benefit.

And we prove it. In the next column we list a few Canadian products imported by the United States under the 1921 tariff and under the raised tariff of September 21st, 1922. These figures are quoted from the "Commercial Intelligence Journal" published by the Ottawa Government (26th September, 1925, page 324).

Canadian Farm Exports to the United States, 11 months ending August 1921 and 11 months ending August 1925

Articles	U.S. Tariff	1921 Quantity or Value	U.S. Tariff	1925 Quantity or Value
Horned cattle.....	Free	$14,970,944	1½ to 2c. per lb. plus $2 per head	$2,897,753
Poultry.....	1c. per lb.	769,060	3c. per lb.	611,529
Sheep.....	Free	1,184,950	$2 per head	219,878
Oats (bushel).....	6c. per bus.	2,822,129	15c. per 32 lbs.	389,280
Wheat (bushel).....	Free	47,735,082	42c. per 60 lbs.	3,408,152

Eggs (doz.).....	Free	264,676	8c. per doz.	52,887

And now a great reduction has been made by the Canadian-Australian Treaty which just went into effect on October 1st, 1925. Under this treaty Australian (and New Zealand) farm products will enter Canada at the following tariffs.

PRODUCTS	For Entrance into Canada the Australians pay:	For Entrance into Australia the Canadians pay:
Eggs, per doz.....	Free	18 cts.
Cheese.....	Free	6 cts. per lb.
Butter.....	1 ct. per lb.	6 cts. per lb.
Honey.....	1 ct. per lb.	4 cts. per lb.
Bees Wax.....	Free	3 cts. per lb.
Fresh Meats.....	¼ ct.	5 cts. per lb.
Canned Meats.....	15%	40%
Canned Poultry.....	15%	40%
Lard.....	Free	4 cts. per lb.
Tallow.....	10%	1 ct. per lb.
Canned Vegetables.....	Free	30 cts. to $2.10 per doz. cans of ¼ to 4 pints
Apples and other Dried Fruits.....	10%	8 cts. per lb.
Quinces, Pears & Apricots	25 cts. per 100 lbs.	$1.50 per 100 lbs.
Canned Fruits.....	½ ct. per lb.	30 cts. to $2.10 per doz. cans, according to size

Canada will be flooded with farm products from other countries at these low rates, but Canadian farm products are shut out of other countries by high tariffs. Meanwhile half a million Canadians have moved to the United States because of the tariff reductions that have closed up or slowed down hundreds of factories. That is, half a million buyers of Canadian farm products have been lost. The farmers are hit twice.
